PEACE AGENDA PROVES PROBLEM

Mid-Western Flood Waters Now Spread Into St. Louis

Three More Persons Drown; Total Dead Is 23

ST. LOUIS, July 18. (AP)—Flood-wise St. Louis braced tonight for the Mississippi's worst flood in 100 years as it felt the first blows of torrents which already have devastated vast areas and cities in Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma.

At least 23 persons are known to have lost their lives and this afternoon three unidentified youths were reported to have drowned in backwaters of the Mississippi just south of East St. Louis, Ill.

The crest of flood waters, still crippling the twin cities of Kansas City on the Kansas-Missouri border, are churning down the Missouri River to its meeting with the Mississippi above St. Louis.

Reach Jefferson City

They lashed tonight with full fury at Central Missouri. They poured into 20 blocks of Jefferson City, state capital. Electric service to the capitol and other state buildings was threatened by water backing into the state power plant.

The crest is expected here Sunday. The weather bureau predicted the Mississippi would go to 40.5 feet, the highest it has been since 1844. In 1947 the river caused an estimated $9,000,000 damage when it reached 40.3 feet.

City officials were confident St. Louis could weather the blows but they took no chances with a flood which already has been the costliest in the nation's history with damage estimated at $750,000,000.

Every major department of city government, the fire department, the police department, the water division and others, were alerted to an emergency basis in St. Louis. Already the flood had crept into a number of riverfront industries. Damage there has reached an estimated $750,000.

Fire Hazard Threatened

Even as St. Louis girded, Kansas City, Kas., still faced the threat of explosions and fire hazards from floating oil and gasoline in two major industrial districts. A 20,000 barrel gasoline tank in the Armourdale District had sprung a leak. Two leaks were reported in the Great Lakes pipeline in the Fairfax District.

Officials said a tiny spark could ignite them into a floating inferno which by comparison would make the blaze which burned seven blocks in Kansas City since Friday seem like a bonfire.

But Kansas City was digging out along with flooded Kansas towns along the Kansas River where the flood troubles began last week.

Business stores, including taverns and laundries, were permitted to resume full time operation in Kansas City today. Restrictions were removed from downtown traffic. But strict conservation of water still was urged.

Probe Started About Missing Red Leaders

Secret Grand Jury Proceedings Begin

NEW YORK, July 18 (AP) — A Federal Grand Jury today launched a secret probe into the mysterious disappearance of four bail-jumping leaders of the Communist Party in the United States.

The four Reds failed to show up two weeks ago when seven top-ranking comrades started prison terms for conspiring to teach and advocate the violent overthrow of the government.

Search Is Underway

An international search is underway for them.

Grand Jury proceedings are secret and very little information came out of the opening session.

Among the very first witnesses were three imprisoned trustees of the Civil Rights Bail Funds—which posted $80,000 bond for the fugitives.

The trustees are Leftist Millionaire Frederick Vanderbilt Field, Mystery Writer Dashiell Hammett and W. Alphaeus Hunton.

Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan has said it might aid the search for the fugitives if the government knew where the bail money came from. The trustees have refused to tell him.

Ryan has sentenced Field to 90 days in jail for contempt and the other two to six months each. Only yesterday, they were denied further bond.

Field, Hammett and Hunton spent only about five minutes each before the grand jury.

Brushes Newsmen Off

Newsmen tried to talk to Field, but he brushed them off.

U. S. Attorney Irving H. Saypol indicated the grand jury also wants to know if anybody helped the fugitive Reds get away.

"x x x Violations of law arising out of the harboring of fugitives or obstruction of justice are part of my official obligation," he said.

The four missing Communist leaders are Robert Thompson, Gus Hall, Gilbert Green and Henry Winston. Thompson is under sentence of three years. The other three—plus the seven now in prison—drew five year sentences.

Rock Quarry Slide Buries 30 Workers

CASERTA, Italy, July 18 (AP) — Tons of rock dropped from a mountainside into a stone quarry here today, burying 30 workers. At midnight, rescuers had dug out eight bodies and 11 seriously injured men.

Eleven other workmen were believed trapped under the rockslide, along with two horses and three trucks.

The huge section of the mountain crashed into the quarry two hours after a routine blast had been set off. There appeared to be little hope that the men still buried could be brought out alive.

Rita, Prince May Reconcile

NEW YORK, July 18 (AP)—Possibility of a reconciliation between Rita Hayworth and Prince Aly Khan was reported by her attorney today—provided the Prince meets one "primary condition."

Bartley Crum, the film star's lawyer, staved off all attempts to pin him down on the nature of the condition.

He told a news conference what it was not.

He said the condition was "not financial." And, he added, it did not involve the actress' place of residence or the estranged couple's child, Yasmin.

With that, the movie star's fans were left to guess the real source of friction in the royal romance.

Former Circus Fat Woman Loses 401 Pounds In Diet

FORT THOMAS, Ky., July 18 (AP) — Trying to lose a few pounds, and finding it tough?

Take courage, folks, from the story of Dollie Dimples, only a year ago "the most beautiful fat girl in the show business."

From 555 pounds to 154 was her boast today as she celebrated her 50th birthday at the home of her sister, Mrs. Frank Goetz.

Gone for Dollie — in private life Mrs. Celesta Geyer — are the days when the sideshow spieler shouted:

"Come in and see a quarter of a ton of fat on one girl. It takes four ladies to make one Dollie Dimple."

Dollie said her heart finally could not bear the strain of her poundage and went bad a year ago at her home in Lockhart, a suburb of Orlando, Fla. Doctors gave her up when she could not breathe lying down.

Then she went on a diet of meat, vegetables and fruit, she told a reporter, limiting the calory content to 800 per day. If she got hungry, she smoked a cigarette.

The fat began to disappear.

Dolly, active in her heavy days because of her song and dance routine — the latter quite a feat in view of her weight — said this of her 401-pound decline:

"It's simple, all anyone has to do is diet properly and have will power to stick strictly to the diet.

Came the day when she could look down, not at a protruding tummy, but all the way down to her toes.

"That was a happy day," she told a reporter.

Now, she says, she is giving up the show because — not because she has lost the real props for the act — but because after 23 years on the boards, she has a new field.

"I'm going to show women how they can reduce," she said.

Attlee May Fly Here

Smiling Negotiator

Gen. Nam Il, chief North Korean delegate to the cease-fire negotiations, sits hatless and smiling with his aides in the waiting room of the conference house in Kaesong just prior to meeting with UN leaders. Unidentified members of the conference groups are seen entering the negotiating room. Yesterday's meeting broke up with disagreement still existing over one issue—the all-important removal of foreign troops from Korea. Conferences may continue on the subject today.

Finances Seen As Source Of Intended Trip

Talk With Truman To Study Problems

LONDON, July 18 (AP) — Prime Minister Attlee may fly to Washington in August for a new series of personal talks with President Truman and other top American leaders, informed sources said today.

The informants said Britain's rocky financial situation probably was the original inspiration for the idea, but that all problems common to the two Allies would be discussed.

Still Being Planned

The trip still is in the planning stage, with no final arrangements made. (State Department officials said Wednesday they had had no hint through diplomatic channels of the impending visit.)

If Attlee does go it apparently would be too late to take up the open disagreement between the United States and her North Atlantic Allies over inclusion of Spain in Western Defense plans.

Attlee's last trip to Washington last December was at a time when the British became alarmed over the possibility that the Korean War might spread into an all-out war in the Far East. Several American-British differences were smoothed over at that time.

By August the outcome of cease-fire negotiations in Korea may be lain. Other problems likely to figure in the new talks would include the future of Korea, relations with Red China, rearmament, and international action to control commodity prices and distribute raw materials.

Atlantic Pact questions also are multiplying. Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison touched on one of them today. He announced in the House of Commons that Britain now favors taking Greece and Turkey into the North Atlantic Pact organization.

Britain Was Cool

The United States urged its pact partners early in May to consider such a step. Britain at first was cool to the idea, and favored some sort of regional Middle East pact in which the two countries would figure.

Today, however, Morrison said Britain had come to the conclusion that a direct Turkish and Greek membership in the Atlantic Pact was the best solution of their security problem.

A French foreign office spokesman in Paris said France would still prefer a regional pact for those two countries. Until today only Italy and the United States were reported to favor the admission of the two countries, but the main opposition came from the Scandinavian countries and Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

MAY VISIT U. S.—Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee of England may make an important call on President Truman sometime next month to discuss pertinent problems between the two countries, it was revealed yesterday. Among the points to be discussed will be Britain's finances and the Korean situation as well as Atlantic Pact negotiations.

Truman Urges Social Security Benefits Hike

Views Put In Letter To Vice President

WASHINGTON, July 18. (AP) — President Truman urged Congress today to increase Social Security insurance benefits if it increased relief payments.

At the same time he said the lawmakers should require that any additional Federal cash for relief shall actually go to the relief beneficiaries and not merely serve to cut down the amount states pay from their own funds.

Debate Brings Attack

The President put his views into a letter to Vice President Barkley as the Senate took up a bill to raise the Federal share of relief payments to the aged, blind and disabled, and to crippled children, by $140,000,000 a year.

In the Senate itself the debate brought a bitter attack by Senator Cain (R-Wash) on the way the whole Social Security program works. He said it is "expanding at a crazy rate just as cancer cells do (and) will eventually, I firmly believe, wreck our economy unless a halt is made."

Cain opposed the proposal for an extra $3 per month of Federal money for the aged but said he was "ready to pay as high a tax as my fellow citizens are willing to pay to put x x x an honest Social Security into operation."

Bill Under Consideration

The bill under consideration would provide $3 a month each for needy aged, blind and disabled, and $1.60 for crippled children.

President Truman's proposal for a boost in insurance benefits was offered in an amendment sponsored by Senators Lehman (D-Lib-NY) Humphrey (D-Minn) and Langer (R-ND). The Senate quit for the night, however, without action on it.

Their plan would make a slight revision in the formula for computing payments to future beneficiaries. It would increase the maximum for an individual from $80 to $83.50 a month, and for a man and wife from $150 to $160. The minimum for a widow with children would go up from $40 to $50.

India Exempted

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP)—The National Security Council today exempted India from provisions of the Kem Amendment, which bars economic aid to any country selling war potential materials to iron curtain countries.

Disputed Item Creates Delay In Conference

Parley To Continue On Important Issue

SEOUL, Thursday, July 19 (AP)—Disagreement between United Nations and Communist delegations on a single, vital issue—probably Red demands for withdrawal of foreign troops—blocked an agreement today on the Korean cease-fire agenda.

Both sides agreed to tackle the officially undisclosed issue at a seventh meeting, called for 11 a. m. (8 p. m. EST, Wednesday) at Kaesong.

The Allied road convoy left Munsan for Kaesong at 8:30 a. m. It included signal and service personnel. The five-man Allied delegation, interpreters and other officials followed by helicopter.

(In London, the Moscow radio was heard to say that Red negotiators would insist on withdrawal of all foreign troops from Korea. The broadcast quoted a Tass dispatch from Pyongyang, the Korean Communist capital.)

Compromise May Be Made

It was believed that some sort of compromise might soon be worked out to permit the negotiators to finish their job of drawing up an agenda.

Two other undisclosed issues were resolved Wednesday.

Newsmen covering the sixth session at Kaesong Wednesday, noted growing hostility of Communist soldiers, policemen and residents inside the conference city. It was in marked contrast to the preceding days.

Correspondents attributed the change in attitude of Kaesong's population to efforts by their Communist rulers to discourage any show of friendliness.

Allied newsmen and photographers were ordered by the U. N. command to remain henceforth within a half-mile area of the conference site itself.

Since Monday newsmen who went to Kaesong had roamed everywhere within a five-mile radius of the city. An Allied spokesman reminded:

"Remember, Kaesong is a city that is behind Communist outpost lines."

The Peiping and Pyongyang Red radios also took a more pugnacious tone during the day. Peiping radio threatened reprisals if the Allied forces continued to carry out attacks against Red lines.

Actually, Allied patrols have probed beyond their lines every day since the peace talks began. The moves obviously were designed to locate shifting enemy positions while the preliminary talks were going on in Kaesong.

Make Additional Progress

Wednesday's meeting resulted in United Nations acceptance of two points presented by the Communist delegation.

This resulted in "some additional progress . . . toward formation of

House Votes Added Curbs On Controls

Move Catches Administration Off Its Guard

Bans Regulations Prohibiting Profit

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP) — Over administration protests, the House today voted to ban all price controls which would prevent a "reasonable profit."

Catching administration Democrats off guard, farm state legislators rammed through a series of amendments that threw fresh curbs on the administration's price controls program.

If finally enacted into law, the amendments might cause a review of every ceiling price fixed by the Office of Price Stabilization to take into account cost-plus-profit data on all farm and industrial products.

OPS ceiling prices run into many thousands.

Many Democrats were off the floor when the votes were taken.

However, Majority Leader McCormack (D-Mass) told newsmen he believes the prospects are favorable for reversing the actions.

All votes so far have been tentative, subject to final approval when the House votes on the completed bill for a new economic controls law. The present law expires July 31.

Late in the day, the House beat down an attempt to deprive the Wage Stabilization Board of its present power to handle labor disputes.

The Chamber also voted to keep the present status of the 18-man board with equal representation by public, labor and industry members.

The House defeated by a teller vote of 217 to 113 an amendment by Rep. Lucas (D-Tex) which would have placed public members in a majority over the combined labor and industry members.

Both the Lucas amendment and another by Rep. Kersten (R-Wisc) would have clipped the board's authority to settle labor disputes.

Mayer To Attempt Cabinet Reform

PARIS, July 18 (AP) — Radical Socialist Rene Mayer agreed tonight to try to form a new French cabinet.

Mayer, Minister of Justice in the outgoing government of Henri Queuille, is the second man to attempt to merge warring factions in a new middle-of-the-road coalition government. Finance Minister Maurice Petsche gave up earlier today.

Don't Belittle Friend Scotty Boxer Discovers

SAN GABRIEL, Calif., July 18 (AP) —Notice to Boxer dogs: Never underestimate the power of a Scotty.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Weiland were out walking their small Scotty Jeff last night when these events, as reported to police, occurred:

The Weilands passed Mrs. Charles A. Fraser who had a big Boxer on a leash. After they passed the Boxer made a lunge, broke his leash, and started for Jeff.

Mrs. Weiland grabbed her pet into her arms and was promptly bitten on the left hand by the Boxer. She lateraled Jeff to her husband. Then the Boxer bit him, also on the left hand. Weiland dropped his Scotty to the sidewalk.

The tide of battle quickly reversed. Jeff chased the Boxer, got a bulldog grip on the big dog. It took water from a garden hose to part them.

Jeff was virtually unharmed. The Boxer had to be sewed up at an animal hospital.

Women Protest For Pay Raise

LONDON, July 18 (AP)—The dignified calm of the House of Commons was shattered tonight by a mass invasion of 500 angry women.

The women, all government employes, streamed over from a nearby hall where they had staged a protest meeting, demanding equal pay with men.

Before startled police and parliament officials realized what was happening, the women started to pour into the Commons entrance lobby, demanding to see their constituency representatives.

A quick-witted policeman slammed the heavy oak doors before many got inside. Police reinforcements were rushed up as the women outside, some carrying banners, hammered at the doors and shouted, "we want Gaitskell." Hugh Gaitskell, Chancellor of the Exchequer, recently rejected the demand for equal pay for women on the grounds it would cost too much.

The shouts of the women reached the debating chamber and the sergeant-at-arms came out in his uniform of frock coat and knee breeches, his sword at his side, to ask what the fuss was about.

Seeks Home Rule

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP)—Rep. Klein (D-NY) asked Congress today to provide home rule for the District of Columbia.

U. S., Spain Agree On Use Of Air Bases

Overrule Protests Of France, Britain

MADRID, July 18 (AP)—Spain and the United States have reached a basic agreement on American use of Spanish air and naval bases in Western Defense, authoritative sources said tonight.

This will not involve an outright Spanish-American alliance. The agreement in principle, informants said, was reached Tuesday when Adm. Forrest P. Sherman, American Chief of Naval Operations, had a four-hour talk with Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson said in Washington the talks had gotten underway despite British and French objections. These countries oppose Spain's admission into the Atlantic Pact, her association with any member of the pact, and the American plan to acquire naval and air bases in Spain. A French foreign office spokesman has described the American negotiations as unfair to France.

Acheson said the talks were going forward because "military authorities are in general agreement that Spain is of strategic importance to the general defense of Western Europe."

Informants yesterday said Sherman had asked Franco for the use of naval bases at Cadiz, Cartagena and Ferrol as well as Santa Cruz in the Canaries, and air bases at Barcelona, Madrid, Seville and possibly Valencia and Lugo, southeast of Ferrol.

Details of the agreement will be worked out late this month by a special American mission representing the three armed services and the State Department. The groundwork already has been done by American air, naval and military attaches here.

Well-Dressed Man Steals Stuffed 'Gator

OAKLAND, Calif., July 18 (AP) — Police today sought a well-dressed man with a five-foot stuffed alligator under his arm.

Such a person, they were told, walked out of a Thirteenth Street furniture company this morning.

The clerks said they saw him leave, but they assumed he had paid the cashier $20 — that's how the price tag read—for the 'Gator. He hadn't.

Mrs. Kee Ninth Woman In Congress

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP) — Election of Mrs. Elizabeth Kee to the House of Representatives gives women the largest representation they have ever had in Congress.

Mrs. Kee, West Virginia Democrat, was elected yesterday to fill the unexpired term of her husband, who died.

When she is sworn in there will be nine women in the House, and one in the Senate.

New Ambassador

LONDON, July 18 (AP) — Britain has decided to name Sir Alvary Gascoigne as her new ambassador to Russia, informed diplomats reported today.

90,000 American Veterans To Be Returned From Korea

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP) — Ninety thousand veterans of Korea will come marching home in the next 90 days under the Army's stepped up "first-in, first-out' rotation plan. Recruits from the U. S. will take their places.

An Army announcement today said the rotation rate should reach 30,000 this month and be kept at that level through the next three months.

It will mark a big increase in the rate of homeward bound servicemen. Only 32,000 men have been returned to the U. S. from Korea through July 10.

No reason was given for the increased rotation rate. Presumably, it reflects an increased turnout of trained servicemen by U. S. Army camps.

With fighting and casualties slackening in Korea, the Army may now feel it can afford to send home a larger number of veterans in return for fresh troops.

The Army has followed a practice of fitting Korean-trained veterans into training operations in the U. S., particularly commissioned and non-commissioned officers.

Virtually all of the Army's top officials who served in Korea during early months of the war already have been returned to the U. S. and replaced by stateside officers.

The Army said its rotation program depends on the speed with which replacements can reach Korea and on the need for maintaining fighting efficiency of individual units.

Until today only Italy and the United States were reported to favor the admission of the two countries, but the main opposition came from the Scandinavian countries and Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

MAY VISIT U. S.—Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee of England may make an important call on President Truman sometime next month to discuss pertinent problems between the two countries, it was revealed yesterday. Among the points to be discussed will be Britain's finances and the Korean situation as well as Atlantic Pact negotiations.

Truman Urges Social Security Benefits Hike

Views Put In Letter To Vice President

WASHINGTON, July 18. (AP)—President Truman urged Congress today to increase Social Security insurance benefits if it increased relief payments.

At the same time he said the lawmakers should require that any additional Federal cash for relief shall actually go to the relief beneficiaries and not merely serve to cut down the amount states pay from their own funds.

Debate Brings Attack

The President put his views into a letter to Vice President Barkley as the Senate took up a bill to raise the Federal share of relief payments to the aged, blind and disabled, and to crippled children, by $140,000,000 a year.

In the Senate itself the debate brought a bitter attack by Senator Cain (R-Wash) on the way the whole Social Security program works. He said it is "expanding at a crazy rate just as cancer cells do (and) will eventually, I firmly believe, wreck our economy unless a halt is made."

Cain opposed the proposal for an extra $3 per month of Federal money for the aged but said he was "ready to pay as high a tax as my fellow citizens are willing to pay to put x x x an honest Social Security into operation."

Bill Under Consideration

The bill under consideration would provide $3 a month each for needy aged, blind and disabled, and $1.60 for crippled children.

President Truman's proposal for a boost in insurance benefits was offered in an amendment sponsored by Senators Lehman (D-Lib-NY) Humphrey (D-Minn) and Langer (R-ND). The Senate quit for the night, however, without action on it.

Their plan would make a slight revision in the formula for computing payments to future beneficiaries. It would increase the maximum for an individual from $80 to $83.50 a month, and for a man and wife from $150 to $160. The minimum for a widow with children would go up from $40 to $50.

Disputed Item Creates Delay In Conference

Parley To Continue On Important Issue

SEOUL, Thursday, July 19 (AP)—Disagreement between United Nations and Communist delegations on a single, vital issue—probably Red demands for withdrawal of foreign troops—blocked an agreement today on the Korean cease-fire agenda.

Both sides agreed to tackle the officially undisclosed issue at a seventh meeting, called for 11 a. m. (8 p. m. EST, Wednesday) at Kaesong.

The Allied road convoy left Munsan for Kaesong at 8:30 a. m. It included signal and service personnel. The five-man Allied delegation, interpreters and other officials followed by helicopter.

(In London, the Moscow radio was heard to say that Red negotiators would insist on withdrawal of all foreign troops from Korea. The broadcast quoted a Tass dispatch from Pyongyang, the Korean Communist capital.)

Compromise May Be Made

It was believed that some sort of compromise might soon be worked out to permit the negotiators to finish their job of drawing up an agenda.

Two other undisclosed issues were resolved Wednesday.

Newsmen covering the sixth session at Kaesong Wednesday, noted growing hostility of Communist soldiers, policemen and residents inside the conference city. It was in marked contrast to the preceding days.

Correspondents attributed the change in attitude of Kaesong's population to efforts by their Communist rulers to discourage any show of friendliness.

Allied newsmen and photographers were ordered by the U. N. command to remain henceforth within a half-mile area of the conference site itself.

Since Monday newsmen who went to Kaesong had roamed everywhere within a five-mile radius of the city. An Allied spokesman reminded:

"Remember, Kaesong is a city that is behind Communist outpost lines."

The Peiping and Pyongyang Red radios also took a more pugnacious tone during the day. Peiping radio threatened reprisals if the Allied forces continued to carry out attacks against Red lines.

Actually, Allied patrols have probed beyond their lines every day since the peace talks began. The moves obviously were designed to locate shifting enemy positions while the preliminary talks were going on in Kaesong.

Make Additional Progress

Wednesday's meeting resulted in United Nations acceptance of two points presented by the Communist delegation.

This resulted in "some additional progress . . . toward formation of

House Votes Added Curbs On Controls

Move Catches Administration Off Its Guard

Bans Regulations Prohibiting Profit

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP) — Over administration protests, the House today voted to ban all price controls which would prevent a "reasonable profit."

Catching administration Democrats off guard, farm state legislators rammed through a series of amendments that threw fresh curbs on the administration's price controls program.

If finally enacted into law, the amendments might cause a review of every ceiling price fixed by the Office of Price Stabilization to take into account cost-plus-profit data on all farm and industrial products.

OPS ceiling prices run into many thousands.

Many Democrats were off the floor when the votes were taken.

However, Majority Leader McCormack (D-Mass) told newsmen he believes the prospects are favorable for reversing the actions.

All votes so far have been tentative, subject to final approval when the House votes on the completed bill for a new economic controls law. The present law expires July 31.

Late in the day, the House beat down an attempt to deprive the Wage Stabilization Board of its present power to handle labor disputes.

The Chamber also voted to keep the present status of the 18-man board with equal representation by public, labor and industry members.

The House defeated by a teller vote of 217 to 113 an amendment by Rep. Lucas (D-Tex) which would have placed public members in a majority over the combined labor and industry members.

Both the Lucas amendment and another by Rep. Kersten (R-Wisc) would have clipped the board's authority to settle labor disputes.

Mayer To Attempt Cabinet Reform

PARIS, July 18 (AP) — Radical Socialist Rene Mayer agreed tonight to try to form a new French cabinet.

Mayer, Minister of Justice in the outgoing government of Henri Queuille, is the second man to attempt to merge warring factions in a new middle-of-the-road coalition government. Finance Minister Maurice Petsche gave up earlier today.

Don't Belittle Friend Scotty Boxer Discovers

SAN GABRIEL, Calif., July 18 (AP) —Notice to Boxer dogs: Never underestimate the power of a Scotty.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Weiland were out walking their small Scotty Jeff last night when these events, as reported to police, occurred:

The Weilands passed Mrs. Charles A. Fraser who had a big Boxer on a leash. After they passed the Boxer made a lunge, broke his leash, and started for Jeff.

Mrs. Weiland grabbed her pet into her arms and was promptly bitten on the left hand by the Boxer. She lateraled Jeff to her husband. Then the Boxer bit him, also on the left hand. Weiland dropped his Scotty to the sidewalk.

The tide of battle quickly reversed. Jeff chased the Boxer, got a bulldog grip on the big dog. It took water from a garden hose to part them.

Jeff was virtually unharmed. The Boxer had to be sewed up at an animal hospital.

Women Protest For Pay Raise

LONDON, July 18 (AP)—The dignified calm of the House of Commons was shattered tonight by a mass invasion of 500 angry women.

The women, all government employes, streamed over from a nearby hall where they had staged a protest meeting, demanding equal pay with men.

Before startled police and parliment officials realized what was happening, the women started to pour into the Commons entrance lobby, demanding to see their constituency representatives.

A quick-witted policeman slammed the heavy oak doors before many got inside. Police reinforcements were rushed up as the women outside, some carrying banners, hammered at the doors and shouted, "we want Gaitskell." Hugh Gaitskell, Chancellor of the Exchequer, recently rejected the demand for equal pay for women on the grounds it would cost too much.

The shouts of the women reached the debating chamber and the sergeant-at-arms came out in his uniform of frock coat and knee breeches, his sword at his side, to ask what the fuss was about.

Seeks Home Rule

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP)—Rep. Klein (D-NY) asked Congress today to provide home rule for the District of Columbia.

U. S., Spain Agree On Use Of Air Bases

Overrule Protests Of France, Britain

MADRID, July 18 (AP)—Spain and the United States have reached a basic agreement on American use of Spanish air and naval bases in Western Defense, authoritative sources said tonight.

This will not involve an outright Spanish-American alliance. The agreement in principle, informants said, was reached Tuesday when Adm. Forrest P. Sherman, American Chief of Naval Operations, had a four-hour talk with Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson said in Washington the talks had gotten underway despite British and French objections. These countries oppose Spain's admission into the Atlantic Pact, her association with any member of the pact, and the American plan to acquire naval and air bases in Spain. A French foreign office spokesman has described the American negotiations as unfair to France.

Acheson said the talks were going forward because "military authorities are in general agreement that Spain is of strategic importance to the general defense of Western Europe."

Informants yesterday said Sherman had asked Franco for the use of naval bases at Cadiz, Cartagena and Ferrol as well as Santa Cruz in the Canaries, and air bases at Barcelona, Madrid, Seville and possibly Valencia and Lugo, southeast of Ferrol.

Details of the agreement will be worked out late this month by a special American mission representing the three armed services and the State Department. The groundwork already has been done by American air, naval and military attaches here.

Well-Dressed Man Steals Stuffed 'Gator

OAKLAND, Calif., July 18 (AP) — Police today sought a well-dressed man with a five-foot stuffed alligator under his arm.

Such a person, they were told, walked out of a Thirteenth Street furniture company this morning.

The clerks said they saw him leave, but they assumed he had paid the cashier $20 — that's how the price tag read—for the 'Gator. He hadn't.

Mrs. Kee Ninth Woman In Congress

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP) — Election of Mrs. Elizabeth Kee to the House of Representatives gives women the largest representation they have ever had in Congress.

Mrs. Kee, West Virginia Democrat, was elected yesterday to fill the unexpired term of her husband, who died.

When she is sworn in there will be nine women in the House, and one in the Senate.

New Ambassador

LONDON, July 18 (AP) — Britain has decided to name Sir Alvary Gascoigne as her new ambassador to Russia, informed diplomats reported today.

India Exempted

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP)—The National Security Council today exempted India from provisions of the Kem Amendment, which bars economic aid to any country selling war potential materials to iron curtain countries.

90,000 American Veterans To Be Returned From Korea

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP) — Ninety thousand veterans of Korea will come marching home in the next 90 days under the Army's stepped up "first-in, first-out" rotation plan. Recruits from the U. S. will take their places.

An Army announcement today said the rotation rate should reach 30,000 this month and be kept at that level through the next three months.

It will mark a big increase in the rate of homeward bound servicemen. Only 32,000 men have been returned to the U. S. from Korea through July 10.

No reason was given for the increased rotation rate. Presumably, it reflects an increased turnout of trained servicemen by U. S. Army camps.

With fighting and casualties slackening in Korea, the Army may now feel it can afford to send home a larger number of veterans in return for fresh troops.

The Army has followed a practice of fitting Korean-trained veterans into training operations in the U. S., particularly commissioned and non-commissioned officers.

Virtually all of the Army's top officials who served in Korea during early months of the war already have been returned to the U. S. and replaced by stateside officers.

The Army said its rotation program depends on the speed with which replacements can reach Korea and on the need for maintaining fighting efficiency of individual units.

Jaycees To Study Theatre Pact

Five members of the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce will go to Abingdon, Va., August 3 to discuss the proposed contract with the Barter Theatre for sponsorship of some of its plays here during the 1951-52 season.

This decision was reached at a meeting of the Jaycee Board of Directors last night. Better terms, better dates and better plays from last season are the Jaycees' objectives. Those who will go to Abingdon are Floyd V. Cozad, Barter Theatre committee chairman; Henry Mackey, Jaycee president; Richard Sell, Ralph Higgins and Edwin Meyer.

The board decided to postpone the next regular meeting from August 1 to August 8. Walter Hedrick was appointed new chairman of the Hoover Commission report committee. Volunteer writers to assist in the preparation of copy for The Progress, Jaycee publication, were announced as Ralph Higgins, Kenneth Morgan, Edwin Meyer, Raymond C. Dorn and Robert Brown.

B. And O. Shows Safety Movie To Children

More than 854,000 school children living along the lines of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad have learned a lot about "playing safe" from the railroad's police officers.

The B. & O.'s safety education program, carried into the schools by railroad police officers, has met with approval from educators. The children like it too, because the safety program is built around a cartoon motion picture film which holds their interest. This is titled "The Happy Locomotive," and it tells the troubles and triumphs of its engineer, Uncle Bob.

The railroad also is gratified with the results of the program because in the areas in which it has been carried out, there has been a marked reduction in the unsafe juvenile practices and depredations which cause so much trouble for the railroad policemen.

TACO PROTECTS HIS FRIEND — Taco, playmate of 16-month-old Jerome Krynik, finds a stick and urges the infant up the beach to safety after a cooling dip in the shallows of a lake at Saugatuck, Mich. Nation's Underground Coal Fires Are Being Controlled

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP) — About a quarter of the nation's underground coal fires have been brought under control, James Boyd, director of the Bureau of Mines, said today.

Boyd estimated the saving at more than 120,000,000 tons of bituminous and anthracite coal which, if mined, would be worth more than $500,000,000 at current prices.

And he said the whole fire-control program, started three years ago, has cost the Federal Government $1,108,000, or less than one cent a ton on the coal estimated to have been saved.

Fires on public domain were put out or controlled entirely at the expense of the Federal Government. In the case of fires on private, state or county lands, however, the landowners paid one-third of the cost.

Boyd said the bureau has investigated more than 80 fires in abandoned coal mines or in deposits where no mining is under way. Some of them have been raging for a generation or more, destroying coal, threatening buildings and lands, and releasing gases which menace the health of nearby residents.

Three years ago the bureau started projects to control 17 of the fires. The projects were chosen either because they were the most serious or because they could most readily be eliminated to avoid further losses.

The most effective technique with fires entirely underground was to smother them with silt, flushed down upon them through boreholes, Boyd said.

New Attempts Made To Free Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP)—The United States has begun new diplomatic moves to get AP Correspondent William Oatis out of a Czechoslovakian prison.

This was disclosed today by Secretary of State Acheson who indicated the government may have made some sort of an offer to the Communist regime in Prague.

What this offer might be was not stated.

Solon Cites "Poor" Law Enforcement

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP) — Senator Kefauver (D-Tenn) said today evidence of open gambling indicated "rather poor" law enforcement in past years in Anne Arundel County (Annapolis), Maryland.

This evidence, however, dates only to January, 1951, he told reporters after a closed-door hearing by the Senate Crime Committee on gambling in Maryland. He said he does not know what the situation is now.

Veterans Benefits

World War II veterans, with few exceptions will lose the right to educational benefits of the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944—the GI Bill—unless they are actually enrolled in school on July 25. The act had provided that training under its provisions must have begun by four years after the end of World War II or four years after discharge—whichever was later. For purposes of the GI Bill, the termination of the war was fixed by later legislation at July 25, 1947.

Exceptions will be made, primarily for medical students who received their pre-medical education under the GI Bill and have been unable to obtain admission to medical schools; teachers working toward a degree who can attend school only in summer vacations; veterans who had begun school only to be recalled or to volunteer for active duty. Again with some exceptions, all schooling is to be completed by July 25, 1956.

In the seven years of the GI Bill program thus far completed—the bill was signed by President Roosevelt on June 22, 1944—the Veterans Administration has paid out more than $12 billion for tuition, subsistence allowances, supplies, training equipment. Some 7,500,000 veterans—about half of those who served in World War II—have taken some form of training in schools, on the job, or on farms.

Over $8 billion has gone to veterans in subsistence allowances. Schools have received $4 billion for tuition and expenses.

The VA had paid more than $3.2 billion in allowances to unemployed and self-employed veterans. Only a few veterans are still eligible for such allowances. The VA has guaranteed half the amount of loans totaling about $15.2 billion for homes, farms, and businesses. The loan program will extend to July 25, 1957.

To protect the GI Bill program from abuse, Congress had adopted amending legislation: (in 1946) to limit on-the-job training benefits to veterans earning $3,000 a year or less; (in 1948) to require veterans to show that courses taken in schools would aid them vocationally; (in 1949) to limit enrollment to schools which had been established for at least a year; (in 1950) to establish minimum standards for vocational training schools.

Nevertheless, the Teague subcommittee has uncovered abuses in the administration of the program and in various schools training veterans. Spokesmen for the subcommittee cite one ruling of a VA regional office which was reversed successively by the VA central office, the solicitor, the administrator. In Pennsylvania, 60 schools were closed as a result of hearings in Philadelphia and Harrisburg. And the subcommittee discovered that in Texas 56 schools training veterans were owned or operated by former VA employes.

Bail For Communists

All in a tangle is the legal issue of bail for 15 of the 21 "second-string" Communist leaders indicted in New York for conspiring to teach the forcible overthrow of the Government. Two of the 21 had furnished bail from a satisfactory source. The remaining four defendants have yet to be picked up.

The question to be decided: Was the Civil Rights Congress a proper bail provider for the 15? Trustees of the bail fund of this body had refused to tell where the money came from—and thereupon brought up the question of bail for themselves when jailed for contempt of court. The Eighth Amendment in forbidding excessive bail seems to imply the right of bail without specifying it.

The institution of bail (or bailment) grew up to protect both sides in a criminal prosecution. The accused would not have to stay in jail until tried (often, of course, to be found innocent), and the prosecution would have some guaranty that he would appear for trial.

The practice of bail is admittedly unsatisfactory in many jurisdictions. A poor and friendless defendant may find much more difficulty in procuring bail than a rich and influential one. Sometimes the same piece of property is accepted as surety for a score of different persons; sometimes the surety is not automatically forfeited when the bailed person "takes a powder."

And there is no agreement on the point at which the bail requirement in a particular case ceases to be merely effective and begins to be excessive. The $25,000 bail fixed for William D. ("Bill Big") Haywood, one of the IWW leaders found guilty in 1918 of wartime sedition, failed to keep him from skipping off to Russia in disguise while his case was under review. Gerhard Eisler, Communist, was under $23,500 bail when he skipped out in 1949. Bail of $20,000 had been put up by the Civil Rights Congress for each of the four "first-string" Communist leaders who cannot be found to begin their five-year sentences.

Rampaging Rivers

The floods of catastrophic proportions which have ravaged Western Missouri and Eastern Kansas have, as was inevitable, inspired proposals for vast flood control projects, to be financed by the federal government. To prevent floods of the type which inundated this vast area would entail expenditures of many billions of dollars.

Not since 1844 has the stricken section undergone comparable flood catastrophe, and in that year there were few whites in the area. Reconstruction and rehabilitation will be a slow and costly process. Hundreds of thousands of persons will be compelled to make good their own losses as best they can.

Meteorologists are unable to explain occurrences such as this. July rains are seldom of flood proportions in the inundated territory, yet here is an entire countryside turned into a vast lake and a hundred cities and towns flooded. This holocaust was not caused by lack of flood prevention projects. A similar freak of nature could manifest itself anywhere.

Accurate figures on the total losses suffered by the million inhabitants of the area can never be known. But the billion-dollar figure which has been mentioned may prove conservative.

How To Keep Well

The Chronic Complainer

Victims of hydochondriasis have marked anxiety about their health. They have complaints galore and when relieved of one are likely to develop another. The majority do not enjoy bad health but are abnormally concerned with everything that has to do with their physical being. A fleeting ache makes them think of cancer and a skipped heart beat means coronary thrombosis.

The slightest inference by a physician that the condition is caused by nerves makes the patient antagonistic and critical. Unless treated sympathetically patients shop from one physician to another and they are always fair game for quacks. Their bathroom cabinets contain enough medicine to start a drug store but the remedies seldom work because these individuals have no disease that drugs can touch.

Hypochondriacs come in all ages and men are bothered just as much as women. The multiplicity of the complaints makes it necessary for some to write them down and hand the list to the physician: "It hurts on this side of the head all of the time, my neck is sore, and when I lift my right leg something feels tight in the knee. I am worried, nervous, haven't slept for a week, and have the craziest dreams. My teeth hurt and food never digests in my stomach even when I take yogurt but I'm more worried about my heart, which is giving me trouble." These organ recitals tax the ingenuity of the best physicians because the condition is baffling and the cause unidentified. Furthermore, the victim is incapacitated even tho he passes a physical examination.

Most physicians worry lest the patient will some day develop an organic disturbance that will go undetected, as in the case of the boy who cried wolf. Some hypochondriacs have definite abnormalities in addition to their long list of complaints. After all, a certain percentage is bound to have high blood pressure and older men and women develop arterio-sclerosis, arthritis, cataracts, and various other degenerative disturbances. These disorders complicate the picture because medical men have found it difficult to determine the validity of the symptoms. Is palpitation traceable to heart trouble or is it part of the hypochondriasis?

The bizarre symptoms always are out of proportion to the physical condition of the individuals. It is the penalty they pay for having en emotional temperament. Anxiety reigns and manifests itself in terms of aches and pains, a feeling of being rundown, tired, nervous, and depressed. They have had more than their share of trouble, chiefly because they are unable to handle adversities; this tends to increase their difficulties, which in turn makes them more frustrated and dejected. They lack security and become more and more helpless.

In neurasthenia, an allied condition, the accent is more on fatigue (mental and physical), muscular weakness, headaches, inability to concentrate, and sleeplessness. The hypochondriac is inclined to center his attention on one or more of his organs but there is no sharp delineation between these two types of neuroses.

TELESCOPED BOWEL

Mrs. C. writes: I have heard of a child who was operated on for intussusception. What is the nature of his disorder?

REPLY

In this condition, a portion of the intestine telescopes into itself. The blood supply to the fold on the inside is disturbed and the tissues swell to such an extent that the bowel becomes obstructed. The remedy is surgery.

INFLAMED UVULA

H. T. writes: Would an infected uvula be more likely to originate from germs in the air or an infection in the body?

REPLY

In the majority of cases inflammation of the uvula is associated with the common cold. Hence the organisms would come from without.

BLEEDING CAPILLARY

G. R. writes: How long does it take to heal a ruptured vessel in the nose caused by blowing too hard?

REPLY

Bleeding stops when a clot develops but days may elapse before the capillary heals completely.

COLON CANCER

A. C. writes: I have heard that it is not advisable to have piles removed after the age of 65 because cancer is likely to follow such an operation. Is this true?

REPLY

No. Most individuals past 50 have hemorrhoids but in the majority there are no symptoms. If bleeding occurs, however, it may be incorrectly attributed to hemorrhoids. Unless a careful examination is done, the physician may overlook a co-existing malignancy.

CHUBBY NOSE

M. K. writes: Can a fleshy nose be reduced?

REPLY

Consult a plastic surgeon on this one.

DREW PEARSON on—

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Senatorial Courtesy Helped Kansas Flood; Truman's Policy On Natural Gas Undercut; Federal Power Commission Puts Vetoed Kerr Bill Into Force

WASHINGTON — Part of the damage suffered by the people of Kansas in the current flood would have been avoided but for the custom of senatorial courtesy.

Thirteen years ago, Congress passed a bill authorizing a 22,000-acre reservoir on Tuttle Creek, north of Manhattan, Kansas. It was proposed by the Army Engineers as a means of controlling the floods which have swept Eastern Kansas periodically.

However, the dam was never built—for the reason that the money never was voted by Congress. Although authorized, it was never voted because one of the late Republican senators from Kansas, Clyde Reed, objected. Every time the appropriation came up for the Tuttle Creek reservoir, Senator Reed turned thumbs down, and under the system of senatorial courtesy he had the final say.

Frank Carlson, now a GOP senator from Kansas, was then a congressman and did his best to obtain passage of the appropriation. Later, as governor, Frank Carlson also tried to push the Tuttle Creek reservoir through. But Senator Reed had some friends in that area who owned farming land which would have been taken over by the proposed reservoir. Unfortunately, he put their interest ahead of the interest of the rest of the people of Eastern Kansas.

Now lives have been lost and millions of dollars worth of property ruined in a flood which could have been partly controlled if the Army Engineers' plan had been followed.

Why Truman Can't Win

An unpublicized incident occurred in the Federal Power Commission recently which illustrates why Harry Truman is almost certain not to be elected president of the United States even if he chooses to run.

The incident involved a poker-playing crony of the President's, ex-Sen. Mon Wallgren, who deliberately cut his chief's throat.

This has become a favorite pattern in Washington. The White House outlines a policy, frequently a fine and courageous policy. Then the President appoints men who throw that policy in the ditch. That's why the Truman Administration is being called the "talk-big-do-little" administration.

This was what he did on one of the most important battles he has waged in the past year—his veto of the Kerr Natural Gas Bill. The bill was authored by a friend of his, powerful, popular Sen. Bob Kerr of Oklahoma. But it would have boosted the price of gas to city populations everywhere, and also boosted the profits of the oil and gas companies. So Truman vetoed it.

Yet, believes it or not, the Federal power Commission has now secretly overruled the President's policy and completely nullified his veto.

What the Kerr Bill said was that the Federal Power Commission did not have jurisdiction to regulate the price of natural gas going into interstate pipelines. The President, overruling the Kerr Bill, said the power commission did have jurisdiction.

Secret Vote

But, by a secret 4-to-1 vote, the FPC has now decided not to take jurisdiction over the biggest producer of natural gas, Phillips Petroleum, thus directly reversing the President and giving the oil and gas moguls their greatest victory in years.

Incidentally, housewives in the cities of the North, Midwest and Southwest can look for hikes in the price of their gas very shortly.

Significantly also—Senator Kerr is one of the biggest suppliers of natural gas to Phillips Petroleum. He owns several leases in partnership with Phillips, while his Kerr-McGee Oil Company owns an estimated $100,000,000 in natural gas reserves. His gross income of $12,000,000 a year makes him the wealthiest man in the Senate.

Truman's Crony

Most amazing thing about the Federal Power Commission debate was the way the President's poker-playing crony, Chairman Mon Wallgren, actually broke into the final arguments of the attorneys defending the public to quote excerpts from the Kerr Bill.

"I want to hear something about what Congress thought," Wallgren explained, as he quoted from the bill which his chief in the White House had vetoed.

At one point, Wallgren nearly got into a brawl with James H. Lee, Detroit attorney, who was arguing for the public. Wallgren shouted accusations across the hearing room, charging that local utility commissions shirked their duties. The argument got so hot that Lee started toward the commission bench, and Wellgren pushed back his chair ready for action. However, aged Commissioner Claude Draper headed Lee off by dashing out from behind the bench and planting himself in front of Lee.

Wallgren also baited William Torkelson, counsel for the Wisconsin Public Service Commission. In fact, the FPC chairman seemed to go out of his way to undercut the man in the White House who appointed him. One of Wallgren's tactics was to bombard pro-consumer lawyers with so many questions that they didn't have time to sum up their arguments. For example, FPC Attorney Lambert McAllister was limited to two hours to present the public's case. Yet Wallgren hurled so many irrelevant questions at him that McAllister never finished his presentation.

Finally, Commissioner Thomas Buchanan blurted angrily: "Don't you think we might have a little more argument from counsel?"

An Old Man Gets Tired

One day, following these oral arguments, Wallgren called a surprise closed-door meeting to decide the Phillips case. Staff members could hardly believe it when the motion to rule in favor of Phillips and reverse the President's policy was offered by Commissioner Draper, the man who had battled tooth-and-nail against the Kerr Bill only a year ago.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Dignified Strength

In the Orient, strength is always understood; it is respected if accompanied by the rare quality of natural dignity. The so-called practical man, who knows that the shortest distance between two points is a straight line, often wonders why when he reaches his goal, there is no one there to deal with. The practical man, as he calls himself, usually omits what he likes to regard as emotional factors. The Oriental does not necessarily stand in the way of the oncoming speeder; he steps aside to wait for a calmer approach. He knows that neither speed nor reason is the sole concomitant of any situation.

This lesson has apparently now been learned by the government of the United States. It has ben a costly lesson, costly in lives and in wealth. But if it has truly been absorbed by those who make policy decisions in Washington, then we are on the way to doing something not only about the Korean situation but about all Far Eastern questions.

From a Far Eastern standpoint, this is the way the situation stands:

1. The Russians intervened to achieve peace;

2. The Americans hastily jumped at the suggestion because they were in a hurry to get out of a stalemated war;

3. The Chinese and Korean Communists took their time, made their own terms, carried them out, and the Americans accepted the Sino-Korean formula;

4. The Americans walked into Kaesong and discovered that they were receiving unequal treatment, that an effort was being made to establish that they (the Americans) were suing for peace;

5. The American newspapermen and photographers broke through military censorship and got the story to the American people who were outraged by the conduct of their military officials;

6. The United States, showing dignified strength, then retired from the Kaesong conference and rejected the idea of unequal treatment;

7. The Sino-Koreans retreated from their position and accepted the American terms "in principle." Ultimately, they accepted them in fact.

There is the pattern of a lesson which every Oriental knows since childhood. Dignified strength is like a stone wall. If you bang your head against it, you can break your head, but you are not likely to knock down the stone wall.

In the Western world, we call much of this "standing by your principles," or "standing by your guns." But what we call "practical and reasonable men" feel generally that it is best — they might put it, "cheapest in the end" — to compromise, to find what the lawyers call "a meeting of the minds."

In the Orient, all this is bad practice, and the point must be made that Stalin is an Oriental, the same as Mao Tze-tung. To such persons, over-anxiety and compromise represent undignified weakness. Over-anxiety is undignified; an eager compromise is weakness. Before a compromise is reached, each side must stand stock-still and swear on all that is holy, including the grave of his father, that he will not give an inch. This must be repeated, with a deep sense of outrage, two or three times. Then somehow, out of a welter of many words and loud speech, a little break appears.

This break must not indicate weakness, retreat, fear. It must be done in a superior manner. At that point, the party of the second part should do the same. Here commences the real negotiation which comes down to this: How can we best get out of the mess we are both in without "losing face?"

In the days when such negotiations were my daily fare, I went through this sort of thing with endless constancy. Nothing in those days was more sporting than watching Chinese and Japanese experts handle this game. They managed to keep out of war for a fairly long time under trying circumstances by endless negotiation and conference on a variety of subjects. These talks also included a vast number of heavy parties in both countries with geisha and singsong girls and enormous quantities of lukewarm rice wine. At such festivities no direct negotiations took place, but a word was said here and there which led to a conclusion.

Then a Japanese, General Kenji Doihara, lost his temper, lost his dignity, became practical and on September 18, 1931, he started war on China. Japan won that war but lost everything else and is now a dependent country.

Things happen like that in history when there is no dignified strength. And here endeth the lesson.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH And STEWART ALSOP

British Big Bang

WASHINGTON

The British will quite soon be ready to explode their first atomic bomb. The timing depends in part on what is done in this country. But the chances are that the first British atomic test will take place within a matter of months, almost certainly within the coming year. This is, of course, a matter of the highest importance. For one thing, it goes right to the heart of the Anglo-American relationship.

For the explosion of a British bomb will be, in a sense, a measure of the partial failure of the Anglo-American partnership. This is so for several reasons. Although the British technicians now know in detail how to make the bomb, it will be extremely costly to clear the final technological hurdles, and then to stage the test, probably in Australia. And this heavy charge on the British economy comes at a time when the British rearmament effort is already straining British finances to the breaking point.

Moreover, the fact is that the British do not now have the resources to build either a really decisive stockpile of bombs, or the planes to carry bombs in important numbers to Soviet targets. The newly designed British medium bomber, the B-9, is an excellent plane, perhaps even superior in performance to our own B-47. But this plane is still in the prototype stage, and even when in production, it will be hand-tooled, rather than mass-produced.

Costly Gesture

Thus for the British to test a bomb which cannot either be made or delivered in quantity amounts to a very costly psychological gesture. Yet the gesture is almost certain to be made. This is so partly because an independent British atomic test should have an important effect on the British themselves. More and more, the British are being persuaded that their island has been transformed into a mere "Air Strip One" for the Americans, and the proof of independent British atomic power should do much to dispel this illusion.

A British atomic test should also help to remind the Soviets that Britain is still a great power. But above all, the explosion of a British atomic bomb should impress the Congress of the United States. And this is certainly a main reason why the all-out effort to produce a British bomb is now in prospect.

What the British really want, of course, is an atomic working partnership with the United States—full participation, on a kind of non-producing basis, in the American atomic program. This is, in fact, what the best of the American policy makers also want. For what is not understood, either in Congress or the country, is that this matter of an atomic partnership with the British is by no means one-sided.

The recent, irresponsible revelation that the United States now has only 87 operational B-36 bombers should serve to underline this fact. The B-36 is the only bomber capable of reaching important Soviet targets from American bases. Eighty-seven planes—or 200—could not possibly serve as an effective deterrent against Soviet aggression, especially in view of the rapidl maturing Soviet air defense.

Plans Knocked Out

The plain fact is that the capacity to deliver the American atomic stockpile now squarely depends on overseas bases controlled by the French, and above all by the British. The further fact is that the only decisive American weapon could be nullified "by a single telephone call," to quote on knowledgeable American airman. For if, in some future crisis, the British government notified this government that American bombers could not use British bases, the French would surely follow suit. Thus the central factor in American military power could be eliminated at a stroke.

It is because it is the only insurance against this happening that our own policy makers want a working Anglo-American atomic partnership. But this would require legislation—specifically, revision of the McMahon Act. There have been repeated conversations about changing the act. Atomic Energy Committee Chairman Brien McMahon himself understands the need for revision. But every time plans have proceeded to the point where legislation was about to be introduced, there has been a Fuchs scandal, or a Pontecorvo scandal, or a Burgess-McLean scandal, and the plans have been hastily dropped.

The recent Burgess-McLean defection, in fact, knocked into a cocked hat carefully laid plans for an Anglo-American atomic partnership. And now the only way out, apparently, is for the British to make the costly and basically unnecessary effort to produce atomic bombs independently. The Congress will presumably be far less reluctant to permit an atomic partnership if the prospective partner has shown the capacity to roduce atomic bombs anyway. Moreover, British security arrangements are being firmly if belatedly tightened, and there should be no more Fuchs-Pontecorvo - Burgess - McLean betrayals.

The explosion of a British-made bomb, to be sure, should have some desirable consequences in itself. Even so, it is time this country recognized that the Anglo-American alliance, to which British bases are just as essential as American planes and bombs, is not a one-way street.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON. — America's determination to work out a military alliance with Spain is no recent decision.

Beginning when Louis Johnson was Secretary of Defense, and now under Secretary Marshall, the potential use of naval and air bases in Spain and the valuable aid of the Spanish army's many divisions have constituted a vital objective in American planning. It has always been realized, of course, that "political" factors might be an obstacle, and hence nothing has been said publicly about it.

Such apprehensions have not proved unfounded, as witness the open protests being made by the British and French governments.

If such protests became effective, it would mean that Soviet Russia, which wields nowadays a tremendous political influence inside Great Britain and France, had succeeded in applying a restraining hand on America's defense of Europe.

Follows Russian Pattern

The American people have not yet grasped the significance of the Soviet impact on British and French policy. In Britain, for example, the Bevan "left wing" manifesto the other day paralleled almost exactly the Russian demand that the United States be denied military bases overseas. The Bevanites also argued against rearmament and criticized American influence in European affairs—a line of criticism which conforms exactly to the pattern of Soviet demands at the recent Paris conference of the four deputy foreign ministers.

This is not to say that there is involved any disloyalty or any direct connection between the labor government's "left wing" and the Soviets. It does mean, however, that the Communists, by boring from within the "left wing," have managed in their insidious way to create a political force that constantly scares the labor government and keeps it from carrying on the kind of cooperation with the United States which was characteristic of the Anglo-American team in wartime.

The British government under Winston Churchill did not hesitate to put ideological considerations aside and cooperate with the Red Army when Hitler attacked Russia in June, 1941. Hence, it is difficult to understand why any ideological sentiments now should play a part in causing British policy to frown on Spanish-American military cooperation.

From the American viewpoint, the alliance with Spain is vital. If, for instance, Russia succeeds in developing a spirit of "neutralism" in England and France so that the will to fight in those countries is weakened, the United States might find naval and air bases in Spain absolutely essential to protect Europe. A set of bases in Spain, as an alternative to bases in Britain or France, is just a simple military precaution.

If ideology were to be a factor, then Britain and France and the United States logically should not now be giving aid to Tito in Yugoslavia. For the government there is still Communist by doctrine but anti-Moscow for practical reasons of defense.

The attitude here is to look at military defense questions from a practical standpoint. Spain's help is needed. So is the help of Turkey and of Greece. The protection of the Mediterranean is now an American responsibility. The United States Navy has a sizeable force there, primarily because Great Britain has not had the money to increase her fleet.

Natural Selection

Admiral Sherman is intimately acquainted with Mediterranean problems, having been in command there before he came to Washington as chief of naval operations. It was natural for the Joint Chiefs to delegate Admiral Sherman to explore the military situation with Spain and other countries on the shores of the Mediterranean.

The American people have been very patient with the vagaries of London policy, which succeeded in preventing the exercise of military power in normal fashion in Korea, resulting in heavy American casualties. The argument of Britain's Labor government was that this might provoke Russia to war. Now the British argument is that to get aid from Spain will assist Communist propaganda. That idea has been worn threadbare. If the Allies to forego proper methods of protection just because they might hear unpleasant blasts on the Moscow radio, then indeed a counsel of timidity has superseded policies of safety and common sense.

Again, however, it would be a mistake to indict Great Britain or France for the behavior of their "left wing" groups. The most salutary development that could occur in England would be for the British Conservatives now to align themselves on the side of those in the Labor party who do not propose to allow the military defense policy of the Allies to be weakened by fear of Russian propaganda. In trying times bipartisanship in foreign policy is as important in Britain as it is in America.

Veterans Benefits

World War II veterans, with few exceptions will lose the right to educational benefits of the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944—the GI Bill—unless they are actually enrolled in school on July 25. The act had provided that training under its provisions must have begun by four years after the end of World War II or four years after discharge—whichever was later. For purposes of the GI Bill, the termination of the war was fixed by later legislation at July 25, 1947.

Exceptions will be made, primarily for medical students who received their pre-medical education under the GI Bill and have been unable to obtain admission to medical schools; teachers working toward a degree who can attend school only in summer vacations; veterans who had begun school only to be recalled or to volunteer for active duty. Again with some exceptions, all schooling is to be completed by July 25, 1956.

In the seven years of the GI Bill program thus far completed—the bill was signed by President Roosevelt on June 22, 1944—the Veterans Administration has paid out more than $12 billion for tuition, subsistence allowances, supplies, training equipment. Some 7,500,000 veterans—about half of those who served in World War II—have taken some form of training in schools, on the job, or on farms.

Over $8 billion has gone to veterans in subsistence allowances. Schools have received $4 billion for tuition and expenses.

The VA had paid more than $3.2 billion in allowances to unemployed and self-employed veterans. Only a few veterans are still eligible for such allowances. The VA has guaranteed half the amount of loans totaling about $15.2 billion for homes, farms, and businesses. The loan program will extend to July 25, 1957.

To protect the GI Bill program from abuse, Congress had adopted amending legislation: (in 1946) to limit on-the-job training benefits to veterans earning $3,000 a year or less; (in 1948) to require veterans to show that courses taken in schools would aid them vocationally; (in 1949) to limit enrollment to schools which had been established for at least a year; (in 1950) to establish minimum standards for vocational training schools.

Nevertheless, the Teague subcommittee has uncovered abuses in the administration of the program and in various schools training veterans. Spokesmen for the subcommittee cite one ruling of a VA regional office which was reversed successively by the VA central office, the solicitor, the administrator. In Pennsylvania, 60 schools were closed as a result of hearings in Philadelphia and Harrisburg. And the subcommittee discovered that in Texas 56 schools training veterans were owned or operated by former VA employes.

Bail For Communists

All in a tangle is the legal issue of bail for 15 of the 21 "second-string" Communist leaders indicted in New York for conspiring to teach the forcible overthrow of the Government. Two of the 21 had furnished bail from a satisfactory source. The remaining four defendants have yet to be picked up.

The question to be decided: Was the Civil Rights Congress a proper bail provider for the 15? Trustees of the bail fund of this body had refused to tell where the money came from—and thereupon brought up the question of bail for themselves when jailed for contempt of court. The Eighth Amendment in forbidding excessive bail seems to imply the right of bail without specifying it.

The institution of bail (or bailment) grew up to protect both sides in a criminal prosecution. The accused would not have to stay in jail until tried (often, of course, to be found innocent), and the prosecution would have some guaranty that he would appear for trial.

The practice of bail is admittedly unsatisfactory in many jurisdictions. A poor and friendless defendant may find much more difficulty in procuring bail than a rich and influential one. Sometimes the same piece of property is accepted as surety for a score of different persons; sometimes the surety is not automatically forfeited when the bailed person "takes a powder."

And there is no agreement on the point at which the bail requirement in a particular case ceases to be merely effective and begins to be excessive. The $25,000 bail fixed for William D. ("Bill Big") Haywood, one of the IWW leaders found guilty in 1918 of wartime sedition, failed to keep him from skipping off to Russia in disguise while his case was under review. Gerhard Eisler, Communist, was under $23,500 bail when he skipped out in 1949. Bail of $20,000 had been put up by the Civil Rights Congress for each of the four "first-string" Communist leaders who cannot be found to begin their five-year sentences.

Rampaging Rivers

The floods of catastrophic proportions which have ravaged Western Missouri and Eastern Kansas have, as was inevitable, inspired proposals for vast flood control projects, to be financed by the federal government. To prevent floods of the type which inundated this vast area would entail expenditures of many billions of dollars.

Not since 1844 has the stricken section undergone comparable flood catastrophe, and in that year there were few whites in the area. Reconstruction and rehabilitation will be a slow and costly process. Hundreds of thousands of persons will be compelled to make good their own losses as best they can.

Meteorologists are unable to explain occurrences such as this. July rains are seldom of flood proportions in the inundated territory, yet here is an entire countryside turned into a vast lake and a hundred cities and towns flooded. This holocaust was not caused by lack of flood prevention projects. A similar freak of nature could manifest itself anywhere.

Accurate figures on the total losses suffered by the million inhabitants of the area can never be known. But the billion-dollar figure which has been mentioned may prove conservative.

The Chronic Complainer

Victims of hydochondriasis have marked anxiety about their health. They have complaints galore and when relieved of one are likely to develop another. The majority do not enjoy bad health but are abnormally concerned with everything that has to do with their physical being. A fleeting ache makes them think of cancer and a skipped heart beat means coronary thrombosis.

The slightest inference by a physician that the condition is caused by nerves makes the patient antagonistic and critical. Unless treated sympathetically patients shop from one physician to another and they are always fair game for quacks. Their bathroom cabinets contain enough medicine to start a drug store but the remedies seldom work because these individuals have no disease that drugs can touch.

Hypochondriacs come in all ages and men are bothered just as much as women. The multiplicity of the complaints makes it necessary for some to write them down and hand the list to the physician: "It hurts on this side of the head all of the time, my neck is sore, and when I lift my right leg something feels tight in the knee. I am worried, nervous, haven't slept for a week, and have the craziest dreams. My teeth hurt and food never digests in my stomach even when I take yogurt but I'm more worried about my heart, which is giving me trouble." These organ recitals tax the ingenuity of the best physicians because the condition is baffling and the cause unidentified. Furthermore, the victim is incapacitated even tho he passes a physical examination.

Most physicians worry lest the patient will some day develop an organic disturbance that will go undetected, as in the case of the boy who cried wolf. Some hypochondriacs have definite abnormalities in addition to their long list of complaints. After all, a certain percentage is bound to have high blood pressure and older men and women develop arterio-sclerosis, arthritis, cataracts, and various other degenerative disturbances. These disorders complicate the picture because medical men have found it difficult to determine the validity of the symptoms. Is palpitation traceable to heart trouble or is it part of the hypochondriasis?

The bizarre symptoms always are out of proportion to the physical condition of the individuals. It is the penalty they pay for having en emotional temperament. Anxiety reigns and manifests itself in terms of aches and pains, a feeling of being rundown, tired, nervous, and depressed. They have had more than their share of trouble, chiefly because they are unable to handle adversities; this tends to increase their difficulties, which in turn makes them more frustrated and dejected. They lack security and become more and more helpless.

In neurasthenia, an allied condition, the accent is more on fatigue (mental and physical), muscular weakness, headaches, inability to concentrate, and sleeplessness. The hypochondriac is inclined to center his attention on one or more of his organs but there is no sharp delineation between these two types of neuroses.

TELESCOPED BOWEL

Mrs. C. writes: I have heard of a child who was operated on for intussusception. What is the nature of his disorder?

REPLY

In this condition, a portion of the intestine telescopes into itself. The blood supply to the fold on the inside is disturbed and the tissues swell to such an extent that the bowel becomes obstructed. The remedy is surgery.

INFLAMED UVULA

H. T. writes: Would an infected uvula be more likely to originate from germs in the air or an infection in the body?

REPLY

In the majority of cases inflammation of the uvula is associated with the common cold. Hence the organisms would come from without.

BLEEDING CAPILLARY

G. R. writes: How long does it take to heal a ruptured vessel in the nose caused by blowing too hard?

REPLY

Bleeding stops when a clot develops but days may elapse before the capillary heals completely.

COLON CANCER

A. C. writes: I have heard that it is not advisable to have piles removed after the age of 65 because cancer is likely to follow such an operation. Is this true?

REPLY

No. Most individuals past 50 have hemorrhoids but in the majority there are no symptoms. If bleeding occurs, however, it may be incorrectly attributed to hemorrhoids. Unless a careful examination is done, the physician may overlook a co-existing malignancy.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Senatorial Courtesy Helped Kansas Flood; Truman's Policy On Natural Gas Undercut; Federal Power Commission Puts Vetoed Kerr Bill Into Force

WASHINGTON — Part of the damage suffered by the people of Kansas in the current flood would have been avoided but for the custom of senatorial courtesy.

Thirteen years ago, Congress passed a bill authorizing a 22,000-acre reservoir on Tuttle Creek, north of Manhattan, Kansas. It was proposed by the Army Engineers as a means of controlling the floods which have swept Eastern Kansas periodically.

However, the dam was never built—for the reason that the money never was voted by Congress. Although authorized, it was never voted because one of the late Republican senators from Kansas, Clyde Reed, objected. Every time the appropriation came up for the Tuttle Creek reservoir, Senator Reed turned thumbs down, and under the system of senatorial courtesy he had the final say.

Frank Carlson, now a GOP senator from Kansas, was then a congressman and did his best to obtain passage of the appropriation. Later, as governor, Frank Carlson also tried to push the Tuttle Creek reservoir through. But Senator Reed had some friends in that area who owned farming land which would have been taken over by the proposed reservoir. Unfortunately, he put their interest ahead of the interest of the rest of the people of Eastern Kansas.

Now lives have been lost and millions of dollars worth of property ruined in a flood which could have been partly controlled if the Army Engineers' plan had been followed.

Why Truman Can't Win

An unpublicized incident occurred in the Federal Power Commission recently which illustrates why Harry Truman is almost certain not to be elected president of the United States even if he chooses to run.

The incident involved a poker-playing crony of the President's, ex-Sen. Mon Wallgren, who deliberately cut his chief's throat.

This has become a favorite pattern in Washington. The White House outlines a policy, frequently a fine and courageous policy. Then the President appoints men who throw that policy in the ditch. That's why the Truman Administration is being called the "talk-big-do-little" administration.

This was what he did on one of the most important battles he has waged in the past year—his veto of the Kerr Natural Gas Bill. The bill was authored by a friend of his, powerful, popular Sen. Bob Kerr of Oklahoma. But it would have boosted the price of gas to city populations everywhere, and also boosted the profits of the oil and gas companies. So Truman vetoed it.

Yet, believes it or not, the Federal power Commission has now secretly overruled the President's policy and completely nullified his veto.

What the Kerr Bill said was that the Federal Power Commission did not have jurisdiction to regulate the price of natural gas going into interstate pipelines. The President, overruling the Kerr Bill, said the power commission did have jurisdiction.

Secret Vote

But, by a secret 4-to-1 vote, the FPC has now decided not to take jurisdiction over the biggest producer of natural gas, Phillips Petroleum, thus directly reversing the President and giving the oil and gas moguls their greatest victory in years.

Incidentally, housewives in the cities of the North, Midwest and Southwest can look for hikes in the price of their gas very shortly.

Significantly also—Senator Kerr is one of the biggest suppliers of natural gas to Phillips Petroleum. He owns several leases in partnership with Phillips, while his Kerr-McGee Oil Company owns an estimated $100,000,000 in natural gas reserves. His gross income of $12,000,000 a year makes him the wealthiest man in the Senate.

Truman's Crony

Most amazing thing about the Federal Power Commission debate was the way the President's poker-playing crony, Chairman Mon Wallgren, actually broke into the final arguments of the attorneys defending the public to quote excerpts from the Kerr Bill.

"I want to hear something about what Congress thought," Wallgren explained, as he quoted from the bill which his chief in the White House had vetoed.

At one point, Wallgren nearly got into a brawl with James H. Lee, Detroit attorney, who was arguing for the public. Wallgren shouted accusations across the hearing room, charging that local utility commissions shirked their duties. The argument got so hot that Lee started toward the commission bench, and Wellgren pushed back his chair ready for action. However, aged Commissioner Claude Draper headed Lee off by dashing out from behind the bench and planting himself in front of Lee.

Wallgren also baited William Torkelson, counsel for the Wisconsin Public Service Commission. In fact, the FPC chairman seemed to go out of his way to undercut the man in the White House who appointed him. One of Wallgren's tactics was to bombard pro-consumer lawyers with so many questions that they didn't have time to sum up their arguments. For example, FPC Attorney Lambert McAllister was limited to two hours to present the public's case. Yet Wallgren hurled so many irrelevant questions at him that McAllister never finished his presentation.

Finally, Commissioner Thomas Buchanan blurted angrily: "Don't you think we might have a little more argument from counsel?"

An Old Man Gets Tired

One day, following these oral arguments, Wallgren called a surprise closed-door meeting to decide the Phillips case. Staff members could hardly believe it when the motion to rule in favor of Phillips and reverse the President's policy was offered by Commissioner Draper, the man who had battled tooth-and-nail against the Kerr Bill only a year ago.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Dignified Strength

In the Orient, strength is always understood; it is respected if accompanied by the rare quality of natural dignity. The so-called practical man, who knows that the shortest distance between two points is a straight line, often wonders why when he reaches his goal, there is no one there to deal with. The practical man, as he calls himself, usually omits what he likes to regard as emotional factors. The Oriental does not necessarily stand in the way of the oncoming speeder; he steps aside to wait for a calmer approach. He knows that neither speed nor reason is the sole concomitant of any situation.

This lesson has apparently now been learned by the government of the United States. It has ben a costly lesson, costly in lives and in wealth. But if it has truly been absorbed by those who make policy decisions in Washington, then we are on the way to doing something not only about the Korean situation but about all Far Eastern questions.

From a Far Eastern standpoint, this is the way the situation stands:

1. The Russians intervened to achieve peace;

2. The Americans hastily jumped at the suggestion because they were in a hurry to get out of a stalemated war;

3. The Chinese and Korean Communists took their time, made their own terms, carried them out, and the Americans accepted the Sino-Korean formula;

4. The Americans walked into Kaesong and discovered that they were receiving unequal treatment, that an effort was being made to establish that they (the Americans) were suing for peace;

5. The American newspapermen and photographers broke through military censorship and got the story to the American people who were outraged by the conduct of their military officials;

6. The United States, showing dignified strength, then retired from the Kaesong conference and rejected the idea of unequal treatment;

7. The Sino-Koreans retreated from their position and accepted the American terms "in principle." Ultimately, they accepted them in fact.

There is the pattern of a lesson which every Oriental knows since childhood. Dignified strength is like a stone wall. If you bang your head against it, you can break your head, but you are not likely to knock down the stone wall.

In the Western world, we call much of this "standing by your principles," or "standing by your guns." But what we call "practical and reasonable men" feel generally that it is best — they might put it, "cheapest in the end" — to compromise, to find what the lawyers call "a meeting of the minds."

In the Orient, all this is bad practice, and the point must be made that Stalin is an Oriental, the same as Mao Tze-tung. To such persons, over-anxiety and compromise represent undignified weakness. Over-anxiety is undignified; an eager compromise is weakness. Before a compromise is reached, each side must stand stock-still and swear on all that is holy, including the grave of his father, that he will not give an inch. This must be repeated, with a deep sense of outrage, two or three times. Then somehow, out of a welter of many words and loud speech, a little break appears.

This break must not indicate weakness, retreat, fear. It must be done in a superior manner. At that point, the party of the second part should do the same. Here commences the real negotiation which comes down to this: How can we best get out of the mess we are both in without "losing face?"

In the days when such negotiations were my daily fare, I went through this sort of thing with endless constancy. Nothing in those days was more sporting than watching Chinese and Japanese experts handle this game. They managed to keep out of war for a fairly long time under trying circumstances by endless negotiation and conference on a variety of subjects. These talks also include a vast number of heavy parties in both countries with geisha and singsong girls and enormous quantities of lukewarm rice wine. At such festivities no direct negotiations took place, but a word was said here and there which led to a conclusion.

Then a Japanese, General Kenji Doihara, lost his temper, lost his dignity, became practical and on September 18, 1931, he started war on China. Japan won that war but lost everything else and is now a dependent country.

Things happen like that in history when there is no dignified strength. And here endeth the lesson.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH And STEWART ALSOP

British Big Bang

WASHINGTON

The British will quite soon be ready to explode their first atomic bomb. The timing depends in part on what is done in this country. But the chances are that the first British atomic test will take place within a matter of months, almost certainly within the coming year. This is, of course, a matter of the highest importance. For one thing, it goes right to the heart of the Anglo-American relationship.

For the explosion of a British bomb will be, in a sense, a measure of the partial failure of the Anglo-American partnership. This is so for several reasons. Although the British technicians now know in detail how to make the bomb, it will be extremely costly to clear the final technological hurdles, and then to stage the test, probably in Australia. And this heavy charge on the British economy comes at a time when the British rearmament effort is already straining British finances to the breaking point.

Moreover, the fact is that the British do not now have the resources to build either a really decisive stockpile of bombs, or the planes to carry bombs in important numbers to Soviet targets. The newly designed British medium bomber, the B-9, is an excellent plane, perhaps even superior in performance to our own B-47. But this plane is still in the prototype stage, and even when in production, it will be hand-tooled, rather than mass-produced.

Costly Gesture

Thus for the British to test a bomb which cannot either be made or delivered in quantity amounts to a very costly psychological gesture. Yet the gesture is almost certain to be made. This is so partly because an independent British atomic test should have an important effect on the British themselves. More and more, the British are being persuaded that their island has been transformed into a mere "Air Strip One" for the Americans, and the proof of independent British atomic power should do much to dispel this illusion.

A British atomic test should also help to remind the Soviets that Britain is still a great power. But above all, the explosion of a British atomic bomb should impress the Congress of the United States. And this is certainly a main reason why the all-out effort to produce a British bomb is now in prospect.

What the British really want, of course, is an atomic working partnership with the United States—full participation, on a kind of non-producing basis, in the American atomic program. This is, in fact, what the best of the American policy makers also want. For what is not understood, either in Congress or the country, is that this matter of an atomic partnership with the British is by no means one-sided.

The recent, irresponsible revelation that the United States now has only 87 operational B-36 bombers should serve to underline this fact. The B-36 is the only bomber capable of reaching important Soviet targets from American bases. Eighty-seven planes—or 200—could not possibly serve as an effective deterrent against Soviet aggression, especially in view of the rapidly maturing Soviet air defense.

Plans Knocked Out

The plain fact is that the capacity to deliver the American atomic stockpile now squarely depends on overseas bases controlled by the French, and above all by the British. The further fact is that the only decisive American weapon could be nullified "by a single telephone call," to quote on knowledgeable American airman. For if, in some future crisis, the British government notified this government that American bombers could not use British bases, the French would surely follow suit. Thus the central factor in American military power could be eliminated at a stroke.

It is because it is the only insurance against this happening that our own policy makers want a working Anglo-American atomic partnership. But this would require legislation—specifically, revision of the McMahon Act. There have been repeated conversations about changing the act. Atomic Energy Committee Chairman Brien McMahon himself understands the need for revision. But every time plans have proceeded to the point where legislation was about to be introduced, there has been a Fuchs scandal, or a Pontecorvo scandal, or a Burgess-McLean scandal, and the plans have been hastily dropped.

The recent Burgess-McLean defection, in fact, knocked into a cocked hat carefully laid plans for an Anglo-American atomic partnership. And now the only way out, apparently, is for the British to make the costly and basically unnecessary effort to produce atomic bombs independently. The Congress will presumably be far less reluctant to permit an atomic partnership if the prospective partner has shown the capacity to roduce atomic bombs anyway. Moreover, British security arrangements are being firmly if belatedly tightened, and there should be no more Fuchs-Pontecorvo - Burgess - McLean betrayals.

The explosion of a British-made bomb, to be sure, should have some desirable consequences in itself. Even so, it is time this country recognized that the Anglo-American alliance, to which British bases are just as essential as American planes and bombs, is not a one-way street.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON. — America's determination to work out a military alliance with Spain is no recent decision.

Beginning when Louis Johnson was Secretary of Defense, and now under Secretary Marshall, the potential use of naval and air bases in Spain and the valuable aid of the Spanish army's many divisions have constituted a vital objective in American planning. It has always been realized, of course, that "political" factors might be an obstacle, and hence nothing has been said publicly about it.

Such apprehensions have not proved unfounded, as witness the open protests being made by the British and French governments.

If such protests became effective, it would mean that Soviet Russia, which wields nowadays a tremendous political influence inside Great Britain and France, had succeeded in applying a restraining hand on America's defense of Europe.

Follows Russian Pattern

The American people have not yet grasped the significance of the Soviet impact on British and French policy. In Britain, for example, the Bevan "left wing" manifesto the other day paralleled almost exactly the Russian demand that the United States be denied military bases overseas. The Bevanites also argued against rearmament and criticized American influence in European affairs—a line of criticism which conforms exactly to the pattern of Soviet demands at the recent Paris conference of the four deputy foreign ministers.

This is not to say that there is involved any disloyalty or any direct connection between the labor government's "left wing" and the Soviets. It does mean, however, that the Communists, by boring from within the "left wing," have managed in their insidious way to create a political force that constantly scares the labor government and keeps it from carrying on the kind of cooperation with the United States which was characteristic of the Anglo-American team in wartime.

The British government under Winston Churchill did not hesitate to put ideological considerations aside and cooperate with the Red Army when Hitler attacked Russia in June, 1941. Hence, it is difficult to understand why any ideological sentiments now should play a part in causing British policy to frown on Spanish-American military cooperation.

From the American viewpoint, the alliance with Spain is vital. If, for instance, Russia succeeds in developing a spirit of "neutralism" in England and France so that the will to fight in those countries is weakened, the United States might find naval and air bases in Spain absolutely essential to protect Europe. A set of bases in Spain, as an alternative to bases in Britain or France, is just a simple military precaution.

If ideology were to be a factor, then Britain and France and the United States logically should not now be giving aid to Tito in Yugoslavia. For the government there is still Communist by doctrine but anti-Moscow for practical reasons of defense.

The attitude here is to look at military defense questions from a practical standpoint. Spain's help is needed. So is the help of Turkey and of Greece. The protection of the Mediterranean is now an American responsibility. The United States Navy has a sizeable force there, primarily because Great Britain has not had the money to increase her fleet.

Natural Selection

Admiral Sherman is intimately acquainted with Mediterranean problems, having been in command there before he came to Washington as chief of naval operations. It was natural for the Joint Chiefs to delegate Admiral Sherman to explore the military situation with Spain and other countries on the shores of the Mediterranean.

The American people have been very patient with the vagaries of London policy, which succeeded in preventing the exercise of military power in normal fashion in Korea, resulting in heavy American casualties. The argument of Britain's Labor government was that this might provoke Russia to war. Now the British argument is that to get aid from Spain will assist Communist propaganda. That idea has been worn threadbare. If the Allies to forego proper methods of protection just because they might hear unpleasant blasts on the Moscow radio, then indeed a counsel of timidity has superseded policies of safety and common sense.

Again, however, it would be a mistake to indict Great Britain or France for the behavior of their "left wing" groups. The most salutary development that could occur in England would be for the British Conservatives now to align themselves on the side of those in the Labor party who do not propose to allow the military defense policy of the Allies to be weakened by fear of Russian propaganda. In trying times bipartisanship in foreign policy is as important in Britain as it is in America.

Man And Woman Hurt When Bus And Car Crash

Two persons were hurt early yesterday when an automobile and Amcelle-bound bus of the Cumberland Transit Lines collided at the intersection of Baltimore and Centre Streets.

Admitted to Allegany Hospital for X-rays were Lucille Flanigan, 30, and Bartlett Cottrill, Jr., 18, of Route 3, Keyser, W. Va., both passengers in the car. The woman complained of pain in the kidney region and Cottrill had facial lacerations and possible head injuries.

Police identified Raymond C. Flanigan, 30, also of Route 3, Keyser, as driver of the 1937 coach involved in the crash at 6:25 a. m. The bus operator was George Fisher Cunningham, 30, of 11 Turner Street. Both escaped injury.

Officer Charles E. Cubbage's report said the bus was traveling west on Baltimore Street when it crashed broadside against the car, headed north on Centre Street. Traffic lights were not in operation at the time.

As the bus reached the intersection, police stated, the car failed to stop and continued across the street at about 25 miles per hour. The impact carried the automobile 10 feet.

All three occupants of the car were riding in the front seat with the Flanigan woman seated in the middle. Damage to the vehicle, owned by Cottrill, was estimated at $300. The front of the bus was damaged.

Flanigan will be given a hearing Friday on a charge of failing to give the right of way. No charge was filed against Cunningham.

Pathologists Inspect Diseased White Oak Trees In This Area

Three pathologists are visiting Western Maryland to inspect several areas where white oak trees are dying.

William H. Johnson, district forester in charge of the four western counties of the state, said the trio spent last night at Green Ridge Camp.

They are Dr. W. F. Jeffers, pathologist at the University of Maryland; R. D. Van Duesen, biologist for the State Department of Research and Education from the Solomons Island laboratory, and Dr. Curtis May, of the University of Maryland.

They were accompanied here by Adna R. Bond, of Annapolis, assistant state forester. The men will inspect the sporadic areas of infestation in Allegany and Garrett counties.

Johnson said the spread of the disease is not too great and does not constitute any great problem.

The experts will also check the status of American Chestnut tree and also several plantings of Asiatic chestnut trees.

American chestnuts on the east coast were destroyed by a blight that was introduced into this country from Asia. The Asiatic chestnut trees are supposed to be blight resistant and are being planted in spots to determine the possibility of restoring these trees in the east.

Johnson said that from the roots of dead chestnut trees, sprouts grow to about ten feet in height, but then the fungus attacks them and destroys the tree.

type phenomenon occurs in the year of our Lord 1951 to change that theory," North shouted.

Except for Kimble's reference to an executive right to veto, none at the meeting in Wicomico High School defended McKendin's rejection of the pay raise.

Enough Money cited

Senator Phoebus (R-Somerset) predicted "when the proper time comes," the Governor may come up with a better measure.

House Speaker Luber (D-Balto-5th) said he was "convinced, now as then, that there is enough money in the state treasury" to boost salaries without new taxes. Luber and Senate Majority Leader Goldstein (D-Calvert) round out the council committee.

Goldstein announced its objective was to sound out public opinion on the county-state conflict over financing.

Spokesmen for each county declared most places on the Eastern Shore have too small a tax base to produce all the money necessary. They raised these main objections:

(1) Since wealthier counties can offer more from their own resources one is bidding against the other for the best teachers — and teachers are shopping around for the best jobs.

(2) Property owners on the Shore will have to stand all the expense because counties in this section have no other broad source of revenue.

Senator Turner (D-Queen Anne's) suggested the committe look into the division of sales tax receipts. That levy was "tacked on the coattail of public education" when adopted in 1947, Turner said.

Without better salaries, teachers will either quit in droves or "out of desperation join labor unions, something they don't want to do," said Mrs. Idella Seutter Von Loetzen. She heads the Somerset County Teachers Asspciation.

Railroad Seeks Certificate Bids

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad has issued a request for bids on a proposed issue of $7,755,000 principal amount of equipment trust certificates to finance up to 80 per cent of the net cost of 2,000 new 50-ton steel hopper cars, subject to the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The invitations have been sent to a list of 120 prospective bidders. The certificates will be designated as Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Equipment Trust Certificates, Series CC, dated as of September 1, 1951, and they will mature in 15 equal installments of $517,000 each, on September 1, 1952, and on the first day of September in each year thereafter, to and including September 1, 1966.

The certificates are being issued to finance not exceeding 80 per cent of the net cost of 1,000 fifty-ton steel hopper cars to be built by the American Car and Foundry Company, and 1,000 of the same type car to be built by the Bethlehem Steel Company. The total estimated cost of the equipment is $9,700,000.

Keyser Mayor Plans Crackdown On Speeders

Chief Martin To Alert Force

KEYSER, W. Va. — A crackdown on automobile speeding within Keyser has been promised by Mayor Chester J. Compton, who reports that he has instructed Police Chief Claude Martin to alert members of the department.

Danger Line

At Tuesday night's City Council meeting Mayor Compton said the city was fortunate in having no fatal accidents recently, but stressed that speeding has reached the danger line and must be curbed.

Changes in the police department rules to provide for better cooperation between the force and the public also are being considered by the new mayor. A system similar to one used by West Virginia State Police will be adopted.

Mayor Compton also broached to the councilmen a proposal for the establishment of a planning commission of public spirited citizens to make recommendations for improvement of the community.

Oppose Curb

Council voted to send resolutions opposing curtailment of passenger service on the Western Maryland Railway. One resolution was ordered sent to the Maryland Public Service Commission protesting the railroad's proposed elimination of an agent stop station at McCoole, Md. A second went to the West Virginia Public Service Commission to oppose the railroad's plea for abandonment of rail service to Elkins.

Other action included permission for parking on the west side of A Street from St. Cloud Street south, payment of $375 expenses of four Keyser firemen to the annual Firemen's School at West Virginia University. The question of creating a school zone on South Main Street because of the opening of a new A&P Market was referred to the mayor.

The roll call of members will be answered by a scripture verse from the Bible, and during the business session members will contribute helpful hints on the subject, "Fair and Exhibits."

The regular dues and Blue Cross payment will be received at this meeting. All members are asked to attend.

Keyser Mayor Plans Crackdown On Speeders

Chief Martin To Alert Force

KEYSER, W. Va. — A crackdown on automobile speeding within Keyser has been promised by Mayor Chester J. Compton, who reports that he has instructed Police Chief Claude Martin to alert members of the department.

Danger Line

At Tuesday night's City Council meeting Mayor Compton said the city was fortunate in having no fatal accidents recently, but stressed that speeding has reached the danger line and must be curbed.

Changes in the police department rules to provide for better cooperation between the force and the public also are being considered by the new mayor. A system similar to one used by West Virginia State Police will be adopted.

Mayor Compton also broached to the councilmen a proposal for the establishment of a planning commission of public spirited citizens to make recommendations for improvement of the community.

Oppose Curb

Council voted to send resolutions opposing curtailment of passenger service on the Western Maryland Railway. One resolution was ordered sent to the Maryland Public Service Commission protesting the railroad's proposed elimination of an agent stop station at McCoole, Md. A second went to the West Virginia Public Service Commission to oppose the railroad's plea for abandonment of rail service to Elkins.

Other action included permission for parking on the west side of A Street from St. Cloud Street south, payment of $375 expenses of four Keyser firemen to the annual Firemen's School at West Virginia University. The question of creating a school zone on South Main Street because of the opening of a new A&P Market was referred to the mayor.

Homemakers Plan Stork Shower

FROSTBURG — The Midlothian Homemakers Club will meet this evening at the home of Mrs. Alex Middleton with Mrs. Henry F. Barnes as co-hostess, and Mrs. Blaine Willetts presiding.

A feature social event of the meeting will be a stork shower in compliment to Mrs. Robert Lancaster, a member of the group.

The roll call of members will be answered by a scripture verse from the Bible, and during the business session members will contribute helpful hints on the subject, "Fair and Exhibits."

The regular dues and Blue Cross payment will be received at this meeting. All members are asked to attend.

Washington Whirl

By AUSTINE

Other women have plunged into politics and even caused a big splash in the Congressional swim. . . . But few have paddled as consistently in the same direction. . . . Or won as many races as Edith Nourse Rogers. . . . When she was first elected to Congress from Massachusetts, few women had made a dent in the male-dominated House of Representatives. . . . So the pull upstream was not easy.

Since her first election, and for years before that, she has interested herself in the welfare of America's war veterans. . . . Though she has keen political sense, this fluffy white-haired Lady Legislator, who looks rather like a Helen Hokinson clubwoman, has not championed veterans because of "politics." . . . Her concern for them is sincere. . . . And the legislation introduced on their behalf has made them nickname her "The Veterans' God Mother." . . . Her bubbling, fervent patriotism has always been genuine to the tips of her capable fingers.

—AUSTINE

Boys With Hopes

By REPRESENTATIVE EDITH NOURSE ROGERS

Not all the social life in Washington takes place in the Sulgrave Club, the drawing rooms of Embassy Row, or the sleek gardens at Georgetown. For instance, a visit to Wards 33, 34 and 35 at Walter Reed Hospital yields a padful of notes about the goings-on of Army amputees . . . men who are rapidly making the adjustment, with a friendly life here and there, to normal civilian life. For most of them. that means marriage . . . a home . . . a job . . . the same hopes and aspirations as every other American.

Rep. Rogers

Take Sergeant Dick Lambert, 19, of Middletown, Del., who lost both feet and one hand in Korea. On a recent 25-day furlough he was married to his long-time sweetheart, Louise Sanborn, of Newark, Del. He's Delaware's first triple amputee so the VFW is raising the money to buy them a poultry farm. (Dick likes eggs but can't stand chicken). One more operation on each leg, and then it's back to Delaware and that farm. Dick learned to write with his left hand in 20 minutes and will catch on to the poultry business almost just as fast.

Pfc. Ray Vaillancourt, Jr., 20, of East Weymouth, Mass., can't wait to hit the road again as a hardware salesman like his dad. He says, "I can make my own future, selling" . . . a future that also includes his fiancee, Ann Cushing of Weymouth. Ray lost a leg in an accidental shooting in Germany . . . is rooting hard for the bill providing free cars for amputees.

Pfc. Charlie Manson, 20, of Minneapolis is studying cooking-school catalogs so he can open a restaurant. He was an Army cook for two years before going to Korea as a rifleman . . . says, "You can't run a restaurant on Army cooking" . . . He has only one complaint, though, about Water Reed food: "Too much roast beef."

His friends don't know it yet but Corp. Gary Bender, 20, of Schoharie, New York, a double amputee, is "unofficially engaged" to the chestnut-haired beauty who'll be visiting him shortly . . .

Bob Smith, 20, of Middleburg, Pa., who left both hands and both feet is Korea, is going to shave off the Clark Gable-ish mustache that took four months to raise. The nurses think it's cute but Bob's mother doesn't.

Red-haired Ray McNeil, 21, is having a private race with Tex Stepan to see who'll be first to walk on artificial legs. A machine gun took Red's right leg and frostbite took his fingers. Incidentally, he's still being ribbed about his "escape" from matrimony on a recent furlough. He was half-way to a marrying parson in Elkton, Md., before calling the whole thing off, for a while at least. Red is all set to be a meat salesman . . . says, "I couldn't work inside."

Corp. George Brown, 30, of Danville, Va., is counting on a discharge this summer after being in Army hospitals ever since he was hit in Germany seven years ago. He's going to move his wife and three children down to Augusta, Ga., and enter the dairy business with another veteran . . . Says that business there is booming because of the H-bomb plant construction.

Another eager small businessman is Pfc. Armond Herndon, 23, of Jamaica, Long Island. He was once a waiter . . . lost his right foot in Korea . . . plans to open a grill with his dad. He'll look over some potential spots while on a 30-day leave . . . on any time that's left over after seeing his childhood sweetheart.

One evening not long ago, just before lights went out, a bull session about the future was petering out. Harvey Hopkins, a husky 23-year-old corporal from Plant City, Fla., who lost an arm in Korea, spoke up . . . "I think I'll stay in the Army. Maybe I can teach something to the young kids coming in. When they see I have something missing, I think they'll listen."

The other men nodded. They too were thinking of tomorrow—of how to make it a better, happier, more secure tomorrow. In a few minutes they went back to their beds, and then there was darkness and quiet.

Downtown in Washington a party for a visiting dignitary was just beginning to roll.

Humming is an effortless charm booster! Use it to improve your morale, voice and speech at one time!

SECRETS OF CHARM

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

When it's too hot to care, give your spirits and your charm an effortless booster—hum for ten minutes! As an old proverb says, "Don't hum just when you feel like it, but until you feel like it."

Besides giving you new dash, you will gain in head resonance, a quality that adds music and carrying power to your voice. Humming is actually a music lesson for your speech in another way, too, because it improves the sound of your "m", "n", and "ng", giving them a melodious tone, and a lilt to the words containing them.

Polishing Your Speech

If you are careless about such sounds, your speech cannot sound polished. Exploding your "ng" sound until the word "sing" sounds like "singg" and the word "running" becomes "runninggh" is not only incorrect but very harsh to the ear. An even more common fault is omitting the "g" entirely so that "sing" sounds like "sin" and "running" like "runnin", which is a decidedly slovenly habit.

To form the "ng" sound correctly, lift the back of your tongue to the soft palate. Try it now as you say "singing" aloud. Notice how the breath and sound are forced out through your nose with a humming tone. Now drop your tongue and say "running." The first sound has a pleasant tone but the latter one is flat and harsh.

Making Your Words Sing

You can quickly eliminate flat, harsh, explosive sounds from your speech and increase the melody of your voice and words, if you are faithful about practicing the following list of words with your tongue held to your palate; Bang, doing, eating, going, hung, hang, wing ringing, stinging, longing, writing, among us, running in, walking out.

And don't foret to hum a bit each day—soon your voice will take on the qualities of a lively, cheerful, bouyant song. What a delightful change that will be from what falls on most ears too much of the time!

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

HEADQUARTERS, U. S. Third Air Force, Eng., July 18—(INS)—We have gotten the dirty end of the stick so often in our dealings with our military allies that it is a pleasure to report that the reverse is true so far as our air operation in England is concerned.

There are occasional grumblings in Commons about the presence of American bombers and fighters in England. Even Mr. Churchill has wondered aloud if this was a proper step for the Labor Government to take. The anti-American ex-Cabinet officer "Nve" Bevan has been blunter. He, and a few other Socialists, have suggested that the government demand the right to veto any attempt on the part of the Americans to fly A-bombs out of England, in the event of war.

Bevan's point is that Russia would retaliate by dropping A-bombs on England.

But despite these sideline grumblings the British government has every intention of living up to the bargain it made with us in 1948. Astonishingly, it is a deal which involves very little written matter. It is as close to a gentleman's agreement, via handshake, as anything we've ever done in conjunction with another country.

By the end of this year we'll have enough modern airdromes in England to launch a paralyzing A-bomb attack on Russia, if she strikes first. Half a dozen fields of World War II vintage have been modified to house the B-50 and three or four more are in the process of getting longer strips, bigger hangars, more modern housing.

At all of our fields there will be at least one strip long enough to receive the 10-engined B-36, but it is not planned to quarter that monstrous affair in England. It could fly from U. S. bases to any potential enemy target on earth and, thanks to remarkable recent strides made in aerial refueling, get back.

There is no termination clause or understanding in our agreement with the British. The expansion of the fields is strictly 50-50. We supply the know-how and certain heavy equipment, such as earth-movers. The British supply the materials and a great deal of the labor.

Our fliers and ground personnel are rotated on a three-month schedule, with U. S. fields serving as permanent home bases. During a crew's three months in England it takes a post-graduate course in flying of the type it would be called upon to deliver in the event of war.

Crews learn to work with British jets as well as our own, which are based near Dover. They are guided safely to fog-shrouded landing strips by British control tower men, and in return we are instructing the British in how to use the 70 B-29's we have turned over to them. We have even learned to call this familiar B-29 "The Washington," as does the RAF.

Our crews are given practice missions ranging far to the north—they use live bombs on Heligoland—and to the south as far as the Mediterranean countries. Over the continent they have learned to use French, Dutch and Belgium jets as cover, and to understand the language of the continent's control towers.

They are extremely careful not to create an incident, by flying too far East. Thanks to recent advances they have become wizards in mid-air refueling. It is quite feasible now for a B-50 to take off with a payload composed mainly of bombs and, when airborne, take on the gas it will need for the mission. Makes possible the carrying of a much greater bomb-load.

"Only war or a real assurance of a lasting peace will change this program," Maj. Gen. Leon W. Johnson, who won the Congressional Medal of Honor for his historic raid on the Ploesti oil fields in 1943, told us today.

"It would be nice if our country did not need allies," the intrepid fighting man added. "But we do, and it's encouraging to find one like the British have been in this agreement. They are not only dependable; they're predictabl.

"We've had our differences from time to time. That's only natural But they've all been straightened out with Man-to-Man talk. As one of them said recently, this language which unites us holds many words which we pronounce differently or give new meaning to. But the important words—like honesty, integrity and sincerity—are never misunderstood."

Washington Whirl

By AUSTINE

Other women have plunged into politics and even caused a big splash in the Congressional swim. . . . But few have paddled as consistently in the same direction. . . . Or won as many races as Edith Nourse Rogers. . . . When she was first elected to Congress from Massachusetts, few women had made a dent in the male-dominated House of Representatives. . . . So the pull upstream was not easy.

Since her first election, and for years before that, she has interested herself in the welfare of America's war veterans. . . . Though she has keen political sense, this fluffy white-haired Lady Legislator, who looks rather like a Helen Hokinson clubwoman, has not championed veterans because of "politics." . . . Her concern for them is sincere. . . . And the legislation introduced on their behalf has made them nickname her "The Veterans' God Mother." . . . Her bubbling, fervent patriotism has always been genuine to the tips of her capable fingers.

Boys With Hopes

By REPRESENTATIVE EDITH NOURSE ROGERS

Not all the social life in Washington takes place in the Sulgrave Club, the drawing rooms of Embassy Row, or the sleek gardens at Georgetown. For instance, a visit to Wards 33, 34 and 35 at Walter Reed Hospital yields a padful of notes about the goings-on of Army amputees . . . men who are rapidly making the adjustment, with a friendly life here and there, to normal civilian life. For most of them, that means marriage . . . a home . . . a job . . . the same hopes and aspirations as every other American.

Take Sergeant Dick Lambert, 19, of Middletown, Del., who lost both feet and one hand in Korea. On a recent 25-day furlough he was married to his long-time sweetheart, Louise Sanborn, of Newark, Del. He's Delaware's first triple amputee so the VFW is raising the money to buy them a poultry farm. (Dick likes eggs but can't stand chicken). One more operation on each leg, and then it's back to Delaware and that farm. Dick learned to write with his left hand in 20 minutes and will catch on to the poultry business almost just as fast.

Pfc. Ray Vaillancourt, Jr., 20, of East Weymouth, Mass., can't wait to hit the road again as a hardware salesman like his dad. He says, "I can make my own future, selling" . . . a future that also includes his fiancee, Ann Cushing of Weymouth. Ray lost a leg in an accidental shooting in Germany . . . is rooting hard for the bill providing free cars for amputees.

Pfc. Charlie Manson, 20, of Minneapolis is studying cooking-school catalogs so he can open a restaurant. He was an Army cook for two years before going to Korea as a rifleman . . . says, "You can't run a restaurant on Army cooking" . . . He has only one complaint, though, about Water Reed food: "Too much roast beef."

His friends don't know it yet but Corp. Gary Bender, 20, of Schoharie, New York, a double amputee, is "unofficially engaged" to the chestnut-haired beauty who'll be visiting him shortly . . .

Bob Smith, 20, of Middleburg, Pa., who left both hands and both feet is Korea, is going to shave off the Clark Gable-ish mustache that took four months to raise. The nurses think it's cute but Bob's mother doesn't.

Red-haired Ray McNeil, 21, is having a private race with Tex Stepan to see who'll be first to walk on artificial legs. A machine gun took Red's right leg and frostbite took his fingers. Incidentally, he's still being ribbed about his "escape" from matrimony on a recent furlough. He was half-way to a marrying parson in Elkton, Md., before calling the whole thing off, for a while at least. Red is all set to be a meat salesman . . . says, "I couldn't work inside."

Corp. George Brown, 30, of Danville, Va., is counting on a discharge this summer after being in Army hospitals ever since he was hit in Germany seven years ago. He's going to move his wife and three children down to Augusta, Ga., and enter the dairy business with another veteran . . . Says that business there is booming because of the H-bomb plant construction.

Another eager small businessman is Pfc. Armond Herndon, 23, of Jamaica, Long Island. He was once a waiter . . . lost his right foot in Korea . . . plans to open a grill with his dad. He'll look over some potential spots while on a 30-day leave . . . on any time that's left over after seeing his childhood sweetheart.

One evening not long ago, just before lights went out, a bull session about the future was petering out. Harvey Hopkins, a husky 23-year-old corporal from Plant City, Fla., who lost an arm in Korea, spoke up . . . "I think I'll stay in the Army. Maybe I can teach something to the young kids coming in. When they see I have something missing, I think they'll listen."

The other men nodded. They too were thinking of tomorrow—of how to make it a better, happier, more secure tomorrow. In a few minutes they went back to their beds, and then there was darkness and quiet.

Walcott Stops Charles, Wins Title

Jersey Joe KOs Ezzard In 7th At Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, July 18 (AP) — Jersey Joe Walcott, incredible 37-year-old Camden, N. J., pappy guy, climaxed an amazing rags to riches saga tonight to win the world heavyweight championship. He is the oldest man ever to win the title.

A smashing left hook that landed flush on Charles' jaw dropped the 29-year-old Cincinnati negro on his face with a stunning shock. Charles tried to pull himself up and was just about to make it at the count of nine when he tumbled on his back into a neutral corner.

Victory Is Upset

A 5 to 1 underdog making his fifth bid for the crown, he almost won from Joe Louis in 1947, the amazing Walcott scored one of the most stunning upsets in recent ring history — as shocking as Ray Robinson's recent defeat by Britain's Randy Turpin.

Walcott's payoff punch brought a swarm of fans storming into the ring. It was several minutes before the police could clear the invading horde.

This dazzling surprise before a whopping crowd that jammed Forbes Field, knocked out a Joe Louis-Charles match, tentatively scheduled for New York in September. Charles, however, was protected by a return match contract. He probably will meet Walcott again instead of the Louis match, and the Brown Bomber will have to wait another year for a chance.

Making the ninth defense of the crown he won by outpointing Jersey Joe at Chicago in June of 1949, Ezzard ran flush into that zinging left from the "Old Man Of The Ring."

This third match of the "series" between these rivals yanked the big crowd out of its seats with shocking speed. Instead of a champion easily spearing a persistent but over-aged challenger, there was Ezzy on the deck.

It was the first time Charles had been floored since he won the title and the second knockout loss of his career of 79 pro fights dating back to 1940.

Nobody gave Walcott much of a chance except his own followers who claimed he was robbed in his first Louis fight and both previous scraps with Charles.

You couldn't even find a solid betting price on the match, so lopsided it seemed to be. Some said it was up as high as 6½ to 1 last night.

Ending Is Sudden

Old Jersey Joe, making a career of being a challenger after 21 years in the pro ring, was spearing Charles with those head punches all night. He drew blood from the champion's mouth as early as the fourth and raised a lump under his right eye in the sixth. But there was no warning of the sudden ending. Neither fighter had been on the deck or close to it.

Older men have fought in the prize ring but none ever had won the most coveted prize of all—the heavyweight crown. Bob Fitzsimmons whipped Jim Corbett at the age of 35. Both Fitz and Jack Johnson defended at 37 but Walcott became the oldest ever to win it.

Back in the dressing room under the stands, a bewildered Charles looked at reporters with wonder in his face.

"Did they really count me out?" he said. "I kinda remember trying to get up but at the count of five or six that's all I remember.

Ez Can't Believe It

"Walcott was really in there trying, wasn't he? Gee, I can't believe it."

But believe it or not, it's as true as the Star Spangled Banner. Mr. Charles, the mustachioed gent from Cincinnati, no longer is champion. And this old "Cinderella Man" with six kids back home in Jersey follows in the line where Jack Dempsey, John L. Sullivan, Gene Tunney, and other greats trod before him.

Tonight's third of the series before an estimated 25,000 fans was the first official heavyweight title fight ever held in Pittsburgh.

A slope shouldered man with scraggly hair and a strong bony face, Walcott is supposed to give Charles a return bout within 90 days. The site and date will be talked over next week in a New York conference.

Mintz Is Suspended

As the big crowd filed out of the Pirates Ball Park, it was announced that Mintz was suspended "for action detrimental to boxing" pending an Aug. 7 hearing in Philadelphia. Commissioner John Da Grosa of Philadelphia made the announcement.

36,713 See Yanks Beat Pale Hose

Raschi, Mize Star In 5 To 1 Triumph

CHICAGO, July 18 (AP)—Before the largest Comiskey Park weekday crowd in history, 36,713, the New York Yankees today moved into a virtual tie for second-place in the American League by uncorking a late-inning rally to trim the Chicago White Sox, 5-1.

The Yankees rapped six hits in the seventh and eighth innings, including a two-run homer by Johnny Mize, to move within .0002 of a point behind the second-spot White Sox. On a game basis, however, the White Sox head the Yanks by a half-game.

Vic Raschi won his 13th game of the year although he had to quit after hurling six innings in the humid, 90-degree weather.

Chicago's only marker came on Minnie Minoso's third-inning homer, his sixth of the season.

The loser was Billy Pierce, ace of the White Sox staff. It was Pierce's seventh loss against nine wins.

EMPTY NOOSE escaped interference at the first turn, moved into short lead after going six furlongs and then drew clear in the final drive. DIXIE YANK took a short lead along the inside — but despite hard urging faltered slightly in the final drive. TO STAY made a strong challenge after going a mile but was beaten off by the top pair. MELISSA W well up in the early stages, weakened badly. SIGNAL WAY almost went down at the club house turn and was practically eliminated. GREAT HOPE made a bold challenge after five furlongs but quit under pressure. NIGHT COUNT appeared to dislike the muddy going and refused to extend himself.

MI SCANDAL well rated moved up strongly between horses entering the homestretch and won going away. HEDDY B supplanted MAMALOI for command down the back stretch from the outside but could not withstand the winners rush when the real issue came. MAMALOI had no excuses after obtaining a clear lead. JUDGE ELKINS far back in the early stages, closed well after overcoming interference soon after the start. YAZOO well up in the early running faltered badly. Walcott Stops Charles, Wins Title

Jersey Joe KOs Ezzard In 7th At Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, July 18 (AP) — Jersey Joe Walcott, incredible 37-year-old Camden, N. J., pappy guy, climaxed an amazing rags to riches saga tonight to win the world heavyweight championship. He is the oldest man ever to win the title.

A smashing left hook that landed flush on Charles' jaw dropped the 29-year-old Cincinnati negro on his face with a stunning shock. Charles tried to pull himself up and was just about to make it at the count of nine when he tumbled on his back into a neutral corner.

Victory Is Upset

A 5 to 1 underdog making his fifth bid for the crown, he almost won from Joe Louis in 1947, the amazing Walcott scored one of the most stunning upsets in recent ring history — as shocking as Ray Robinson's recent defeat by Britain's Randy Turpin.

Walcott's payoff punch brought a swarm of fans storming into the ring. It was several minutes before the police could clear the invading horde.

This dazzling surprise before a whopping crowd that jammed Forbes Field, knocked out a Joe Louis-Charles match, tentatively scheduled for New York in September. Charles, however, was protected by a return match contract. He probably will meet Walcott again instead of the Louis match, and the Brown Bomber will have to wait another year for a chance.

Making the ninth defense of the crown he won by outpointing Jersey Joe at Chicago in June of 1949, Ezzard ran flush into that zinging left from the "Old Man Of The Ring."

This third match of the "series" between these rivals yanked the big crowd out of its seats with shocking speed. Instead of a champion easily spearing a persistent but over-aged challenger, there was Ezzy on the deck.

It was the first time Charles had been floored since he won the title and the second knockout loss of his career of 79 pro fights dating back to 1940.

Nobody gave Walcott much of a chance except his own followers who claimed he was robbed in his first Louis fight and both previous scraps with Charles.

You couldn't even find a solid betting price on the match, so lopsided it seemed to be. Some said it was up as high as 6½ to 1 last night.

Ending Is Sudden

Old Jersey Joe, making a career of being a challenger after 21 years in the pro ring, was spearing Charles with those head punches all night. He drew blood from the champion's mouth as early as the fourth and raised a lump under his right eye in the sixth. But there was no warning of the sudden ending. Neither fighter had been on the deck or close to it.

Older men have fought in the prize ring but none ever had won the most coveted prize of all—the heavyweight crown. Bob Fitzsimmons whipped Jim Corbett at the age of 35. Both Fitz and Jack Johnson defended at 37 but Walcott became the oldest ever to win it.

Back in the dressing room under the stands, a bewildered Charles looked at reporters with wonder in his face.

"Did they really count me out?" he said. "I kinda remember trying to get up but at the count of five or six that's all I remember.

Ez Can't Believe It

"Walcott was really in there trying, wasn't he? Gee, I can't believe it."

But believe it or not, it's as true as the Star Spangled Banner. Mr. Charles, the mustachioed gent from Cincinnati, no longer is champion. And this old "Cinderella Man" with six kids back home in Jersey follows in the line where Jack Dempsey, John L. Sullivan, Gene Tunney, and other greats trod before him.

Tonight's third of the series before an estimated 25,000 fans was the first official heavyweight title fight ever held in Pittsburgh.

A slope shouldered man with scraggly hair and a strong bony face, Walcott is supposed to give Charles a return bout within 90 days. The site and date will be talked over next week in a New York conference.

Mintz Is Suspended

As the big crowd filed out of the Pirates Ball Park, it was announced that Mintz was suspended "for action detrimental to boxing" pending an Aug. 7 hearing in Philadelphia. Commissioner John Da Grosa of Philadelphia made the announcement.

36,713 See Yanks Beat Pale Hose

Raschi, Mize Star In 5 To 1 Triumph

CHICAGO, July 18 (AP)—Before the largest Comiskey Park weekday crowd in history, 36,713, the New York Yankees today moved into a virtual tie for second-place in the American League by uncorking a late-inning rally to trim the Chicago White Sox, 5-1.

The Yankees rapped six hits in the seventh and eighth innings, including a two-run homer by Johnny Mize, to move within .0002 of a point behind the second-spot White Sox. On a game basis, however, the White Sox head the Yanks by a half-game.

Vic Raschi won his 13th game of the year although he had to quit after hurling six innings in the humid, 90-degree weather.

Chicago's only marker came on Minnie Minoso's third-inning homer, his sixth of the season.

The loser was Billy Pierce, ace of the White Sox staff. It was Pierce's seventh loss against nine wins.

AFRICAN SUNRAY drove between horses to assume command after going half mile — but weakened badly when hard put. FANFARON raced wide in the early stages and was best of the others. Kiner Belts Three Homers, Pirates Top Dodgers, 13-12

Ralph Boosts Total To 23 In Wild Tilt

BROOKLYN, July 18 (AP) —Ralph Kiner belted three home runs today to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 13-12 decision over the Dodgers in a typical "everything happens in Brooklyn" ball game.

Ralph Kiner

The first came off Phil Haugstad with the bases full in the first inning. It was Kiner's tenth grand - slam of his career and left him just two short of Roger Hornsby's National League record. In the fourth Ralph hit another, with one on, off Dan Bankhead to start a six-run Pirate outburst.

The third Kiner wallop, this one with bases empty and Erv Palica on the mound, tied the score at 12-12 after the Pirates blew an eight-run lead. It was his 23rd homer of the season.

A moment later Erv Dusak doubled and Pete Reiser came through with a pinch single to drive in the winning run.

The victory was the eighth for the last-place Pirates over the league leaders in 13 encounters and their sixth in seven games at Ebbets Field.

In addition to Kiner's three blasts, Joe Garagiola and Gus Bell hit homers for Pittsburgh and Roy Campanella and Jackie Robinson provided a pair for Brooklyn. Box:

Kiner Belts Three Homers, Pirates Top Dodgers, 13-12

Ralph Boosts Total To 23 In Wild Tilt

BROOKLYN, July 18 (AP) —Ralph Kiner belted three home runs today to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 13-12 decision over the Dodgers in a typical "everything happens in Brooklyn" ball game.

Ralph Kiner

The first came off Phil Haugstad with the bases full in the first inning. It was Kiner's tenth grand - slam of his career and left him just two short of Roger Hornsby's National League record. In the fourth Ralph hit another, with one on off Dan Bankhead to start a six-run Pirate outburst.

The third Kiner wallop, this one with bases empty and Erv Palica on the mound, tied the score at 12-12 after the Pirates blew an eight-run lead. It was his 23rd homer of the season.

A moment later Erv Dusak doubled and Pete Reiser came through with a pinch single to drive in the winning run.

The victory was the eighth for the last-place Pirates over the league leaders in 13 encounters and their sixth in seven games at Ebbets Field.

In addition to Kiner's three blasts, Joe Garagiola and Gus Bell hit homers for Pittsburgh and Roy Campanella and Jackie Robinson provided a pair for Brooklyn. Box:

Princess Lygia Cops Rich Race

Lassie Stakes Win Is Worth $45,580

CHICAGO, July 18 (AP) — Princess Lygia, undefeated 2-year-old daughter of Roman, today registered her fifth consecutive triumph in winning the $56,715 Arlington Lassie Stakes, a race for juvenile fillies, by four and a half lengths.

The victory netted the youngster's owner, Mrs. Harry Tritsek, Louisville, Ky., $45,580. Second place and $6,000 went to the Brown Hotel Stable's Hadn't Orter, which finished two and a half lengths ahead of Aesthette, owned by Hal Price Headley, Lexington, Ky. The Dixiana Stable's Fabiola was fourth in a field of ten.

Princess Lygia, a $3,600 yearling purchase, now has won $80,785 — more than any other twolyear-old in the nation. Her victory definitely established her claim to the 2-year-old filly championship of 1951.

Princess Lygia, coupled with Cat Key, owned by P. A. B. Widener, III, went to the post a 2-5 favorite with the crowd of 15,895 and returned $2.80, $2.20 and $2.20. Hadn't Orter paid $5.80 to place and $3.20 to show, while Aaesthette returned $2.80 to show.

Princess Lygia was clocked in 1:11 1-5 for the six furlongs. After winning her maiden effort by eight lengths during the Lincoln Fields meeting, she captured the Miss America Stakes and moved to Arlington Park to take one division of the Hyde Park Stakes and then the Pollyanna Stakes.

TO DEFEND STATE TITLES AT RIDGELEY—J. Calvin Collins, left, of Bunker Hill, Berkeley County, and Edgar H. McDonald of Headsville, Mineral County, will be the defending champions at the West Virginia state championship trapshooting tournament which opens tomorrow at the Ridgeley Rod and Gun Club. Collins was the handicap champion last year. He hit 96 out of 100 from 19 yards McDonald won the triple crown—singles, doubles and all-around events. Ed took the doubles with a score of 93 out of 50 pairs and defeated Dr. R. B. Kinter, Bluefield, and Collins in shoot-offs for singles and all-around honors.

GOODYEAR TIRES

We're paying top prices for trade-ins on new Super-Cushions, too. Equip your car with these bigger, safer, softer Super-Cushion tires.

We'll trade safe, trouble-free new Goodyear miles for the dangerous, unsafe miles in your present tires. Come in today!

WHY take chances with thin worn tires?

Thin tires cut, bruise, puncture easily — causing needless repair bills, delays, and inconveniences.

Weakened cord bodies of old tires invite blowouts. And blowouts all too often cause serious accidents — frequently fatal accidents.

Smooth tires make driving hazardous — for skids endanger your own life as well as the lives of others. Get out of the "Danger Zone" now — buy new Goodyear tires now.

CHICAGO, July 18 (AP) — Princess Lygia, undefeated 2-year-old daughter of Roman, today registered her fifth consecutive triumph in winning the $56,715 Arlington Lassie Stakes, a race for juvenile fillies, by four and a half lengths.

The victory netted the youngster's owner, Mrs. Harry Tritsek, Louisville, Ky., $45,580. Second place and $6,000 went to the Brown Hotel Stable's Hadn't Orter, which finished two and a half lengths ahead of Aesthette, owned by Hal Price Headley, Lexington, Ky. The Dixiana Stable's Fabiola was fourth in a field of ten.

Princess Lygia, a $3,600 yearling purchase, now has won $80,785 — more than any other twolyear-old in the nation. Her victory definitely established her claim to the 2-year-old filly championship of 1951.

Princess Lygia, coupled with Cat Key, owned by P. A. B. Widener, III, went to the post a 2-5 favorite with the crowd of 15,895 and returned $2.80, $2.20 and $2.20. Hadn't Orter paid $5.80 to place and $3.20 to show, while Aaesthette returned $2.80 to show.

Princess Lygia was clocked in 1:11 1-5 for the six furlongs. After winning her maiden effort by eight lengths during the Lincoln Fields meeting, she captured the Miss America Stakes and moved to Arlington Park to take one division of the Hyde Park Stakes and then the Pollyanna Stakes.

TO DEFEND STATE TITLES AT RIDGELEY—J. Calvin Collins, left, of Bunker Hill, Berkeley County, and Edgar H. McDonald of Headsville, Mineral County, will be the defending champions at the West Virginia state championship trapshooting tournament which opens tomorrow at the Ridgeley Rod and Gun Club. Collins was the handicap champion last year. He hit 96 out of 100 from 19 yards. McDonald won the triple crown—singles, doubles and all-around events. Ed took the doubles with a score of 93 out of 50 pairs and defeated Dr. R. B. Kinter, Bluefield, and Collins in shoot-offs for singles and all-around honors.

We're paying top prices for trade-ins on new Super-Cushions, too. Equip your car with these bigger, safer, softer Super-Cushion tires.

WHY take chances with thin worn tires?

Thin tires cut, bruise, puncture easily — causing needless repair bills, delays, and inconveniences.

Weakened cord bodies of old tires invite blowouts. And blowouts all too often cause serious accidents — frequently fatal accidents.

Smooth tires make driving hazardous — for skids endanger your own life as well as the lives of others. Get out of the "Danger Zone" now — buy new Goodyear tires now.

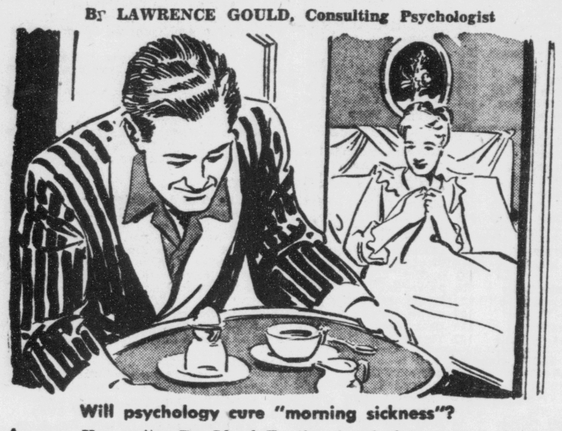
Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist



Will psychology cure "morning sickness"?

Answer: Yes, writes Dr. Lloyd F. Smith in the Arizona Medical Journal. Nausea and vomiting in pregnancy frequently grow out of an unconscious rebellion against that condition, due to feelings of fear, shame or guilt, and this may be true even though a woman consciously welcomes the prospects of motherhood. For example, she may never have outgrown having been scolded for asking where babies come from. The sickness is usually fairly easy to cure by psychological treatment, in which the physician helps the mother to understand the reason for her symptoms and at the same time gives her a chance to express her pent-up emotional reactions.

Should you study with the radio turned on?

Answer: In principle, no. However effectively you can shut off "distracting stimuli," some amount of mental energy is used up in doing so, and this would be better spent upon the work that you are doing. Again, the more interesting the program would be if you let yourself listen to it, the more effort will be needed to ignore it. On the other hand, there seem to be people who get a sense of companionship from "having something going on around them," and feel ill at ease in silence and solitude. With such people the reassuring aspects of the radio may outweigh its distracting effect.

Should you be ashamed not to like children?

Answer: It is a sign of emotional defect to have no interest in your own children or not to want to have any. But to prefer the society of children to that of adults is a characteristic that may be neurotic, since it often means that you feel at ease only with people who are weaker or less clever than you are. To a normal, mature person adjusting to children is an effort, and while this is well worth making if they are your children, or if you have made child care your life work, I see no ground for undertaking it under other circumstances. The idea that being fond of children proves you to be a "nice person" has no basis of fact.

HOLLYWOOD, July 18—(INS)—Talked with Dory Schary, who is back from Chicago where he attended a meeting which made him production chief in charge of all studio operations of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and gave Eddie Mannix, Bennie Thau and Louis K. Sidney places on the executive board, with Eddie as general manager.

Dore told me something about "A Letter From The President," which will star Lana Turner after she finishes "The Merry Widoy." It's an original, and the story is about a letter received by a poor Mexican—a form letter from the President announcing his American citizenship.

The letter from the President gives the Mexican a new and strange dignity and through it he becomes a really good citizen, as does Lana, the girl in the case. Ricardo Montalban will be co-starred with the Turner gal.

On her way back from Australia, Marjorie Lawrence, the brave and gallant opera star, met Greer Garson in Honolulu and discussed "Interrupted Melody." That's Marjorie's life story, which MGM is making with Greer in the Lawrence role.

Marjorie, a polio victim, has never let the fact that she is in a wheelchair deter her singing career. She has gone ahead with her career and had added successes. While here Marjorie will make voice tests for Jack Cummings, the producer at MGM.

The plan is to film her life very much as Al Jolson's story was told. Marjorie will do the singing and Greer the acting. Greer is vacationing in Honolulu with Buddy Fogelson.

From Hongchong, Korea, comes a most interesting letter from Benay Venuta, who has been appearing with the Jack Benny show.

She says, "We did a show for 15,000 Marines one mile from the front today, with firing going on while we were on the stage.

"Jack said, 'I guess the Communists don't like my violin.' He keeps us all laughing all the time. We're the only show to come this far, and the second one to be in Korea in a year. We're the first girls these men have seen in a year.

'Oh Louella, we must get shows to these men. Please say something to shake up the actors. Seeing Jack Benny is like home folks to these boys."

I never expected to be the peacemaker in the Kathryn Grayson-Johnny Johnston dispute, which has gone on for two years. But I was drawn into it when Johnny called me up to say that Kathryn could have custody of little Patty Kate, but he wanted permission to see her—and that seems to me fair enough.

Kathryn agrees it's fair, so it looks now as if the papers will be signed.

The car Johnny asked for he says Kathryn can keep, but I have a hunch she'll send it on to him. I don't wonder he wants to see Patty Kate—she is a darling.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Peter Howard telephoned to say au revoir—he's off for Europe. He says he hopes Betsy Von Furstenberg will wait for him until he gets back from abroad. He says they're engaged again.

He also told me that Sylvia Gable is still on his stepfather George Vanderbilt's yacht and will return here July 23.

Last night at the vagabond restaurant Richard Garland, young actor who was in "Son Of Ali Baba" and 'Cimarron Kid," confided that he is marrying Beatrice Campbell, young actress, very soon.

Doris Koenig and Irving Brin are getting married Friday. They'll honeymoon at Lake Tahoe. Doris is the widow of the late William Koenig, studio executive.

Ben Lyon, who with Bebe Daniels is so very popular in London, has just been made producer of this year's royal film show. It will be held at the Odeon Cinema, Leicester Square, November 5.

Gilbert Roland and Doris Duke a dinner duo at Jack's at the beach.

Jimmy Durante is giving a birthday party for Jackie Barnett who writes his special material. Jimmy's gift to his writer is a gold watch.

Natalie Schaefer, the ex-Mrs. Louis Calhern, has arrived in town and expects to live here. She has rented a house in Beverly Hills.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Piedmont Playground To Hold Opening

PIEDMONT, W. Va.—The official opening of the Piedmont Playground on the Piedmont High School grounds sponsored by the Tri-Towns Recreation Association will be held this evening at 7:30.

The program will include a band concert by the Junior Band, directed by Charles Ducas, sponsored by the Potomac Fire Company of Westernport. Group singing will be led by Edward Seaman, a member of the Piedmont High School faculty. The entertainment will also include vocal and instrumental selections. Refreshments will be on sale.

The movies which were planned to be shown this Thursday evening have been postponed to next Thursday evening as it would make the program this week too long.

The organizing of a Playground Council is being planned and the election of officers is expected to take place soon.

Senior 4-H Meeting

LONACONING—A special meeting of the Senior 4-H Club will be held at 7 o'clock tonight at the home of Mrs. James Crable, Church Hill. A picnic supper will be held.

Marriage Licenses

Francis Phillip Peretti, 38 Broadway, and Mary Katherine Wilson, 121 Ormond Street, both Frostburg.

Ronald Jasper Averill, Low Moor, Va., and Lee Anna Betty Swick-Petersburg, W. Va.

Many Americans took Geiger counters with them on their vacations in the country last year, it is said, with the object of prospecting for uranium as a side-line vacation activity.

New Shape Bow Tie

FASHION: Phil Baker, star of the TV show "Who's Whose," is a devotee of bow ties and is shown here in the new longer-and-narrower shape which is receiving wide acceptance.

Food and Drink: Beat one egg lightly, add four ounces of orange juice and beat lightly again. It's a "meal-in-a-drink." . . . For plenty of vitamins, stir a small envelope of gelatin in a large glass of orange juice. It will make you feel like Tarzan!

Foot Notes: Going to do some painting? Pull an old pair of socks over your shoes to protect them from paint smears. Don't just try painting in your socks; you need the shoes for proper support. . . . For the same reason, keep golf shoes in repair. Run-down soles and heels are bad for the feet when you do so much walking.

Helpful Hints: An empty egg container can be used to segregate various size nails. . . . If you need a dash of lemon juice, in your bartending duties, cut a small wedge in one end of the lemon and squeeze—keeps lemon fresher.

Feminine Advice: Authoress Doris Lilly says: "Don't be surprised if your date, who has spent hours getting dressed in her best, looks askance when you show up in baggy tweeds. . . . Don't talk incessantly of your business when in a night club with your gal. And be doubly sure not to do it when you are walking in the moonlight with her!"

New Apparel: Bud Collyer (right) is wearing a new sport shirt that is fast growing in popularity—made of jersey, it has contrasting placket and collar, that gives an informal yet dressed-up look.

Note the collar

Odd Items: There are still eight states which do not permit women jurors. . . . Alan Ladd likes to play his roles, no matter how rigorous, without a double. In "Appointment With Danger," he suffered a black eye, wrenched knee and innumerable bruises. . . . This week's "Pass the Cigars" to—the White Sox manager, Paul Richards, who welded a squad of "misfits" into a pennant-contender. They may not win—but they'll keep fighting!

Suspected of Arson!

Dr. Jim Brent's home was partly destroyed by fire. His own daughter was injured in the blaze which burned important records rumored to incriminate the doctor in a hospital swindle. The leading citizen is moving against him with charges of fraud and arson. How can he defend himself? And what will be the outcome of the Marshal's meeting today?

A Column for Men

STAG LINES

By BERT BACHARACH

Bow-tie devotee

New Shape Bow Tie

FASHION: Phil Baker, star of the TV show "Who's Whose," is a devotee of bow ties and is shown here in the new longer-and-narrower shape which is receiving wide acceptance.

Food and Drink: Beat one egg lightly, add four ounces of orange juice and beat lightly again. It's a "meal-in-a-drink." . . . For plenty of vitamins, stir a small envelope of gelatin in a large glass of orange juice. It will make you feel like Tarzan!

Foot Notes: Going to do some painting? Pull an old pair of socks over your shoes to protect them from paint smears. Don't just try painting in your socks; you need the shoes for proper support. . . . For the same reason, keep golf shoes in repair. Run-down soles and heels are bad for the feet when you do so much walking.

Helpful Hints: An empty egg container can be used to segregate various size nails. . . . If you need a dash of lemon juice, in your bartending duties, cut a small wedge in one end of the lemon and squeeze—keeps lemon fresher.

Feminine Advice: Authoress Doris Lilly says: "Don't be surprised if your date, who has spent hours getting dressed in her best, looks askance when you show up in baggy tweeds. . . . Don't talk incessantly of your business when in a night club with your gal. And be doubly sure not to do it when you are walking in the moonlight with her!"

New Apparel: Bud Collyer (right) is wearing a new sport shirt that is fast growing in popularity—made of jersey, it has contrasting placket and collar, that gives an informal yet dressed-up look.

Note the collar

Odd Items: There are still eight states which do not permit women jurors. . . . Alan Ladd likes to play his roles, no matter how rigorous, without a double. In "Appointment With Danger," he suffered a black eye, wrenched knee and innumerable bruises. . . . This week's "Pass the Cigars" to—the White Sox manager, Paul Richards, who welded a squad of "misfits" into a pennant-contender. They may not win—but they'll keep fighting!

Phone Workers Sign Contract With Company

Pay Increases Up To $10 Awarded

BALTIMORE, July 18 (AP)—The Chesapeake and Potoma Telephone Co. and its plant and commercial employes tonight signed a new one-year contract calling for pay increases ranging from $3 to $10 a week.

The negotiations, going on almost continuously for the past several days, were conducted by the company and the CIO Communication Workers of America, representing the plant, commercial, accounting and treasury non-supervisory workers.

In announcing the settlement, W. Griffin Morrel, vice president and general manager of the company, said the company would need more income to meet "record high labor costs and other rising costs."

The utility has applied to the Maryland Public Service Commission for an increase in telephone rates. The request has not as yet come before the commission for action.

Traffic, commercial and accounting employes in the Maryland area next to the District of Columbia, represented by CIO-CWA locals 2300 and 2336 also received wage increases.

The possibility of an agreement in the contract talks was expressed here early last night as the negotiators went back into session.

An informed union source said definite progress was being made and that only a few minor details remained to be ironed out.

Telephone service in Cumberland returned to normal early this morning after plant workers represented by the CWA-CIO withdrew picket lines.

Tuesday's surprise walkout, called to prod the contract negotiators, kept service in Cumberland on an emergency basis for some 17 hours as supervisory personnel manned the switchboards.

The stoppage was called simultaneously in this city, Frederick, Hagerstown, Oakland and Frostburg.

Hardest hit was Cumberland where all but a few operators refused to cross the picket lines of Local 2105, CWA-CIO.

Less effective were walkouts staged at the other communities.

No picketing was reported throughout the state yesterday as negotiators continued working toward a contract to replace a pact which expired June 30.

Frostburg Cited For 1950 Safety

The City of Frostburg will be honored in Baltimore on July 23 at a luncheon sponsored by the Automobile Club of Maryland for not having any pedestrian fatalities during 1950.

In an Associated Press dispatch yesterday the "Mountain City" was among 11 Maryland cities cited for the record.

The club said Governor McKeldin will present Automobile Club certificates of commendation to mayors of each of the cities.

The cities are Annapolis, Cambridge, Elkton, Frostburg, Greenbelt, Hyattsville, Havre De Grace, Mt. Rainier, Rockville, Tacoma Park and Westminster, the club said.

The Governor also will present a certificate to Major Ruxton M. Ridgely, executive officer of the Maryland State Police, for his work as state representative in the AAA's national pedestrian protection contest.

Two Youths Held In County Jail

Two youths, who said they were from Alexandria, Va., are being lodged in the Allegany County Jail while State Police investigate to determine how they obtained an automobile bearing New York license plates.

State Trooper Donald Wade picked up the boys about noon yesterday as they were driving along Route 40, between Frostburg and Cumberland. They had an Eckhart boy, who had hitch-hiked a ride, in the car with them. Trooper Wade still was questioning the boys at the sheriff's office here last night.

The youths identified themselves as Preston S. German, 20, and Charles P. Spilman, 18, according to records at the sheriff's office.

Miss Ruth Leonard, daughter of Mrs. Carl L. Leonard, 6 Decatur Street, has been appointed as head of the health, physical education and recreation department of Mary Washington College of the University of Virginia.

The announcement of the appointment was made recently by Dr. Morgan L. Combs, president of the college in Fredericksburg, Va. Miss Leonard taught there before going to Pennsylvania State College three years ago. She is a graduate of the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina and received her master's degree in physical education at Chapel Hill.

West Virginia's Oldest Man Dies At His Mountain Home

Death came to James Harvey Riggleman, believed to have been the oldest man in West Virginia, Tuesday night at his two-room tar paper covered home in the mountainous area of Mineral County.

He was born in Grant County, a son of the late John and Phoebe Riggleman. Mineral County records list his age as 105, but the family Bible entry lists his age as 108.

Married three times, his first wife was Elizabeth Harnick Riggleman, his second, the former Elizabeth Blizzard, and the third, by whom he is survived, is Cora Baldwin Riggleman.

According to the Mineral County poll registeration books, Riggleman was born in 1845, but the old Riggleman family Bible, in possession of Simon Riggleman, Romney, W. Va., a son of the centenarian, has his birthdate as 1843, making his age 108.

Simon Riggleman, 72, is the oldest of 11 children, being the only child born to James Riggleman's first wife. His second marriage produced ten children. The senior Riggleman is said to have advertised in the newspapers for his third wife, and they were married soon after their first meeting.

Another son, Charles W. Riggleman lives in a cabin, within a few hundred feet of his father's house and was a frequent visitor. He lives about a mile and a half from Route 18, near Mt. Zion Road. All of the children reside in West Virginia.

James Riggleman, who had resided at his present location 35 to 40 years, was an enthusiatic hunter and was considered somewhat of an expert with firearms. He had given up the sport recently because of weakening eyes.

Friends say they have heard of him talking about the Civil War but do not know if he had fought in the war. In his younger days, Riggleman resided in Pendleton County. He came to Mineral County a number of years ago to work.

Surviving are his children, Charles Riggleman, at home; Ernest and John Riggleman, both of Route 1, Keyser, W. Va.; Jesse Riggleman, Armstrong Street Extended, Keyser, W. Va., and Mrs. Loy Miller, Keyser, W. Va.

Services will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the Fountain Church with interment in Cabin Run Cemetery.

Rehabilitation Parley Moves Here For Dinner

National Leader Will Speak Tonight

The five-day annual training conference of the Maryland Vocational Rehabilitation staff will shift from Frostburg State Teachers College to the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club for the annual dinner at 6:30 o'clock tonight.

E. B. Whitten, executive director of the National Rehabilitation Association, Washington, D. C., will be the principal speaker at tonight's dinner.

Morning Session

At the morning session today at the college, Bird Terwilliger, superintendent of physical restoration of the Maryland Division of Vocational Rehabilitation will speak on "Physical Restorations." He will be assisted by Dr. J. Parks of Woodrow Wilson Rehabilitation Center, Fisherville, Va.

Tomorrow morning Thomas Braun, supervisor of the Baltimore City District office, will discuss "Workmen's Compensation." At the afternoon session, Lionel Burgess, supervisor of case services of Maryland, will speak on "Business Enterprise Equipment."

Raymond H. Simmons, supervisor of rehabilitation work for the Eastern Shore, spoke on "Technique of Sound Casework" at an earlier session of the week-long conference. He was assisted by Edgar B. Porter, assistant chief of the Guidance Training Placement Branch, Office of Vocational Rehabilitation, Washington.

"The qualities of a rehab counselor," Simmons stated, "cover three points. He must have a sincere interest in the welfare of the individual; he must be well trained and he must have a knowledge of the behavior patterns of the individual."

Not Welfare

Porter, in explaining the purpose of "voc-rehab" work, pointed out that it is not a welfare agency.

Governor's Veto Of Pay Raise Causes Furor

Special Session Asked To Help Teachers

SALISBURY, Md., July 18 (AP) — Governor McKeldin was charged today with flouting Maryland's money-spending program for public schools when he vetoed a pay raise for teachers.

Two Eastern Shore democrats insisted he call a special session promptly to help low-paid teachers or face an organized move to override his veto when the General Assembly convenes next February.

More than 100 school and government officials from the Shore's nine counties heard the Governor upbraided at the first of a series of regional meetings called by a Legislative Council committee.

At one point, criticism of the veto grew so bitter that Senate Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) announced he would listen to no more "denunciations of the governor for exercising his governmental right."

Kimble is one of the committee's three members all of which actually voted for the $300 across-the-board pay boosts that fell before McKeldin's veto last spring.

Special Session Demanded

Delegate Logan (D-Caroline) demanded a special session. He maintained the state treasury has enough surplus over money anticipated during the winter to finance an increase. He didn't estimate the amount but thought all teachers ought to be started at no less than $50 a week.

Maximum beginning pay under the state supported scale is now $2,200 a year for college graduates. Some of the larger counties offer more.

The Governor has attributed his veto to a belief that school problems are primarily a concern of county governments. He also has objected to any hike in state taxes.

Logan contended the Governor had "vetoed equalization." With its equalization fund, the state contributes to county school budgets to support minimum standards of pay and facilities.

Kimble's retort to Logan was interpreted by Delegate Riggin (D-Somerset) as an attempt to "surpress opposition opinion." And Logan said he would continue to protest gubernatorial actionus he did not approve "regardless of Bob Kimble."

Malkus Gives Opinion

Senator Malkus (D-Dorchester) predicted that by the time the legislature meets again next winter "dissatisfaction will be so great that the veto will be overridden."

Either that, he said, "or new legislation will be enacted to take us out of the dilemma we are now in."

"A radical veto," Delegate North (D-Talbot) called it.

'I charge the Governor with having knowledge of the public's demand and necessity for an increase in teachers' salaries on the state level by the equalization plan. And I also charge that the Governor has defaulted in that respect," North said.

The legislature established its share-the-wealth school plan to assist poor counties in 1922. Under current law, a county must set aside at least 65 cents of its tax rate for schools every year.

"If the idea of sharing the load was good for three decades, what

Chief Defibaugh To End Service As Fire Fighter

Applies For Pension Effective July 26

Fire Chief Jeremiah T. Defibaugh will end almost 30 years of service as a fire fighter in this city late this month.

Chief Defibaugh, who is 58, early this week submitted a request to be placed on the pension rolls as of July 26 to Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long, who is president of the Firemen's Pension Board.

Commenting that he had put his time in as an active fireman, Chief Defibaugh said he will concentrate on the fire extinguisher and supply business.

Chief Defibaugh, who has held every position in the department during his 29 years and 10 months of service, began work as a professional fireman on September 7, 1921, at Central Fire Station.

He served as a chauffeur at Central until 1925, when he was promoted to lieutenant and transferred to West Side Fire Company.

Served At South End

In March, 1938, he was transferred to South End Fire Company and on March 15, 1940, was promoted to captain at South End succeeding the late Capt. Robert R. Kelly.

Three years ago yesterday, Chief Defibaugh was appointed drillmaster of the department with the rank of assistant chief.

Following the retirement of Fire Chief William L. Lindner on March 1, 1951, he was appointed acting fire chief and on May 14 was confirmed as chief of the department.

Chief Defibaugh early this year inaugurated a training program which has become a permanent feature of the department.

Is AFL Official

Active in labor circles, he has served as secretary of Allegany Trades Council, central AFL body of Allegany County, since 1943.

He resides at 200 Glenn Street with his wife, Clara V. Defibaugh. They have two sons, J. T. Defibaugh Jr., this city, a B. and O. engineer, and Sgt. Joseph Defibaugh, with the Army Medical Corps in San Francisco, Cal.

His successor will be the fourth to serve as fire chief since Reid C. Hoenicka retired July 15, 1948, when he reached the age of 60 after serving in the department for 32 years.

He was succeeded by the late John E. Brennan, who headed the department until his death on December 10, 1950.

William L. Lindner, who had been serving as acting chief during Chief Brennan's illness, served as chief until February 24, when he retired due to ill health.

Safety Program Inaugurated For Street Workers

Joint Conference Is Planned Soon

A safety committee will be set up in the Department of Streets and Public Property to coordinate all accident prevention activities Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of the department, announced yesterday.

All 10 of the sub-departments will be represented on the safety committee, she added.

Recommendations for setting up the safety committee have been received from Lynn Walker, state safety official.

All department heads, she added, will receive copies of the recommendations in the near future in preparation for a joint conference of the street superintendent, all foremen, Mrs. Roeder and Walker.

Plans are being made to set up a safety program which can be correlated to the specific duties of each unit of the department.

Orders Extinguishers

Definite progress was reported on plans for fire safety in the Street Department.

Mrs. Roeder said the department has ordered the list of fire fighting equipment recommended by Fire Chief J. T. Defibaugh.

The recommendations included calcium chloride solution type extinguishers for the unheated casino at Constitution Park pool and several other unheated areas, carbon dioxide extinguishers for locations where oil and gas is dispensed at the City Warehouse, with soda and acid extinguishers in other locations.

The Fire Department, Mrs. Roeder said, has promised to service the fire fighting equipment.

Will Test Material

Material has also been ordered by the department to test the efficiency of "Safety-Walk", a new material designed to cut down the hazards of falls.

Slated for the tests are the steps of the Public Safety Building, the entrance to the office at Consitution Park pool and the running boards of department vehicles.

Strips of the material, which resembles coarse emery cloth, will be applied to the steps with a special adhesive to form a non-slip surface.

The resurfacing has found wide uses in factories, on battleships and in public buildings where non-slippery surfacing is vital. Cost of the materials for the tests will be about $40.

Road Lettering Is Explained

The rash of "B" and "E" letters painted on Maryland highways are markers for the center line paint crews of the State Roads Commission.

"B" stands for "beginning" and "E" stands for "end." The driver of the commission's centerline truck operates his paint mechanism at "B" and turns it off at "E."

The reason for the rash of letters this year is that the commission last winter decided to raise Maryland standards to conform to the rest of the nation. Instead of only 500-foot or less sight distances designated by a white centerline, Maryland now paints a centerline where the motorist cannot see at least 900 feet ahead of him.

Weather

Yesterday was another warm summer day with showers in the afternoon. Rain fell at noon and about 4 p. m., a downpour, accompanied by lightning and thunder, cooled the air. Humidity was high. Constitution Park's weather station recorded the high temperature as 84 degrees, the low as 64, and at 8:45 p. m., the mercury stood at 74. Rain was reported as half an inch, with humidity at 82 per cent. The weatherman promised no change in temperature for today.

Work Will Begin On Henry Street Conduit Project

Valley Street Dam Work Progressing

Flood control workers will begin the construction of the Henry Street pressure conduit this week.

Work will be done by the Thomas Earle and Sons firm, which is building the Frederick Street pressure conduit under a sub-contract.

The three by three foot conduit will tie into the Frederick Street pressure line at the intersection of the alley connecting Frederick and Henry Streets.

The comparatively small pressure duct will start at the alley, go to Henry Street and then be carried to a tunnel which has been constructed beneath the rear of the Stein Funeral Home.

From that point, the conduit will then proceed to in front of the B. and O. freight station where it will be tied into a 36-inch brick sewer.

Additional crews will be placed on the Henry Street work so that the present phase of the flood control work will be completed on time.

George and Lynch, contractor for the work, is slated to complete its construction, on or before December 10.

Finishing touches are being placed on the Valley Street detention dam. Some of the work on the big structure could not be undertaken until the outlet structure was open-

Price Of Milk May Jump One Cent In Cumberland

Cumberlanders face the prospect of paying an additional cent for their quart of milk in the near future.

The Pennsylvania Milk Control Commission has approved a half-cent increase in the price of milk for the Johnstown-Altoona area.

This will directly affect the cost here as practically all of the raw milk used here is purchased in Bedford and Somerset counties.

John D. Liebau, president of the Dairy Service Corporation, the local dairymen's organization, said his group will see what effect the increase has on their source of supply.

He pointed out that dairies in that section of Pennsylvania are getting a cent more for their quart of milk than here.

In Cumberland homogenized milk costs 22 cents a quart and regular milk, 21. In Johnstown, the price is 23 cents for homogenized and 22 cents for regular.

Liebau noted that several months ago the same section was given a half-cent increase by the Milk Control Commission, but the local dairies did not raise prices.

As the dairies here are buying in direct competition with the Pennsylvania dairies, Liebau said a one-cent increase is inevitable.

Even in Garrett County where a quantity of milk is purchased, the companies compete with the Pittsburgh and Uniontown firms.

The Dairy Service Corporation does not hike the prices, Liebau said, but each dairy will set its costs individually.

He added that the increase will probably have to go through Office of Price Stabilization channels.

Pfc. Gordon Drowns In Alaskan Waters

Mt. Savage Youth Dies After Boat Capsizes

A 20-year-old Mt. Savage veteran of three years service in the U. S. Army was a victim of drowning in Alaskan waters last Friday. Pfc. David J. Gordon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hayes Gordon, Sunnyside, drowned when the boat in which he was riding capsized, according to military authorities.

The family of the youth received notification that he was missing on Friday and another telegram informed them his body was later recovered. No details of the mishap had been received by the family up to last night.

Gordon was a member of Battery D, 502 Gun Battalion, and had been serving in Alaska for the past 17 months. He was formerly a member of the Army Reserve in Cumberland and at the age of 17 enlisted in the Regular Army and received basic training at Camp Pickett, Va. Later military training in the United States was received by Gordon at Fort Bliss, Texas, and Fort Ord, Calif.

Born February 14, 1931, he attended LaVale School and later worked for some time with a contracting company on the Western Maryland Railway, according to his family.

He was a member of the LaVale Methodist Church and had resided prior to enlisting at the home of a sister, Mrs. Leo Lowery, Homewood Addition. A brother, Hayes R. Gordon Jr., is now stationed with the Army at Fort Campbell, Ky.

Survivors other than his parents are three brothers, Hayes, Fort Campbell, Ky.; Wilbur, Chester Gordon, at home; five sisters, Mrs. Leo Lowery, Mrs. Elmer Garlitz, Mrs. George Garlitz, Homewood Addition, Mildred Gordon, Evelyn Gordon, at home.

The body will be brought to the Zeigler Funeral Home, Hyndman, Pa.

Governor Seeks Zeller's Report In Truck Case

Grantsville Man's Decision Appealed

BALTIMORE, July 18. (AP)—Governor McKeldin today asked Magistrate Charles S. Zeller of Grantsville for a "complete report" on the recent dismissal of truck overweight charges against John O. Riley of Accident.

Zeller, in dismissing the case July 9, called Maryland's new Truck Overweight Law "confusing, poorly written and a hardship." The state charged Riley with driving a truck overweighted 7,100 pounds.

Other Developments

McKeldin's letter to Zeller was released as (1) an improvement association in Baltimore urged Zeller's dismissal for committing a "rebellious act," and (2) the State Roads Commission appealed—for the first time in its history—Zeller's verdict on the Riley case and another the same day.

McKeldin specifically asked the magistrate for "the detailed reasons" for his saying the law is so confusing as to be unenforceable—if Zeller was quoted correctly as saying that.

Tonight, Zeller said he did not call the law unenforceable, but he did say "the law is subject to several interpretations. It really is working a hardship in this section x x x and it is poorly written."

Zeller said he hadn't received the governor's letter. After hearing a copy read by telephone, he said:

"I would recommend to any fair-minded person to read the law and see if it is confusing."

He said Riley's attorneys objected to the way the state figured the amount of overweight.

Axleload Cited

He said they pointed out that the law specifies "axleload," but the state measures the weight by sticking scales under the wheel, whereby weighing the wheel and axle as well.

He said he agreed with that point and dismissed the charge.

The other case the Roads Commission is appealing is the amount of fine levied on Emmett Hall, a driver for the Hopwood Lumber Co. of Hopwood, Pa.

He was found guilty of driving a truck overloaded by 11,600 pounds. Zeller fined him $496 plus costs. The State contends the fine should have been $696 because, the Commission said, the law calls for a fine of two cents a pound for overweights less than 5,000 pounds, and six cents a pound for overweights exceeding 5,000.

Zeller fined him on the basis of two cents a pound for the first 5,000 pounds and six cents for the remaining 6,600 pounds.

The appeals to Circuit Court were handled by Garrett County State's Attorney Dwight Stover for the Commission. It is the first time the Commission ever has filed an appeal in a court case such as this, although it has been the defendant in many appeals.

Zeller was named to the post by McKeldin, but the governor lacks the power to remove him without bringing formal charges.

Governor's Letter

The governor's letter to Zeller:

"My attention has been called to newspaper accounts of the case of John O. Riley of Accident, Maryland, which was adjudicated by you several days ago. As you know, criticism of your decision has been voiced on the ground that you took occasion, not only to comment unfavorably on the policy of the law, but even to refuse to obey its mandate. I have no precise information on this point and am not in a position to form any opinion; but, I should thank you to let me have at your earliest convenience a complete report of the case.

"As governor I have no right or disposition to interfere with the conduct of judicial proceedings. On the other hand, courts both high and low are bound by the laws enacted by the Legislative, and judges have the duty of enforcing those laws even when they disagree with their policy. You will, I am sure, agree that just as the executive authorities may not interfere to influence judicial decisions, members of the judiciary may not supersede acts of the Legislative.

"It may be that your action has been misunderstood or poorly reported. If you are correctly quoted as having said that the law is so confusing as to be unenforceable I should like particularly to have the detailed reasons for your statement."

Ohio Couple Hurt In Car Collision

An elderly Ohio couple were injured, one critically, yesterday afternoon following a headon collision on Route 50 near Capon Bridge, W. Va. on Cooper Mountain.

Mr. and Mrs. Price L. Stewart, Tippecanoe, Ohio, taken to Memorial Hospital, Winchester, Va., were reported last night as "resting comfortably." Mrs. Stewart was in critical condition, suffering from multiple fractures and shock. Her husband suffered possible head injuries and shock, the hospital added.

The Stewarts, enroute to Langley Field, Va., to see their son, were involved in the collision with a tractor-trailer driven by Park E. Beeghly of Cumberland. Beeghly was uninjured, police said.

West Virginia State Police investigated.

Phone Workers Sign Contract With Company

Pay Increases Up To $10 Awarded

BALTIMORE, July 18 (AP)—The Chesapeake and Potoma Telephone Co. and its plant and commercial employes tonight signed a new one-year contract calling for pay increases ranging from $3 to $10 a week.

The stoppage was called simultaneously in this city, Frederick, Hagerstown, Oakland and Frostburg.

Hardest hit was Cumberland where all but a few operators refused to cross the picket lines of Local 2105, CWA-CIO.

Less effective were walkouts staged at the other communities.

No picketing was reported throughout the state yesterday as negotiators continued working toward a contract to replace a pact which expired June 30.

Frostburg Cited For 1950 Safety

The City of Frostburg will be honored in Baltimore on July 23 at a luncheon sponsored by the Automobile Club of Maryland for not having any pedestrian fatalities during 1950.

In an Associated Press dispatch yesterday the "Mountain City" was among 11 Maryland cities cited for the record.

The club said Governor McKeldin will present Automobile Club certificates of commendation to mayors of each of the cities.

The cities are Annapolis, Cambridge, Elkton, Frostburg, Greenbelt, Hyattsville, Havre De Grace, Mt. Rainier, Rockville, Tacoma Park and Westminster, the club said.

The Governor also will present a certificate to Major Ruxton M. Ridgely, executive officer of the Maryland State Police, for his work as state representative in the AAA's national pedestrian protection contest.

Two Youths Held In County Jail

Two youths, who said they were from Alexandria, Va., are being lodged in the Allegany County Jail while State Police investigate to determine how they obtained an automobile bearing New York license plates.

State Trooper Donald Wade picked up the boys about noon yesterday as they were driving along Route 40, between Frostburg and Cumberland. They had an Eckhart boy, who had hitch-hiked a ride, in the car with them. Trooper Wade still was questioning the boys at the sheriff's office here last night.

The youths identified themselves as Preston S. German, 20, and Charles P. Spilman, 18, according to records at the sheriff's office.

She is a graduate of the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina and received her master's degree in physical education at Chapel Hill.

West Virginia's Oldest Man Dies At His Mountain Home

Death came to James Harvey Riggleman, believed to have been the oldest man in West Virginia, Tuesday night at his two-room tar paper covered home in the mountainous area of Mineral County.

He was born in Grant County, a son of the late John and Phoebe Riggleman. Mineral County records list his age as 105, but the family Bible entry lists his age as 108.

Married three times, his first wife was Elizabeth Harnick Riggleman, his second, the former Elizabeth Blizzard, and the third, by whom he is survived, is Cora Baldwin Riggleman.

According to the Mineral County poll registeration books, Riggleman was born in 1845, but the old Riggleman family Bible, in possession of Simon Riggleman, Romney, W. Va., a son of the centenarian, has his birthdate as 1843, making his age 108.

Simon Riggleman, 72, is the oldest of 11 children, being the only child born to James Riggleman's first wife. His second marriage produced ten children. The senior Riggleman is said to have advertised in the newspapers for his third wife, and they were married soon after their first meeting.

Another son, Charles W. Riggleman lives in a cabin, within a few hundred feet of his father's house and was a frequent visitor. He lives about a mile and a half from Route 18, near Mt. Zion Road. All of the children reside in West Virginia.

James Riggleman, who had resided at his present location 35 to 40 years, was an enthusiatic hunter and was considered somewhat of an expert with firearms. He had given up the sport recently because of weakening eyes.

Friends say they have heard of him talking about the Civil War but do not know if he had fought in the war. In his younger days, Riggleman resided in Pendleton County. He came to Mineral County a number of years ago to work.

Surviving are his children, Charles Riggleman, at home; Ernest and John Riggleman, both of Route 1, Keyser, W. Va.; Jesse Riggleman, Armstrong Street Extended, Keyser, W. Va., and Mrs. Loy Miller, Keyser, W. Va.

Services will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the Fountain Church with interment in Cabin Run Cemetery.

Rehabilitation Parley Moves Here For Dinner

National Leader Will Speak Tonight

The five-day annual training conference of the Maryland Vocational Rehabilitation staff will shift from Frostburg State Teachers College to the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club for the annual dinner at 6:30 o'clock tonight.

E. B. Whitten, executive director of the National Rehabilitation Association, Washington, D. C., will be the principal speaker at tonight's dinner.

Morning Session

At the morning session today at the college, Bird Terwilliger, superintendent of physical restoration of the Maryland Division of Vocational Rehabilitation will speak on "Physical Restorations." He will be assisted by Dr. J. Parks of Woodrow Wilson Rehabilitation Center, Fisherville, Va.

Tomorrow morning Thomas Braun, supervisor of the Baltimore City District office, will discuss "Workmen's Compensation." At the afternoon session, Lionel Burgess, supervisor of case services of Maryland, will speak on "Business Enterprise Equipment."

Raymond H. Simmons, supervisor of rehabilitation work for the Eastern Shore, spoke on "Technique of Sound Casework" at an earlier session of the week-long conference. He was assisted by Edgar B. Porter, assistant chief of the Guidance Training Placement Branch, Office of Vocational Rehabilitation, Washington.

"The qualities of a rehab counselor," Simmons stated, "cover three points. He must have a sincere interest in the welfare of the individual; he must be well trained and he must have a knowledge of the behavior patterns of the individual."

Not Welfare

Porter, in explaining the purpose of "voc-rehab" work, pointed out that it is not a welfare agency.

Governor's Veto Of Pay Raise Causes Furor

Special Session Asked To Help Teachers

SALISBURY, Md., July 18 (AP) — Governor McKeldin was charged today with flouting Maryland's money-spending program for public schools when he vetoed a pay raise for teachers.

Two Eastern Shore demoncrats insisted he call a special session promptly to help low-paid teachers or face an organized move to override his veto when the General Assembly convenes next February.

More than 100 school and government officials from the Shore's nine counties heard the Governor upbraided at the first of a series of regional meetings called by a Legislative Council committee.

At one point, criticism of the veto grew so bitter that Senate Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) announced he would listen to no more "denunciations of the governor for exercising his governmental right."

Kimble is one of the committee's three members all of which actually voted for the $300 across-the-board pay boosts that fell before McKeldin's veto last spring.

Special Session Demanded

Delegate Logan (D-Caroline) demanded a special session. He maintained the state treasury has enough surplus over money anticipated during the winter to finance an increase. He didn't estimate the amount but thought all teachers ought to be started at no less than $50 a week.

Maximum beginning pay under the state supported scale is now $2,200 a year for college graduates. Some of the larger counties offer more.

The Governor has attributed his veto to a belief that school problems are primarily a concern of county governments. He also has objected to any hike in state taxes.

Logan contended the Governor had "vetoed equalization." With its equalization fund, the state contributes to county school budgets to support minimum standards of pay and facilities.

Kimble's retort to Logan was interpreted by Delegate Riggin (D-Somerset) as an attempt to "suppress opposition opinion." And Logan said he would continue to protest gubernatorial actionus he did not approve "regardless of Bob Kimble."

Malkus Gives Opinion

Senator Malkus (D-Dorchester) predicted that by the time the legislature meets again next winter "dissatisfaction will be so great that the veto will be overridden."

Either that, he said, "or new legislation will be enacted to take us out of the dilemma we are now in."

"A radical veto," Delegate North (D-Talbot) called it.

'I charge the Governor with having knowledge of the public's demand and necessity for an increase in teachers' salaries on the state level by the equalization plan. And I also charge that the Governor has defaulted in that respect," North said.

The legislature established its share-the-wealth school plan to assist poor counties in 1922. Under current law, a county must set aside at least 65 cents of its tax rate for schools every year.

"If the idea of sharing the load was good for three decades, what

Chief Defibaugh To End Service As Fire Fighter

Applies For Pension Effective July 26

Fire Chief Jeremiah T. Defibaugh will end almost 30 years of service as a fire fighter in this city late this month.

Chief Defibaugh, who is 58, early this week submitted a request to be placed on the pension rolls as of July 26 to Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long, who is president of the Firemen's Pension Board.

Commenting that he had put his time in as an active fireman, Chief Defibaugh said he will concentrate on the fire extinguisher and supply business.

Chief Defibaugh, who has held every position in the department during his 29 years and 10 months of service, began work as a professional fireman on September 7, 1921, at Central Fire Station.

He served as a chauffeur at Central until 1925, when he was promoted to lieutenant and transferred to West Side Fire Company.

Served At South End

In March, 1938, he was transferred to South End Fire Company and on March 15, 1940, was promoted to captain at South End succeeding the late Capt. Robert R. Kelly.

Three years ago yesterday, Chief Defibaugh was appointed drillmaster of the department with the rank of assistant chief.

Following the retirement of Fire Chief William L. Lindner on March 1, 1951, he was appointed acting fire chief and on May 14 was confirmed as chief of the department.

Chief Defibaugh early this year inaugurated a training program which has become a permanent feature of the department.

Is AFL Official

Active in labor circles, he has served as secretary of Allegany Trades Council, central AFL body of Allegany County, since 1943.

He resides at 200 Glenn Street with his wife, Clara V. Defibaugh. They have two sons, J. T. Defibaugh Jr., this city, a B. and O. engineer, and Sgt. Joseph Defibaugh, with the Army Medical Corps in San Francisco, Cal.

His successor will be the fourth to serve as fire chief since Reid C. Hoenicka retired July 15, 1948, when he reached the age of 60 after serving in the department for 32 years.

He was succeeded by the late John E. Brennan, who headed the department until his death on December 10, 1950.

William L. Lindner, who had been serving as acting chief during Chief Brennan's illness, served as chief until February 24, when he retired due to ill health.

Most Rev. Patrick J. Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, will open the three-day meeting on Thursday by celebrating a solemn pontificial mass in the St. Vincent de Paul Chapel of Catholic University.

Following the mass, Archbishop O'Boyle will be honored by the order at ceremonies of affiliation to the Institute of the Brothers of the Christian Schools.

Sessions will be divided into college, high school and grammar school and grammar school-welfare institute sections where each will cover problems peculiar to that educational level.

Safety Program Inaugurated For Street Workers

Joint Conference Is Planned Soon

A safety committee will be set up in the Department of Streets and Public Property to coordinate all accident prevention activities Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of the department, announced yesterday.

All 10 of the sub-departments will be represented on the safety committee, she added.

Recommendations for setting up the safety committee have been received from Lynn Walker, state safety official.

All department heads, she added, will receive copies of the recommendations in the near future in preparation for a joint conference of the street superintendent, all foremen, Mrs. Roeder and Walker.

Plans are being made to set up a safety program which can be correlated to the specific duties of each unit of the department.

Orders Extinguishers

Definite progress was reported on plans for fire safety in the Street Department.

Mrs. Roeder said the department has ordered the list of fire fighting equipment recommended by Fire Chief J. T. Defibaugh.

The recommendations included calcium chloride solution type extinguishers for the unheated casino at Constitution Park pool and several other unheated areas, carbon dioxide extinguishers for locations where oil and gas is dispensed at the City Warehouse, with soda and acid extinguishers in other locations.

The Fire Department, Mrs. Roeder said, has promised to service the fire fighting equipment.

Will Test Material

Material has also been ordered by the department to test the efficiency of "Safety-Walk", a new material designed to cut down the hazards of falls.

Slated for the tests are the steps of the Public Safety Building, the entrance to the office at Consitution Park pool and the running boards of department vehicles.

Strips of the material, which resembles coarse emery cloth, will be applied to the steps with a special adhesive to form a non-slip surface.

The resurfacing has found wide uses in factories, on battleships and in public buildings where non-slippery surfacing is vital. Cost of the materials for the tests will be about $40.

Road Lettering Is Explained

The rash of "B" and "E" letters painted on Maryland highways are markers for the center line paint crews of the State Roads Commission.

"B" stands for "beginning" and "E" stands for "end." The driver of the commission's centerline truck operates his paint mechanism at "B" and turns it off at "E."

The reason for the rash of letters this year is that the commission last winter decided to raise Maryland standards to conform to the rest of the nation. Instead of only 500-foot or less sight distances designated by a white centerline, Maryland now paints a centerline where the motorist cannot see at least 900 feet ahead of him.

Weather

Yesterday was another warm summer day with showers in the afternoon. Rain fell at noon and about 4 p. m., a downpour, accompanied by lightning and thunder, cooled the air. Humidity was high. Constitution Park's weather station recorded the high temperature as 84 degrees, the low as 64, and at 8:45 p. m., the mercury stood at 74. Rain was reported as half an inch, with humidity at 82 per cent. The weatherman promised no change in temperature for today.

Work Will Begin On Henry Street Conduit Project

Valley Street Dam Work Progressing

Flood control workers will begin the construction of the Henry Street pressure conduit this week.

Work will be done by the Thomas Earle and Sons firm, which is building the Frederick Street pressure conduit under a sub-contract.

The three by three foot conduit will tie into the Frederick Street pressure line at the intersection of the alley connecting Frederick and Henry Streets.

The comparatively small pressure duct will start at the alley, go to Henry Street and then be carried to a tunnel which has been constructed beneath the rear of the Stein Funeral Home.

From that point, the conduit will then proceed to in front of the B. and O. freight station where it will be tied into a 36-inch brick sewer.

Additional crews will be placed on the Henry Street work so that the present phase of the flood control work will be completed on time.

George and Lynch, contractor for the work, is slated to complete its construction, on or before December 10.

Finishing touches are being placed on the Valley Street detention dam. Some of the work on the big structure could not be undertaken until the outlet structure was open-

Price Of Milk May Jump One Cent In Cumberland

Cumberlanders face the prospect of paying an additional cent for their quart of milk in the near future.

The Pennsylvania Milk Control Commission has approved a half-cent increase in the price of milk for the Johnstown-Altoona area.

This will directly affect the cost here as practically all of the raw milk used here is purchased in Bedford and Somerset counties.

John D. Liebau, president of the Dairy Service Corporation, the local dairymen's organization, said his group will see what effect the increase has on their source of supply.

He pointed out that dairies in that section of Pennsylvania are getting a cent more for their quart of milk than here.

In Cumberland homogenized milk costs 22 cents a quart and regular milk, 21. In Johnstown, the price is 23 cents for homogenized and 22 cents for regular.

Liebau noted that several months ago the same section was given a half-cent increase by the Milk Control Commission, but the local dairies did not raise prices.

As the dairies here are buying in direct competition with the Pennsylvania dairies, Liebau said a one-cent increase is inevitable.

Even in Garrett County where a quantity of milk is purchased, the companies compete with the Pittsburgh and Uniontown firms.

The Dairy Service Corporation does not hike the prices, Liebau said, but each dairy will set its costs individually.

He added that the increase will probably have to go through Office of Price Stabilization channels.

Pfc. Gordon Drowns In Alaskan Waters

Mt. Savage Youth Dies After Boat Capsizes

A 20-year-old Mt. Savage veteran of three years service in the U. S. Army was a victim of drowning in Alaskan waters last Friday. Pfc. David J. Gordon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hayes Gordon, Sunnyside, drowned when the boat in which he was riding capsized, according to military authorities.

The family of the youth received notification that he was missing on Friday and another telegram informed them his body was later recovered. No details of the mishap had been received by the family up to last night.

Gordon was a member of Battery D, 502 Gun Battalion, and had been serving in Alaska for the past 17 months. He was formerly a member of the Army Reserve in Cumberland and at the age of 17 enlisted in the Regular Army and received basic training at Camp Pickett, Va. Later military training in the United States was received by Gordon at Fort Bliss, Texas, and Fort Ord, Calif.

Born February 14, 1931, he attended LaVale School and later worked for some time with a contracting company on the Western Maryland Railway, according to his family.

He was a member of the LaVale Methodist Church and had resided prior to enlisting at the home of a sister, Mrs. Leo Lowery, Homewood Addition. A brother, Hayes R. Gordon Jr., is now stationed with the Army at Fort Campbell, Ky.

Survivors other than his parents are three brothers, Hayes, Fort Campbell, Ky.; Wilbur, Chester Gordon, at home; five sisters, Mrs. Leo Lowery, Mrs. Elmer Garlitz, Mrs. George Garlitz, Homewood Addition, Mildred Gordon, Evelyn Gordon, at home.

The body will be brought to the Zeigler Funeral Home, Hyndman, Pa.

Governor Seeks Zeller's Report In Truck Case

Grantsville Man's Decision Appealed

BALTIMORE, July 18. (AP)—Governor McKeldin today asked Magistrate Charles S. Zeller of Grantsville for a "complete report" on the recent dismissal of truck overweight charges against John O. Riley of Accident.

Zeller, in dismissing the case July 9, called Maryland's new Truck Overweight Law "confusing, poorly written and a hardship." The state charged Riley with driving a truck overweighted 7,100 pounds.

Other Developments

McKeldin's letter to Zeller was released as (1) an improvement association in Baltimore urged Zeller's dismissal for committing a "rebellious act," and (2) the State Roads Commission appealed—for the first time in its history—Zeller's verdict on the Riley case and another the same day.

McKeldin specifically asked the magistrate for "the detailed reasons" for his saying the law is so confusing as to be unenforceable—if Zeller was quoted correctly as saying that.

Tonight, Zeller said he did not call the law unenforceable, but he did say "the law is subject to several interpretations. It really is working a hardship in this section x x x and it is poorly written."

Zeller said he hadn't received the governor's letter. After hearing a copy read by telephone, he said:

"I would recommend to any fair-minded person to read the law and see if it is confusing."

He said Riley's attorneys objected to the way the state figured the amount of overweight.

Axleload Cited

He said they pointed out that the law specifies "axleload," but the state measures the weight by sticking scales under the wheel, whereby weighing the wheel and axle as well.

He said he agreed with that point and dismissed the charge.

The other case the Roads Commission is appealing is the amount of fine levied on Emmett Hall, a driver for the Hopwood Lumber Co. of Hopwood, Pa.

He was found guilty of driving a truck overloaded by 11,600 pounds. Zeller fined him $496 plus costs. The State contends the fine should have been $696 because, the Commission said, the law calls for a fine of two cents a pound for overweights less than 5,000 pounds, and six cents a pound for overweights exceeding 5,000.

Zeller fined him on the basis of two cents a pound for the first 5,000 pounds and six cents for the remaining 6,600 pounds.

The appeals to Circuit Court were handled by Garrett County State's Attorney Dwight Stover for the Commission. It is the first time the Commission ever has filed an appeal in a court case such as this, although it has been the defendant in many appeals.

Zeller was named to the post by McKeldin, but the governor lacks the power to remove him without bringing formal charges.

Governor's Letter

The governor's letter to Zeller:

"My attention has been called to newspaper accounts of the case of John O. Riley of Accident, Maryland, which was adjudicated by you several days ago. As you know, criticism of your decision has been voiced on the ground that you took occasion, not only to comment unfavorably on the policy of the law, but even to refuse to obey its mandate. I have no precise information on this point and am not in a position to form any opinion; but, I should thank you to let me have at your earliest convenience a complete report of the case.

"As governor I have no right or disposition to interfere with the conduct of judicial proceedings. On the other hand, courts both high and low are bound by the laws enacted by the Legislative, and judges have the duty of enforcing those laws even when they disagree with their policy. You will, I am sure, agree that just as the executive authorities may not interfere to influence judicial decisions, members of the judiciary may not supersede acts of the Legislative.

"It may be that your action has been misunderstood or poorly reported. If you are correctly quoted as having said that the law is so confusing as to be unenforceable I should like particularly to have the detailed reasons for your statement."

Ohio Couple Hurt In Car Collision

An elderly Ohio couple were injured, one critically, yesterday afternoon following a headon collision on Route 50 near Capon Bridge, W. Va. on Cooper Mountain.

Mr. and Mrs. Price L. Stewart, Tippecanoe, Ohio, taken to Memorial Hospital, Winchester, Va., were reported last night as "resting comfortably." Mrs. Stewart was in critical condition, suffering from multiple fractures and shock. Her husband suffered possible head injuries and shock, the hospital added.

The Stewarts, enroute to Langley Field, Va., to see their son, were involved in the collision with a tractor-trailer driven by Park E. Beeghly of Cumberland. Beeghly was uninjured, police said.

West Virginia State Police investigated.

Three More Persons Drown; Total Dead Is 23

ST. LOUIS, July 18. (AP)—Flood-wise St. Louis braced tonight for the Mississippi's worst flood in 100 years as it felt the first blows of torrents which already have devastated vast areas and cities in Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma.

At least 23 persons are known to have lost their lives and this afternoon three unidentified youths were reported to have drowned in backwaters of the Mississippi just south of East St. Louis, Ill.

The crest of flood waters, still crippling the twin cities of Kansas City on the Kansas-Missouri border, are churning down the Missouri River to its meeting with the Mississippi above St. Louis.

Reach Jefferson City

They lashed tonight with full fury at Central Missouri. They poured into 20 blocks of Jefferson City, state capital. Electric service to the capitol and other state buildings was threatened by water backing into the state power plant.

The crest is expected here Sunday. The weather bureau predicted the Mississippi would go to 40.5 feet, the highest it has been since 1844. In 1947 the river caused an estimated $9,000,000 damage when it reached 40.3 feet.

City officials were confident St. Louis could weather the blows but they took no chances with a flood which already has been the costliest in the nation's history with damage estimated at $750,000,000.

Every major department of city government, the fire department, the police department, the water division and others, were alerted to an emergency basis in St. Louis. Already the flood had crept into a number of riverfront industries. Damage there has reached an estimated $750,000.

Fire Hazard Threatened

Even as St. Louis girded, Kansas City, Kas., still faced the threat of explosions and fire hazards from floating oil and gasoline in two major industrial districts. A 20,000 barrel gasoline tank in the Armourdale District had sprung a leak. Two leaks were reported in the Great Lakes pipeline in the Fairfax District.

Officials said a tiny spark could ignite them into a floating inferno which by comparison would make the blaze which burned seven blocks in Kansas City since Friday seem like a bonfire.

But Kansas City was digging out along with flooded Kansas towns along the Kansas River where the flood troubles began last week.

Business stores, including taverns and laundries, were permitted to resume full time operation in Kansas City today. Restrictions were removed from downtown traffic. But strict conservation of water still was urged.

Probe Started About Missing Red Leaders

Secret Grand Jury Proceedings Begin

NEW YORK, July 18 (AP) — A Federal Grand Jury today launched a secret probe into the mysterious disappearance of four bail-jumping leaders of the Communist Party in the United States.

The four Reds failed to show up two weeks ago when seven top-ranking comrades started prison terms for conspiring to teach and advocate the violent overthrow of the government.

Search Is Underway

An international search is underway for them.

Grand Jury proceedings are secret and very little information came out of the opening session.

Among the very first witnesses were three imprisoned trustees of the Civil Rights Bail Funds—which posted $80,000 bond for the fugitives.

The trustees are Leftist Millionaire Frederick Vanderbilt Field, Mystery Writer Dashiell Hammett and W. Alphaeus Hunton.

Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan has said it might aid the search for the fugitives if the government knew where the bail money came from. The trustees have refused to tell him.

Ryan has sentenced Field to 90 days in jail for contempt and the other two to six months each. Only yesterday, they were denied further bond.

Field, Hammett and Hunton spent only about five minutes each before the grand jury.

Brushes Newsmen Off

Newsmen tried to talk to Field, but he brushed them off.

U. S. Attorney Irving H. Saypol indicated the grand jury also wants to know if anybody helped the fugitive Reds get away.

"x x x Violations of law arising out of the harboring of fugitives or obstruction of justice are part of my official obligation," he said.

The four missing Communist leaders are Robert Thompson, Gus Hall, Gilbert Green and Henry Winston. Thompson is under sentence of three years. The other three—plus the seven now in prison—drew five year sentences.

Rock Quarry Slide Buries 30 Workers

CASERTA, Italy, July 18 (AP) — Tons of rock dropped from a mountainside into a stone quarry here today, burying 30 workers. At midnight, rescuers had dug out eight bodies and 11 seriously injured men.

Eleven other workmen were believed trapped under the rockslide, along with two horses and three trucks.

The huge section of the mountain crashed into the quarry two hours after a routine blast had been set off. There appeared to be little hope that the men still buried could be brought out alive.

Rita, Prince May Reconcile

NEW YORK, July 18 (AP)—Possibility of a reconciliation between Rita Hayworth and Prince Aly Khan was reported by her attorney today—provided the Prince meets one "primary condition."

Bartley Crum, the film star's lawyer, staved off all attempts to pin him down on the nature of the condition.

He told a news conference what it was not.

He said the condition was "not financial." And, he added, it did not involve the actress' place of residence or the estranged couple's child, Yasmin.

With that, the movie star's fans were left to guess the real source of friction in the royal romance.

Former Circus Fat Woman Loses 401 Pounds In Diet

FORT THOMAS, Ky., July 18 (AP) — Trying to lose a few pounds, and finding it tough?

Take courage, folks, from the story of Dollie Dimples, only a year ago "the most beautiful fat girl in the show business."

From 555 pounds to 154 was her boast today as she celebrated her 50th birthday at the home of her sister, Mrs. Frank Goetz.

Gone for Dollie — in private life Mrs. Celesta Geyer — are the days when the sideshow spieler shouted:

"Come in and see a quarter of a ton of fat on one girl. It takes four ladies to make one Dollie Dimple."

Dollie said her heart finally could not bear the strain of her poundage and went bad a year ago at her home in Lockhart, a suburb of Orlando, Fla. Doctors gave her up when she could not breathe lying down.

Then she went on a diet of meat, vegetables and fruit, she told a reporter, limiting the calory content to 800 per day. If she got hungry, she smoked a cigarette.

The fat began to disappear.

Dolly, active in her heavy days because of her song and dance routine — the latter quite a feat in view of her weight — said this of her 401-pound decline:

"It's simple, all anyone has to do is diet properly and have will power to stick strictly to the diet.

Came the day when she could look down, not at a protruding tummy, but all the way down to her toes.

"That was a happy day," she told a reporter.

Now, she says, she is giving up the show because — not because she has lost the real props for the act — but because after 23 years on the boards, she has a new field.

"I'm going to show women how they can reduce," she said.

Attlee May Fly Here

Smiling Negotiator

Gen. Nam Il, chief North Korean delegate to the cease-fire negotiations, sits hatless and smiling with his aides in the waiting room of the conference house in Kaesong just prior to meeting with UN leaders. Unidentified members of the conference groups are seen entering the negotiating room. Yesterday's meeting broke up with disagreement still existing over one issue—the all-important removal of foreign troops from Korea. Conferences may continue on the subject today.

Finances Seen As Source Of Intended Trip

Talk With Truman To Study Problems

LONDON, July 18 (AP) — Prime Minister Attlee may fly to Washington in August for a new series of personal talks with President Truman and other top American leaders, informed sources said today.

The informants said Britain's rocky financial situation probably was the original inspiration for the idea, but that all problems common to the two Allies would be discussed.

Still Being Planned

The trip still is in the planning stage, with no final arrangements made. (State Department officials said Wednesday they had had no hint through diplomatic channels of the impending visit.)

If Attlee does go it apparently would be too late to take up the open disagreement between the United States and her North Atlantic Allies over inclusion of Spain in Western Defense plans.

Attlee's last trip to Washington last December was at a time when the British became alarmed over the possibility that the Korean War might spread into an all-out war in the Far East. Several American-British differences were smoothed over at that time.

By August the outcome of cease-fire negotiations in Korea may be lain. Other problems likely to figure in the new talks would include the future of Korea, relations with Red China, rearmament, and international action to control commodity prices and distribute raw materials.

Atlantic Pact questions also are multiplying. Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison touched on one of them today. He announced in the House of Commons that Britain now favors taking Greece and Turkey into the North Atlantic Pact organization.

Britain Was Cool

The United States urged its pact partners early in May to consider such a step. Britain at first was cool to the idea, and favored some sort of regional Middle East pact in which the two countries would figure.

Today, however, Morrison said Britain had come to the conclusion that a direct Turkish and Greek membership in the Atlantic Pact was the best solution of their security problem.

A French foreign office spokesman in Paris said France would still prefer a regional pact for those two countries. Until today only Italy and the United States were reported to favor the admission of the two countries, but the main opposition came from the Scandinavian countries and Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

MAY VISIT U. S.—Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee of England may make an important call on President Truman sometime next month to discuss pertinent problems between the two countries, it was revealed yesterday. Among the points to be discussed will be Britain's finances and the Korean situation as well as Atlantic Pact negotiations.

Truman Urges Social Security Benefits Hike

Views Put In Letter To Vice President

WASHINGTON, July 18. (AP)—President Truman urged Congress today to increase Social Security insurance benefits if it increased relief payments.

At the same time he said the lawmakers should require that any additional Federal cash for relief shall actually go to the relief beneficiaries and not merely serve to cut down the amount states pay from their own funds.

Debate Brings Attack

The President put his views into a letter to Vice President Barkley as the Senate took up a bill to raise the Federal share of relief payments to the aged, blind and disabled, and to crippled children, by $140,000,000 a year.

In the Senate itself the debate brought a bitter attack by Senator Cain (R-Wash) on the way the whole Social Security program works. He said it is "expanding at a crazy rate just as cancer cells do (and) will eventually, I firmly believe, wreck our economy unless a halt is made."

Cain opposed the proposal for an extra $3 per month of Federal money for the aged but said he was "ready to pay as high a tax as my fellow citizens are willing to pay to put x x x an honest Social Security into operation."

Bill Under Consideration

The bill under consideration would provide $3 a month each for needy aged, blind and disabled, and $1.60 for crippled children.

President Truman's proposal for a boost in insurance benefits was offered in an amendment sponsored by Senators Lehman (D-Lib-NY) Humphrey (D-Minn) and Langer (R-ND). The Senate quit for the night, however, without action on it.

Their plan would make a slight revision in the formula for computing payments to future beneficiaries. It would increase the maximum for an individual from $80 to $83.50 a month, and for a man and wife from $150 to $160. The minimum for a widow with children would go up from $40 to $50.

India Exempted

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP)—The National Security Council today exempted India from provisions of the Kem Amendment, which bars economic aid to any country selling war potential materials to iron curtain countries.

Disputed Item Creates Delay In Conference

Parley To Continue On Important Issue

SEOUL, Thursday, July 19 (AP)—Disagreement between United Nations and Communist delegations on a single, vital issue—probably Red demands for withdrawal of foreign troops—blocked an agreement today on the Korean cease-fire agenda.

Both sides agreed to tackle the officially undisclosed issue at a seventh meeting, called for 11 a. m. (8 p. m. EST, Wednesday) at Kaesong.

The Allied road convoy left Munsan for Kaesong at 8:30 a. m. It included signal and service personnel. The five-man Allied delegation, interpreters and other officials followed by helicopter.

(In London, the Moscow radio was heard to say that Red negotiators would insist on withdrawal of all foreign troops from Korea. The broadcast quoted a Tass dispatch from Pyongyang, the Korean Communist capital.)

Compromise May Be Made

It was believed that some sort of compromise might soon be worked out to permit the negotiators to finish their job of drawing up an agenda.

Two other undisclosed issues were resolved Wednesday.

Newsmen covering the sixth session at Kaesong Wednesday, noted growing hostility of Communist soldiers, policemen and residents inside the conference city. It was in marked contrast to the preceding days.

Correspondents attributed the change in attitude of Kaesong's population to efforts by their Communist rulers to discourage any show of friendliness.

Allied newsmen and photographers were ordered by the U. N. command to remain henceforth within a half-mile area of the conference site itself.

Since Monday newsmen who went to Kaesong had roamed everywhere within a five-mile radius of the city. An Allied spokesman reminded:

"Remember, Kaesong is a city that is behind Communist outpost lines."

The Peiping and Pyongyang Red radios also took a more pugnacious tone during the day. Peiping radio threatened reprisals if the Allied forces continued to carry out attacks against Red lines.

Actually, Allied patrols have probed beyond their lines every day since the peace talks began. The moves obviously were designed to locate shifting enemy positions while the preliminary talks were going on in Kaesong.

Make Additional Progress

Wednesday's meeting resulted in United Nations acceptance of two points presented by the Communist delegation.

This resulted in "some additional progress . . . toward formation of

House Votes Added Curbs On Controls

Move Catches Administration Off Its Guard

Bans Regulations Prohibiting Profit

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP) — Over administration protests, the House today voted to ban all price controls which would prevent a "reasonable profit."

Catching administration Democrats off guard, farm state legislators rammed through a series of amendments that threw fresh curbs on the administration's price controls program.

If finally enacted into law, the amendments might cause a review of every ceiling price fixed by the Office of Price Stabilization to take into account cost-plus-profit data on all farm and industrial products.

OPS ceiling prices run into many thousands.

Many Democrats were off the floor when the votes were taken.

However, Majority Leader McCormack (D-Mass) told newsmen he believes the prospects are favorable for reversing the actions.

All votes so far have been tentative, subject to final approval when the House votes on the completed bill for a new economic controls law. The present law expires July 31.

Late in the day, the House beat down an attempt to deprive the Wage Stabilization Board of its present power to handle labor disputes.

The Chamber also voted to keep the present status of the 18-man board with equal representation by public, labor and industry members.

The House defeated by a teller vote of 217 to 113 an amendment by Rep. Lucas (D-Tex) which would have placed public members in a majority over the combined labor and industry members.

Both the Lucas amendment and another by Rep. Kersten (R-Wisc) would have clipped the board's authority to settle labor disputes.

Mayer To Attempt Cabinet Reform

PARIS, July 18 (AP) — Radical Socialist Rene Mayer agreed tonight to try to form a new French cabinet.

Mayer, Minister of Justice in the outgoing government of Henri Queuille, is the second man to attempt to merge warring factions in a new middle-of-the-road coalition government. Finance Minister Maurice Petsche gave up earlier today.

Don't Belittle Friend Scotty Boxer Discovers

SAN GABRIEL, Calif., July 18 (AP) —Notice to Boxer dogs: Never underestimate the power of a Scotty.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Weiland were out walking their small Scotty Jeff last night when these events, as reported to police, occurred:

The Weilands passed Mrs. Charles A. Fraser who had a big Boxer on a leash. After they passed the Boxer made a lunge, broke his leash, and started for Jeff.

Mrs. Weiland grabbed her pet into her arms and was promptly bitten on the left hand by the Boxer. She lateraled Jeff to her husband. Then the Boxer bit him, also on the left hand. Weiland dropped his Scotty to the sidewalk.

The tide of battle quickly reversed. Jeff chased the Boxer, got a bulldog grip on the big dog. It took water from a garden hose to part them.

Women Protest For Pay Raise

LONDON, July 18 (AP)—The dignified calm of the House of Commons was shattered tonight by a mass invasion of 500 angry women.

The women, all government employes, streamed over from a nearby hall where they had staged a protest meeting, demanding equal pay with men.

Before startled police and parliament officials realized what was happening, the women started to pour into the Commons entrance lobby, demanding to see their constituency representatives.

A quick-witted policeman slammed the heavy oak doors before many got inside. Police reinforcements were rushed up as the women outside, some carrying banners, hammered at the doors and shouted, "we want Gaitskell." Hugh Gaitskell, Chancellor of the Exchequer, recently rejected the demand for equal pay for women on the grounds it would cost too much.

The shouts of the women reached the debating chamber and the sergeant-at-arms came out in his uniform of frock coat and knee breeches, his sword at his side, to ask what the fuss was about.

Seeks Home Rule

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP)—Rep. Klein (D-NY) asked Congress today to provide home rule for the District of Columbia.

U. S., Spain Agree On Use Of Air Bases

Overrule Protests Of France, Britain

MADRID, July 18 (AP)—Spain and the United States have reached a basic agreement on American use of Spanish air and naval bases in Western Defense, authoritative sources said tonight.

This will not involve an outright Spanish-American alliance. The agreement in principle, informants said, was reached Tuesday when Adm. Forrest P. Sherman, American Chief of Naval Operations, had a four-hour talk with Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Secretary of State Dean Acheson said in Washington the talks had gotten underway despite British and French objections. These countries oppose Spain's admission into the Atlantic Pact, her association with any member of the pact, and the American plan to acquire naval and air bases in Spain. A French foreign office spokesman has described the American negotiations as unfair to France.

Acheson said the talks were going forward because "military authorities are in general agreement that Spain is of strategic importance to the general defense of Western Europe."

Informants yesterday said Sherman had asked Franco for the use of naval bases at Cadiz, Cartagena and Ferrol as well as Santa Cruz in the Canaries, and air bases at Barcelona, Madrid, Seville and possibly Valencia and Lugo, southeast of Ferrol.

Details of the agreement will be worked out late this month by a special American mission representing the three armed services and the State Department. The groundwork already has been done by American air, naval and military attaches here.

Well-Dressed Man Steals Stuffed 'Gator

OAKLAND, Calif., July 18 (AP) — Police today sought a well-dressed man with a five-foot stuffed alligator under his arm.

Such a person, they were told, walked out of a Thirteenth Street furniture company this morning.

The clerks said they saw him leave, but they assumed he had paid the cashier $20 — that's how the price tag read—for the 'Gator. He hadn't.

Mrs. Kee Ninth Woman In Congress

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP) — Election of Mrs. Elizabeth Kee to the House of Representatives gives women the largest representation they have ever had in Congress.

Mrs. Kee, West Virginia Democrat, was elected yesterday to fill the unexpired term of her husband, who died.

When she is sworn in there will be nine women in the House, and one in the Senate.

New Ambassador

LONDON, July 18 (AP) — Britain has decided to name Sir Alvary Gascoigne as her new ambassador to Russia, informed diplomats reported today.

90,000 American Veterans To Be Returned From Korea

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP) — Ninety thousand veterans of Korea will come marching home in the next 90 days under the Army's stepped up "first-in, first-out' rotation plan. Recruits from the U. S. will take their places.

An Army announcement today said the rotation rate should reach 30,000 this month and be kept at that level through the next three months.

It will mark a big increase in the rate of homeward bound servicemen. Only 32,000 men have been returned to the U. S. from Korea through July 10.

No reason was given for the increased rotation rate. Presumably, it reflects an increased turnout of trained servicemen by U. S. Army camps.

With fighting and casualties slackening in Korea, the Army may now feel it can afford to send home a larger number of veterans in return for fresh troops.

The Army has followed a practice of fitting Korean-trained veterans into training operations in the U. S., particularly commissioned and non-commissioned officers.

Virtually all of the Army's top officials who served in Korea during early months of the war already have been returned to the U. S. and replaced by stateside officers.

The Army said its rotation program depends on the speed with which replacements can reach Korea and on the need for maintaining fighting efficiency of individual units.

Jaycees To Study Theatre Pact

Five members of the Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce will go to Abingdon, Va., August 3 to discuss the proposed contract with the Barter Theatre for sponsorship of some of its plays here during the 1951-52 season.

This decision was reached at a meeting of the Jaycee Board of Directors last night. Better terms, better dates and better plays from last season are the Jaycees' objectives. Those who will go to Abingdon are Floyd V. Cozad, Barter Theatre committee chairman; Henry Mackey, Jaycee president; Richard Sell, Ralph Higgins and Edwin Meyer.

The board decided to postpone the next regular meeting from August 1 to August 8. Walter Hedrick was appointed new chairman of the Hoover Commission report committee. Volunteer writers to assist in the preparation of copy for The Progress, Jaycee publication, were announced as Ralph Higgins, Kenneth Morgan, Edwin Meyer, Raymond C. Dorn and Robert Brown.

TACO PROTECTS HIS FRIEND — Taco, playmate of 16-month-old Jerome Krynik, finds a stick and urges the infant up the beach to safety after a cooling dip in the shallows of a lake at Saugatuck, Mich. Jerome is the son of Theodor Krynik, an instructor at a summer school of painting at this resort town.

B. And O. Shows Safety Movie To Children

More than 854,000 school children living along the lines of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad have learned a lot about "playing safe" from the railroad's police officers.

The B. & O.'s safety education program, carried into the schools by railroad police officers, has met with approval from educators. The children like it too, because the safety program is built around a cartoon motion picture film which holds their interest. This is titled "The Happy Locomotive," and it tells the troubles and triumphs of its engineer, Uncle Bob.

The railroad also is gratified with the results of the program because in the areas in which it has been carried out, there has been a marked reduction in the unsafe juvenile practices and depredations which cause so much trouble for the railroad policemen.

Nation's Underground Coal Fires Are Being Controlled

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP) — About a quarter of the nation's underground coal fires have been brought under control, James Boyd, director of the Bureau of Mines, said today.

Boyd estimated the saving at more than 120,000,000 tons of bituminous and anthracite coal which, if mined, would be worth more than $500,000,000 at current prices.

And he said the whole fire-control program, started three years ago, has cost the Federal Government $1,108,000, or less than one cent a ton on the coal estimated to have been saved.

Fires on public domain were put out or controlled entirely at the expense of the Federal Government. In the case of fires on private, state or county lands, however, the landowners paid one-third of the cost.

Boyd said the bureau has investigated more than 80 fires in abandoned coal mines or in deposits where no mining is under way. Some of them have been raging for a generation or more, destroying coal, threatening buildings and lands, and releasing gases which menace the health of nearby residents.

Three years ago the bureau started projects to control 17 of the fires. The projects were chosen either because they were the most serious or because they could most readily be eliminated to avoid further losses.

The most effective technique with fires entirely underground was to smother them with silt, flushed down upon them through boreholes, Boyd said.

New Attempts Made To Free Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP)—The United States has begun new diplomatic moves to get AP Correspondent William Oatis out of a Czechoslovakian prison.

This was disclosed today by Secretary of State Acheson who indicated the government may have made some sort of an offer to the Communist regime in Prague.

What this offer might be was not stated.

Solon Cites "Poor" Law Enforcement

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP) — Senator Kefauver (D-Tenn) said today evidence of open gambling indicated "rather poor" law enforcement in past years in Anne Arundel County (Annapolis), Maryland.

This evidence, however, dates only to January, 1951, he told reporters after a closed-door hearing by the Senate Crime Committee on gambling in Maryland. He said he does not know what the situation is now.

If the U. N. agenda items are accepted, future talks also will include the creation of a buffer zone on present lines in North Korea and freedom of movement behind opposing lines for neutral observers.

Besides the demand for withdrawal of foreign troops, the Reds have expressed their desire to discuss the exchange of prisoners, a cease-fire and a buffer zone running 14 miles wide along the 38th Parallel.

Veterans Benefits

World War II veterans, with few exceptions will lose the right to educational benefits of the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944—the GI Bill—unless they are actually enrolled in school on July 25. The act had provided that training under its provisions must have begun by four years after the end of World War II or four years after discharge—whichever was later. For purposes of the GI Bill, the termination of the war was fixed by later legislation at July 25, 1947.

Exceptions will be made, primarily for medical students who received their pre-medical education under the GI Bill and have been unable to obtain admission to medical schools; teachers working toward a degree who can attend school only in summer vacations; veterans who had begun school only to be recalled or to volunteer for active duty. Again with some exceptions, all schooling is to be completed by July 25, 1956.

In the seven years of the GI Bill program thus far completed—the bill was signed by President Roosevelt on June 22, 1944—the Veterans Administration has paid out more than $12 billion for tuition, subsistence allowances, supplies, training equipment. Some 7,500,000 veterans—about half of those who served in World War II—have taken some form of training in schools, on the job, or on farms.

Over $8 billion has gone to veterans in subsistence allowances. Schools have received $4 billion for tuition and expenses.

The VA had paid more than $3.2 billion in allowances to unemployed and self-employed veterans. Only a few veterans are still eligible for such allowances. The VA has guaranteed half the amount of loans totaling about $15.2 billion for homes, farms, and businesses. The loan program will extend to July 25, 1957.

To protect the GI Bill program from abuse, Congress had adopted amending legislation: (in 1946) to limit on-the-job training benefits to veterans earning $3,000 a year or less; (in 1948) to require veterans to show that courses taken in schools would aid them vocationally; (in 1949) to limit enrollment to schools which had been established for at least a year; (in 1950) to establish minimum standards for vocational training schools.

Nevertheless, the Teague subcommittee has uncovered abuses in the administration of the program and in various schools training veterans. Spokesmen for the subcommittee cite one ruling of a VA regional office which was reversed successively by the VA central office, the solicitor, the administrator. In Pennsylvania, 60 schools were closed as a result of hearings in Philadelphia and Harrisburg. And the subcommittee discovered that in Texas 56 schools training veterans were owned or operated by former VA employes.

Bail For Communists

All in a tangle is the legal issue of bail for 15 of the 21 "second-string" Communist leaders indicted in New York for conspiring to teach the forcible overthrow of the Government. Two of the 21 had furnished bail from a satisfactory source. The remaining four defendants have yet to be picked up.

The question to be decided: Was the Civil Rights Congress a proper bail provider for the 15? Trustees of the bail fund of this body had refused to tell where the money came from—and thereupon brought up the question of bail for themselves when jailed for contempt of court. The Eighth Amendment in forbidding excessive bail seems to imply the right of bail without specifying it.

The institution of bail (or bailment) grew up to protect both sides in a criminal prosecution. The accused would not have to stay in jail until tried (often, of course, to be found innocent), and the prosecution would have some guaranty that he would appear for trial.

The practice of bail is admittedly unsatisfactory in many jurisdictions. A poor and friendless defendant may find much more difficulty in procuring bail than a rich and influential one. Sometimes the same piece of property is accepted as surety for a score of different persons; sometimes the surety is not automatically forfeited when the bailed person "takes a powder."

And there is no agreement on the point at which the bail requirement in a particular case ceases to be merely effective and begins to be excessive. The $25,000 bail fixed for William D. ("Bill Big") Haywood, one of the IWW leaders found guilty in 1918 of wartime sedition, failed to keep him from skipping off to Russia in disguise while his case was under review. Gerhard Eisler, Communist, was under $23,500 bail when he skipped out in 1949. Bail of $20,000 had been put up by the Civil Rights Congress for each of the four "first-string" Communist leaders who cannot be found to begin their five-year sentences.

Rampaging Rivers

The floods of catastrophic proportions which have ravaged Western Missouri and Eastern Kansas have, as was inevitable, inspired proposals for vast flood control projects, to be financed by the federal government. To prevent floods of the type which inundated this vast area would entail expenditures of many billions of dollars.

Not since 1844 has the stricken section undergone comparable flood catastrophe, and in that year there were few whites in the area. Reconstruction and rehabilitation will be a slow and costly process. Hundreds of thousands of persons will be compelled to make good their own losses as best they can.

Meteorologists are unable to explain occurrences such as this. July rains are seldom of flood proportions in the inundated territory, yet here is an entire countryside turned into a vast lake and a hundred cities and towns flooded. This holocaust was not caused by lack of flood prevention projects. A similar freak of nature could manifest itself anywhere.

Accurate figures on the total losses suffered by the million inhabitants of the area can never be known. But the billion-dollar figure which has been mentioned may prove conservative.

The "reserve for bad debts" is a handy accountants' category. Something of the sort is very appropriate, too, for the people trying to make a budget work.

Women comprise the tiniest bit more than fifty per cent of the people. It just seems like much more at times.

The Chronic Complainer

Victims of hydochondriasis have marked anxiety about their health. They have complaints galore and when relieved of one are likely to develop another. The majority do not enjoy bad health but are abnormally concerned with everything that has to do with their physical being. A fleeting ache makes them think of cancer and a skipped heart beat means coronary thrombosis.

The slightest inference by a physician that the condition is caused by nerves makes the patient antagonistic and critical. Unless treated sympathetically patients shop from one physician to another and they are always fair game for quacks. Their bathroom cabinets contain enough medicine to start a drug store but the remedies seldom work because these individuals have no disease that drugs can touch.

Hypochondriacs come in all ages and men are bothered just as much as women. The multiplicity of the complaints makes it necessary for some to write them down and hand the list to the physician: "It hurts on this side of the head all of the time, my neck is sore, and when I lift my right leg something feels tight in the knee. I am worried, nervous, haven't slept for a week, and have the craziest dreams. My teeth hurt and food never digests in my stomach even when I take yogurt but I'm more worried about my heart, which is giving me trouble." These organ recitals tax the ingenuity of the best physicians because the condition is baffling and the cause unidentified. Furthermore, the victim is incapacitated even tho he passes a physical examination.

Most physicians worry lest the patient will some day develop an organic disturbance that will go undetected, as in the case of the boy who cried wolf. Some hypochondriacs have definite abnormalities in addition to their long list of complaints. After all, a certain percentage is bound to have high blood pressure and older men and women develop arterio-sclerosis, arthritis, cataracts, and various other degenerative disturbances. These disorders complicate the picture because medical men have found it difficult to determine the validity of the symptoms. Is palpitation traceable to heart trouble or is it part of the hypochondriasis?

The bizarre symptoms always are out of proportion to the physical condition of the individuals. It is the penalty they pay for having en emotional temperament. Anxiety reigns and manifests itself in terms of aches and pains, a feeling of being rundown, tired, nervous, and depressed. They have had more than their share of trouble, chiefly because they are unable to handle adversities; this tends to increase their difficulties, which in turn makes them more frustrated and dejected. They lack security and become more and more helpless.

In neurasthenia, an allied condition, the accent is more on fatigue (mental and physical), muscular weakness, headaches, inability to concentrate, and sleeplessness. The hypochondriac is inclined to center his attention on one or more of his organs but there is no sharp delineation between these two types of neuroses.

TELESCOPED BOWEL

Mrs. C. writes: I have heard of a child who was operated on for intussusception. What is the nature of his disorder?

REPLY

In this condition, a portion of the intestine telescopes into itself. The blood supply to the fold on the inside is disturbed and the tissues swell to such an extent that the bowel becomes obstructed. The remedy is surgery.

INFLAMED UVULA

H. T. writes: Would an infected uvula be more likely to originate from germs in the air or an infection in the body?

REPLY

In the majority of cases inflammation of the uvula is associated with the common cold. Hence the organisms would come from without.

BLEEDING CAPILLARY

G. R. writes: How long does it take to heal a ruptured vessel in the nose caused by blowing too hard?

REPLY

Bleeding stops when a clot develops but days may elapse before the capillary heals completely.

COLON CANCER

A. C. writes: I have heard that it is not advisable to have piles removed after the age of 65 because cancer is likely to follow such an operation. Is this true?

REPLY

No. Most individuals past 50 have hemorrhoids but in the majority there are no symptoms. If bleeding occurs, however, it may be incorrectly attributed to hemorrhoids. Unless a careful examination is done, the physician may overlook a co-existing malignancy.

CHUBBY NOSE

M. K. writes: Can a fleshy nose be reduced?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Senatorial Courtesy Helped Kansas Flood; Truman's Policy On Natural Gas Undercut; Federal Power Commission Puts Vetoed Kerr Bill Into Force

WASHINGTON — Part of the damage suffered by the people of Kansas in the current flood would have been avoided but for the custom of senatorial courtesy.

Thirteen years ago, Congress passed a bill authorizing a 22,000-acre reservoir on Tuttle Creek, north of Manhattan, Kansas. It was proposed by the Army Engineers as a means of controlling the floods which have swept Eastern Kansas periodically.

However, the dam was never built—for the reason that the money never was voted by Congress, Although authorized, it was never voted because one of the late Republican senators from Kansas, Clyde Reed, objected. Every time the appropriation came up for the Tuttle Creek reservoir, Senator Reed turned thumbs down, and under the system of senatorial courtesy he had the final say.

Frank Carlson, now a GOP senator from Kansas, was then a congressman and did his best to obtain passage of the appropriation. Later, as governor, Frank Carlson also tried to push the Tuttle Creek reservoir through. But Senator Reed had some friends in that area who owned farming land which would have been taken over by the proposed reservoir. Unfortunately, he put their interest ahead of the interest of the rest of the people of Eastern Kansas.

Now lives have been lost and millions of dollars worth of property ruined in a flood which could have been partly controlled if the Army Engineers' plan had been followed.

Why Truman Can't Win

An unpublicized incident occurred in the Federal Power Commission recently which illustrates why Harry Truman is almost certain not to be elected president of the United States even if he chooses to run.

The incident involved a poker-playing crony of the President's, ex-Sen. Mon Wallgren, who deliberately cut his chief's throat.

This has become a favorite pattern in Washington. The White House outlines a policy, frequently a fine and courageous policy. Then the President appoints men who throw that policy in the ditch. That's why the Truman Administration is being called the "talk-big-do-little" administration.

This was what he did on one of the most important battles he has waged in the past year—his veto of the Kerr Natural Gas Bill. The bill was authored by a friend of his, powerful, popular Sen. Bob Kerr of Oklahoma. But it would have boosted the price of gas to city populations everywhere, and also boosted the profits of the oil and gas companies. So Truman vetoed it.

Yet, believes it or not, the Federal power Commission has now secretly overruled the President's policy and completely nullified his veto.

What the Kerr Bill said was that the Federal Power Commission did not have jurisdiction to regulate the price of natural gas going into interstate pipelines. The President, overruling the Kerr Bill, said the power commission did have jurisdiction.

Secret Vote

But, by a secret 4-to-1 vote, the FPC has now decided not to take jurisdiction over the biggest producer of natural gas, Phillips Petroleum, thus directly reversing the President and giving the oil and gas moguls their greatest victory in years.

Incidentally, housewives in the cities of the North, Midwest and Southwest can look for hikes in the price of their gas very shortly.

Significantly also—Senator Kerr is one of the biggest suppliers of natural gas to Phillips Petroleum. He owns several leases in partnership with Phillips, while his Kerr-McGee Oil Company owns an estimated $100,000,000 in natural gas reserves. His gross income of $12,000,000 a year makes him the wealthiest man in the Senate.

Truman's Crony

Most amazing thing about the Federal Power Commission debate was the way the President's poker-playing crony, Chairman Mon Wallgren, actually broke into the final arguments of the attorneys defending the public to quote excerpts from the Kerr Bill.

"I want to hear something about what Congress thought," Wallgren explained, as he quoted from the bill which his chief in the White House had vetoed.

At one point, Wallgren nearly got into a brawl with James H. Lee, Detroit attorney, who was arguing for the public. Wallgren shouted accusations across the hearing room, charging that local utility commissions shirked their duties. The argument got so hot that Lee started toward the commission bench, and Wellgren pushed back his chair ready for action. However, aged Commissioner Claude Draper headed Lee off by dashing out from behind the bench and planting himself in front of Lee.

Wallgren also baited William Torkelson, counsel for the Wisconsin Public Service Commission. In fact, the FPC chairman seemed to go out of his way to undercut the man in the White House who appointed him. One of Wallgren's tactics was to bombard pro-consumer lawyers with so many questions that they didn't have time to sum up their arguments. For example, FPC Attorney Lambert McAllister was limited to two hours to present the public's case. Yet Wallgren hurled so many irrelevant questions at him that McAllister never finished his presentation.

Finally, Commissioner Thomas Buchanan blurted angrily: "Don't you think we might have a little more argument from counsel?"

An Old Man Gets Tired

One day, following these oral arguments, Wallgren called a surprise closed-door meeting to decide the Phillips case. Staff members could hardly believe it when the motion to rule in favor of Phillips and reverse the President's policy was offered by Commissioner Draper, the man who had battled tooth-and-nail against the Kerr Bill only a year ago.

These Days

Dignified Strength

In the Orient, strength is always understood; it is respected if accompanied by the rare quality of natural dignity. The so-called practical man, who knows that the shortest distance between two points is a straight line, often wonders why when he reaches his goal, there is no one there to deal with. The practical man, as he calls himself, usually omits what he likes to regard as emotional factors. The Oriental does not necessarily stand in the way of the oncoming speeder; he steps aside to wait for a calmer approach. He knows that neither speed nor reason is the sole concomitant of any situation.

This lesson has apparently now been learned by the government of the United States. It has ben a costly lesson, costly in lives and in wealth. But if it has truly been absorbed by those who make policy decisions in Washington, then we are on the way to doing something not only about the Korean situation but about all Far Eastern questions.

From a Far Eastern standpoint, this is the way the situation stands:

1. The Russians intervened to achieve peace;

2. The Americans hastily jumped at the suggestion because they were in a hurry to get out of a stalemated war;

3. The Chinese and Korean Communists took their time, made their own terms, carried them out, and the Americans accepted the Sino-Korean formula;

4. The Americans walked into Kaesong and discovered that they were receiving unequal treatment, that an effort was being made to establish that they (the Americans) were suing for peace;

5. The American newspapermen and photographers broke through military censorship and got the story to the American people who were outraged by the conduct of their military officials;

6. The United States, showing dignified strength, then retired from the Kaesong conference and rejected the idea of unequal treatment;

7. The Sino-Koreans retreated from their position and accepted the American terms "in principle." Ultimately, they accepted them in fact.

There is the pattern of a lesson which every Oriental knows since childhood. Dignified strength is like a stone wall. If you bang your head against it, you can break your head, but you are not likely to knock down the stone wall.

In the Western world, we call much of this "standing by your principles," or "standing by your guns." But what we call "practical and reasonable men" feel generally that it is best — they might put it, "cheapest in the end" — to compromise, to find what the lawyers call "a meeting of the minds."

In the Orient, all this is bad practice, and the point must be made that Stalin is an Oriental, the same as Mao Tze-tung. To such persons, over-anxiety and compromise represent undignified weakness. Over-anxiety is undignified; an eager compromise is weakness. Before a compromise is reached, each side must stand stock-still and swear on all that is holy, including the grave of his father, that he will not give an inch. This must be repeated, with a deep sense of outrage, two or three times. Then somehow, out of a welter of many words and loud speech, a little break appears.

This break must not indicate weakness, retreat, fear. It must be done in a superior manner. At that point, the party of the second part should do the same. Here commences the real negotiation which comes down to this: How can we best get out of the mess we are both in without "losing face?"

In the days when such negotiations were my daily fare, I went through this sort of thing with endless constancy. Nothing in those days was more sporting than watching Chinese and Japanese experts handle this game. They managed to keep out of war for a fairly long time under trying circumstances by endless negotiation and conference on a variety of subjects. These talks also included a vast number of heavy parties in both countries with geisha and singsong girls and enormous quantities of lukewarm rice wine. At such festivities no direct negotiations took place, but a word was said here and there which led to a conclusion.

Then a Japanese, General Kenji Doihara, lost his temper, lost his dignity, became practical and on September 18, 1931, he started war on China. Japan won that war but lost everything else and is now a dependent country.

Things happen like that in history when there is no dignified strength. And here endeth the lesson.

Matter Of Fact

British Big Bang

WASHINGTON

The British will quite soon be ready to explode their first atomic bomb. The timing depends in part on what is done in this country. But the chances are that the first British atomic test will take place within a matter of months, almost certainly within the coming year. This is, of course, a matter of the highest importance. For one thing, it goes right to the heart of the Anglo-American relationship.

For the explosion of a British bomb will be, in a sense, a measure of the partial failure of the Anglo-American partnership. This is so for several reasons. Although the British technicians now know in detail how to make the bomb, it will be extremely costly to clear the final technological hurdles, and then to stage the test, probably in Australia. And this heavy charge on the British economy comes at a time when the British rearmament effort is already straining British finances to the breaking point.

Moreover, the fact is that the British do not now have the resources to build either a really decisive stockpile of bombs, or the planes to carry bombs in important numbers to Soviet targets. The newly designed British medium bomber, the B-9, is an excellent plane, perhaps even superior in performance to our own B-47. But this plane is still in the prototype stage, and even when in production, it will be hand-tooled, rather than mass-produced.

Costly Gesture

Thus for the British to test a bomb which cannot either be made or delivered in quantity amounts to a very costly psychological gesture. Yet the gesture is almost certain to be made. This is so partly because an independent British atomic test should have an important effect on the British themselves. More and more, the British are being persuaded that their island has been transformed into a mere "Air Strip One" for the Americans, and the proof of independent British atomic power should do much to dispel this illusion.

A British atomic test should also help to remind the Soviets that Britain is still a great power. But above all, the explosion of a British atomic bomb should impress the Congress of the United States. And this is certainly a main reason why the all-out effort to produce a British bomb is now in prospect.

What the British really want, of course, is an atomic working partnership with the United States—full participation, on a kind of non-producing basis, in the American atomic program. This is, in fact, what the best of the American policy makers also want. For what is not understood, either in Congress or the country, is that this matter of an atomic partnership with the British is by no means one-sided.

The recent, irresponsible revelation that the United States now has only 87 operational B-36 bombers should serve to underline this fact. The B-36 is the only bomber capable of reaching important Soviet targets from American bases. Eighty-seven planes—or 200—could not possibly serve as an effective deterrent against Soviet aggression, especially in view of the rapidl maturing Soviet air defense.

Plans Knocked Out

The plain fact is that the capacity to deliver the American atomic stockpile now squarely depends on overseas bases controlled by the French, and above all by the British. The further fact is that the only decisive American weapon could be nullified "by a single telephone call," to quote on knowledgeable American airman. For if, in some future crisis, the British government notified this government that American bombers could not use British bases, the French would surely follow suit. Thus the central factor in American military power could be eliminated at a stroke.

It is because it is the only insurance against this happening that our own policy makers want a working Anglo-American atomic partnership. But this would require legislation—specifically, revision of the McMahon Act. There have been repeated conversations about changing the act. Atomic Energy Committee Chairman Brien McMahon himself understands the need for revision. But every time plans have proceeded to the point where legislation was about to be introduced, there has been a Fuchs scandal, or a Pontecorvo scandal, or a Burgess-McLean scandal, and the plans have been hastily dropped.

The recent Burgess-McLean defection, in fact, knocked into a cocked hat carefully laid plans for an Anglo-American atomic partnership. And now the only way out, apparently, is for the British to make the costly and basically unnecessary effort to produce atomic bombs independently. The Congress will presumably be far less reluctant to permit an atomic partnership if the prospective partner has shown the capacity to roduce atomic bombs anyway. Moreover, British security arrangements are being firmly if belatedly tightened, and there should be no more Fuchs-Pontecorvo - Burgess - McLean betrayals.

The explosion of a British-made bomb, to be sure, should have some desirable consequences in itself. Even so, it is time this country recognized that the Anglo-American alliance, to which British bases are just as essential as American planes and bombs, is not a one-way street.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON. — America's determination to work out a military alliance with Spain is no recent decision.

Beginning when Louis Johnson was Secretary of Defense, and now under Secretary Marshall, the potential use of naval and air bases in Spain and the valuable aid of the Spanish army's many divisions have constituted a vital objective in American planning. It has always been realized, of course, that "political" factors might be an obstacle, and hence nothing has been said publicly about it.

Such apprehensions have not proved unfounded, as witness the open protests being made by the British and French governments.

If such protests became effective, it would mean that Soviet Russia, which wields nowadays a tremendous political influence inside Great Britain and France, had succeeded in applying a restraining hand on America's defense of Europe.

Follows Russian Pattern

The American people have not yet grasped the significance of the Soviet impact on British and French policy. In Britain, for example, the Bevan "left wing" manifesto the other day paralleled almost exactly the Russian demand that the United States be denied military bases overseas. The Bevanites also argued against rearmament and criticized American influence in European affairs—a line of criticism which conforms exactly to the pattern of Soviet demands at the recent Paris conference of the four deputy foreign ministers.

This is not to say that there is involved any disloyalty or any direct connection between the labor government's "left wing" and the Soviets. It does mean, however, that the Communists, by boring from within the "left wing," have managed in their insidious way to create a political force that constantly scares the labor government and keeps it from carrying on the kind of cooperation with the United States which was characteristic of the Anglo-American team in wartime.

The British government under Winston Churchill did not hesitate to put ideological considerations aside and cooperate with the Red Army when Hitler attacked Russia in June, 1941. Hence, it is difficult to understand why any ideological sentiments now should play a part in causing British policy to frown on Spanish-American military cooperation.

From the American viewpoint, the alliance with Spain is vital. If, for instance, Russia succeeds in developing a spirit of "neutralism" in England and France so that the will to fight in those countries is weakened, the United States might find naval and air bases in Spain absolutely essential to protect Europe. A set of bases in Spain, as an alternative to bases in Britain or France, is just a simple military precaution.

If ideology were to be a factor, then Britain and France and the United States logically should not now be giving aid to Tito in Yugoslavia. For the government there is still Communist by doctrine but anti-Moscow for practical reasons of defense.

The attitude here is to look at military defense questions from a practical standpoint. Spain's help is needed. So is the help of Turkey and of Greece. The protection of the Mediterranean is now an American responsibility. The United States Navy has a sizeable force there, primarily because Great Britain has not had the money to increase her fleet.

Natural Selection

Admiral Sherman is intimately acquainted with Mediterranean problems, having been in command there before he came to Washington as chief of naval operations. It was natural, for the Joint Chiefs to delegate Admiral Sherman to explore the military situation with Spain and other countries on the shores of the Mediterranean.

The American people have been very patient with the vagaries of London policy, which succeeded in preventing the exercise of military power in normal fashion in Korea, resulting in heavy American casualties. The argument of Britain's Labor government was that this might provoke Russia to war. Now the British argument is that to get aid from Spain will assist Communist propaganda. That idea has been worn threadbare. If the Allies to forego proper methods of protection just because they might hear unpleasant blasts on the Moscow radio, then indeed a counsel of timidity has superseded policies of safety and common sense.

Again, however, it would be a mistake to indict Great Britain or France for the behavior of their "left wing" groups. The most salutary development that could occur in England would be for the British Conservatives now to align themselves on the side of those in the Labor party who do not propose to allow the military defense policy of the Allies to be weakened by fear of Russian propaganda. In trying times bipartisanship in foreign policy is as important in Britain as it is in America.

Man And Woman Hurt When Bus And Car Crash

Two persons were hurt early yesterday when an automobile and Amcelle-bound bus of the Cumberland Transit Lines collided at the intersection of Baltimore and Centre Streets.

Admitted to Allegany Hospital for X-rays were Lucille Flanigan, 30, and Bartlett Cottrill, Jr., 18, of Route 3, Keyser, W. Va., both passengers in the car. The woman complained of pain in the kidney region and Cottrill had facial lacerations and possible head injuries.

Police identified Raymond C. Flanigan, 30, also of Route 3, Keyser, as driver of the 1937 coach involved in the crash at 6:25 a. m. The bus operator was George Fisher Cunningham, 30, of 11 Turner Street. Both escaped injury.

Officer Charles E. Cubbage's report said the bus was traveling west on Baltimore Street when it crashed broadside against the car, headed north on Centre Street. Traffic lights were not in operation at the time.

As the bus reached the intersection, police stated, the car failed to stop and continued across the street at about 25 miles per hour. The impact carried the automobile 10 feet.

All three occupants of the car were riding in the front seat with the Flanigan woman seated in the middle. Damage to the vehicle, owned by Cottrill, was estimated at $300. The front of the bus was damaged.

Flanigan will be given a hearing Friday on a charge of failing to give the right of way. No charge was filed against Cunningham.

Va. Avenue Playground Sponsors Doll Show

Charlotte Dyer entered the largest doll in the Doll Show held last night at the Virginia Avenue Playground. The second winner was Janet Ashenfelter.

The smallest doll entered last night belonged to Lynn Skiles with Charlotte Dyer entering the second smallest. The prettiest doll was one belonging to Lois Ashenfelter with the entry of Anna Rhoe a close second. The most unusual doll at the show was one of Lynn Skiles with Sandra Sibley having the second most unusual.

Cheryl Sibley had the largest doll collection and Charlotte Dyer had the second largest. The oldest doll entered last night was a 35-year-old one of Charlotte Dyer. Sandra Sibley entered a doll 25 years old.

Judges at last night's show were Mrs. E. Fuller, Mrs. M. Settle, and Mrs. E. Sibley. Miss Rita Wiant is play ground leader.

Pathologists Inspect Diseased White Oak Trees In This Area

Three pathologists are visiting Western Maryland to inspect several areas where white oak trees are dying.

William H. Johnson, district forester in charge of the four western counties of the state, said the trio spent last night at Green Ridge Camp.

They are Dr. W. F. Jeffers, pathologist at the University of Maryland; R. D. Van Duesen, biologist for the State Department of Research and Education from the Solomons Island laboratory, and Dr. Curtis May, of the University of Maryland.

They were accompanied here by Adna R. Bond, of Annapolis, assistant state forester. The men will inspect the sporadic areas of infestation in Allegany and Garrett counties.

Johnson said the spread of the disease is not too great and does not constitute any great problem.

The experts will also check the status of American Chestnut tree and also several plantings of Asiatic chestnut trees.

American chestnuts on the east coast were destroyed by a blight that was introduced into this country from Asia. The Asiatic chestnut trees are supposed to be blight resistant and are being planted in spots to determine the possibility of restoring these trees in the east.

Johnson said that from the roots of dead chestnut trees, sprouts grow to about ten feet in height, but then the fungus attacks them and destroys the tree.

Governor's Veto

type phenomenon occurs in the year of our Lord 1951 to change that theory," North shouted.

Except for Kimble's reference to an executive right to veto, none at the meeting in Wicomico High School defended McKendin's rejection of the pay raise.

Enough Money cited

Senator Phoebus (R-Somerset) predicted "when the proper time comes," the Governor may come up with a better measure.

House Speaker Luber (D-Balto-5th) said he was "convinced, now as then, that there is enough money in the state treasury" to boost salaries without new taxes. Luber and Senate Majority Leader Goldstein (D-Calvert) round out the council committee.

Goldstein announced its objective was to sound out public opinion on the county-state conflict over financing.

Spokesmen for each county declared most places on the Eastern Shore have too small a tax base to produce all the money necessary. They raised these main objections:

(1) Since wealthier counties can offer more from their own resources one is bidding against the other for the best teachers — and teachers are shopping around for the best jobs.

(2) Property owners on the Shore will have to stand all the expense because counties in this section have no other broad source of revenue.

Senator Turner (D-Queen Anne's) suggested the committe look into the division of sales tax receipts. That levy was "tacked on the coattail of public education" when adopted in 1947, Turner said.

Without better salaries, teachers will either quit in droves or "out of desperation join labor unions, something they don't want to do," said Mrs. Idella Seutter Von Loetzen. She heads the Somerset County Teachers Asspciation.

KEYSER, W. Va. — A crackdown on automobile speeding within Keyser has been promised by Mayor Chester J. Compton, who reports that he has instructed Police Chief Claude Martin to alert members of the department.

Danger Line

At Tuesday night's City Council meeting Mayor Compton said the city was fortunate in having no fatal accidents recently, but stressed that speeding has reached the danger line and must be curbed.

Changes in the police department rules to provide for better cooperation between the force and the public also are being considered by the new mayor. A system similar to one used by West Virginia State Police will be adopted.

Mayor Compton also broached to the councilmen a proposal for the establishment of a planning commission of public spirited citizens to make recommendations for improvement of the community.

Oppose Curb

Council voted to send resolutions opposing curtailment of passenger service on the Western Maryland Railway. One resolution was ordered sent to the Maryland Public Service Commission protesting the railroad's proposed elimination of an agent stop station at McCoole, Md. A second went to the West Virginia Public Service Commission to oppose the railroad's plea for abandonment of rail service to Elkins.

Other action included permission for parking on the west side of A Street from St. Cloud Street south, payment of $375 expenses of four Keyser firemen to the annual Firemen's School at West Virginia University. The question of creating a school zone on South Main Street because of the opening of a new A&P Market was referred to the mayor.

Washington Whirl

By AUSTINE

Other women have plunged into politics and even caused a big splash in the Congressional swim. . . . But few have paddled as consistently in the same direction. . . . Or won as many races as Edith Nourse Rogers. . . . When she was first elected to Congress from Massachusetts, few women had made a dent in the male-dominated House of Representatives. . . . So the pull upstream was not easy.

Since her first election, and for years before that, she has interested herself in the welfare of America's war veterans. . . . Though she has keen political sense, this fluffy white-haired Lady Legislator, who looks rather like a Helen Hokinson clubwoman, has not championed veterans because of "politics." . . . Her concern for them is sincere. . . . And the legislation introduced on their behalf has made them nickname her "The Veterans' God Mother." . . . Her bubbling, fervent patriotism has always been genuine to the tips of her capable fingers.

—AUSTINE

By REPRESENTATIVE EDITH NOURSE ROGERS

Not all the social life in Washington takes place in the Sulgrave Club, the drawing rooms of Embassy Row, or the sleek gardens at Georgetown. For instance, a visit to Wards 33, 34 and 35 at Walter Reed Hospital yields a padful of notes about the goings-on of Army amputees . . . men who are rapidly making the adjustment, with a friendly life here and there, to normal civilian life. For most of them. that means marriage . . . a home . . . a job . . . the same hopes and aspirations as every other American.

Take Sergeant Dick Lambert, 19, of Middletown, Del., who lost both feet and one hand in Korea. On a recent 25-day furlough he was married to his long-time sweetheart, Louise Sanborn, of Newark, Del. He's Delaware's first triple amputee so the VFW is raising the money to buy them a poultry farm. (Dick likes eggs but can't stand chicken). One more operation on each leg, and then it's back to Delaware and that farm. Dick learned to write with his left hand in 20 minutes and will catch on to the poultry business almost just as fast.

Pfc. Ray Vaillancourt, Jr., 20, of East Weymouth, Mass., can't wait to hit the road again as a hardware salesman like his dad. He says, "I can make my own future, selling" . . . a future that also includes his fiancee, Ann Cushing of Weymouth. Ray lost a leg in an accidental shooting in Germany . . . is rooting hard for the bill providing free cars for amputees.

Pfc. Charlie Manson, 20, of Minneapolis is studying cooking-school catalogs so he can open a restaurant. He was an Army cook for two years before going to Korea as a rifleman . . . says, "You can't run a restaurant on Army cooking" . . . He has only one complaint, though, about Water Reed food: "Too much roast beef."

His friends don't know it yet but Corp. Gary Bender, 20, of Schoharie, New York, a double amputee, is "unofficially engaged" to the chestnut-haired beauty who'll be visiting him shortly . . .

Bob Smith, 20, of Middleburg, Pa., who left both hands and both feet is Korea, is going to shave off the Clark Gable-ish mustache that took four months to raise. The nurses think it's cute but Bob's mother doesn't.

Red-haired Ray McNeil, 21, is having a private race with Tex Stepan to see who'll be first to walk on artificial legs. A machine gun took Red's right leg and frostbite took his fingers. Incidentally, he's still being ribbed about his "escape" from matrimony on a recent furlough. He was half-way to a marrying parson in Elkton, Md., before calling the whole thing off, for a while at least. Red is all set to be a meat salesman . . . says, "I couldn't work inside."

Corp. George Brown, 30, of Danville, Va., is counting on a discharge this summer after being in Army hospitals ever since he was hit in Germany seven years ago. He's going to move his wife and three children down to Augusta, Ga., and enter the dairy business with another veteran . . . Says that business there is booming because of the H-bomb plant construction.

Another eager small businessman is Pfc. Armond Herndon, 23, of Jamaica, Long Island. He was once a waiter . . . lost his right foot in Korea . . . plans to open a grill with his dad. He'll look over some potential spots while on a 30-day leave . . . on any time that's left over after seeing his childhood sweetheart.

One evening not long ago, just before lights went out, a bull session about the future was petering out. Harvey Hopkins, a husky 23-year-old corporal from Plant City, Fla., who lost an arm in Korea, spoke up . . . "I think I'll stay in the Army. Maybe I can teach something to the young kids coming in. When they see I have something missing, I think they'll listen."

The other men nodded. They too were thinking of tomorrow—of how to make it a better, happier, more secure tomorrow. In a few minutes they went back to their beds, and then there was darkness and quiet.

Downtown in Washington a party for a visiting dignitary was just beginning to roll.

Why don't DiSalle and Congress reach a talking point on prices? How about a lamb chop in ten easy installments?

Humming is an effortless charm booster! Use it to improve your morale, voice and speech at one time!

SECRETS OF CHARM

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

When it's too hot to care, give your spirits and your charm an effortless booster—hum for ten minutes! As an old proverb says, "Don't hum just when you feel like it, but until you feel like it."

Besides giving you new dash, you will gain in head resonance, a quality that adds music and carrying power to your voice. Humming is actually a music lesson for your speech in another way, too, because it improves the sound of your "m", "n", and "ng", giving them a melodious tone, and a lilt to the words containing them.

Polishing Your Speech

If you are careless about such sounds, your speech cannot sound polished. Exploding your "ng" sound until the word "sing" sounds like "singg" and the word "running" becomes "runninggh" is not only incorrect but very harsh to the ear. An even more common fault is omitting the "g" entirely so that "sing" sounds like "sin" and "running" like "runnin", which is a decidedly slovenly habit.

To form the "ng" sound correctly, lift the back of your tongue to the soft palate. Try it now as you say "singing" aloud. Notice how the breath and sound are forced out through your nose with a humming tone. Now drop your tongue and say "running." The first sound has a pleasant tone but the latter one is flat and harsh.

Making Your Words Sing

You can quickly eliminate flat, harsh, explosive sounds from your speech and increase the melody of your voice and words, if you are faithful about practicing the following list of words with your tongue held to your palate; Bang, doing, eating, going, hung, hang, wing ringing, stinging, longing, writing, among us, running in, walking out.

And don't foret to hum a bit each day—soon your voice will take on the qualities of a lively, cheerful, bouyant song. What a delightful change that will be from what falls on most ears too much of the time!

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

HEADQUARTERS, U. S. Third Air Force, Eng., July 18—(INS)—We have gotten the dirty end of the stick so often in our dealings with our military allies that it is a pleasure to report that the reverse is true so far as our air operation in England is concerned.

There are occasional grumblings in Commons about the presence of American bombers and fighters in England. Even Mr. Churchill has wondered aloud if this was a proper step for the Labor Government to take. The anti-American ex-Cabinet officer "Nve" Bevan has been blunter. He, and a few other Socialists, have suggested that the government demand the right to veto any attempt on the part of the Americans to fly A-bombs out of England, in the event of war.

Bevan's point is that Russia would retaliate by dropping A-bombs on England.

But despite these sideline grumblings the British government has every intention of living up to the bargain it made with us in 1948. Astonishingly, it is a deal which involves very little written matter. It is as close to a gentleman's agreement, via handshake, as anything we've ever done in conjunction with another country.

By the end of this year we'll have enough modern airdromes in England to launch a paralyzing A-bomb attack on Russia, if she strikes first. Half a dozen fields of World War II vintage have been modified to house the B-50 and three or four more are in the process of getting longer strips, bigger hangars, more modern housing.

At all of our fields there will be at least one strip long enough to receive the 10-engined B-36, but it is not planned to quarter that monstrous affair in England. It could fly from U. S. bases to any potential enemy target on earth and, thanks to remarkable recent strides made in aerial refueling, get back.

There is no termination clause or understanding in our agreement with the British. The expansion of the fields is strictly 50-50. We supply the know-how and certain heavy equipment, such as earth-movers. The British supply the materials and a great deal of the labor.

Our fliers and ground personnel are rotated on a three-month schedule, with U. S. fields serving as permanent home bases. During a crew's three months in England it takes a post-graduate course in flying of the type it would be called upon to deliver in the event of war.

Crews learn to work with British jets as well as our own, which are based near Dover. They are guided safely to fog-shrouded landing strips by British control tower men, and in return we are instructing the British in how to use the 70 B-29's we have turned over to them. We have even learned to call this familiar B-29 "The Washington," as does the RAF.

Our crews are given practice missions ranging far to the north—they use live bombs on Heligoland—and to the south as far as the Mediterranean countries. Over the continent they have learned to use French, Dutch and Belgium jets as cover, and to understand the language of the continent's control towers.

They are extremely careful not to create an incident, by flying too far East. Thanks to recent advances they have become wizards in mid-air refueling. It is quite feasible now for a B-50 to take off with a payload composed mainly of bombs and, when airborne, take on the gas it will need for the mission. Makes possible the carrying of a much greater bomb-load.

"Only war or a real assurance of a lasting peace will change this program," Maj. Gen. Leon W. Johnson, who won the Congressional Medal of Honor for his historic raid on the Ploesti oil fields in 1943, told us today.

"It would be nice if our country did not need allies," the intrepid fighting man added. "But we do, and it's encouraging to find one like the British have been in this agreement. They are not only dependable; they're predictabl.

"We've had our differences from time to time. That's only natural But they've all been straightened out with Man-to-Man talk. As one of them said recently, this language which unites us holds many words which we pronounce differently or give new meaning to. But the important words—like honesty, integrity and sincerity—are never misunderstood."

Walcott Stops Charles, Wins Title

Jersey Joe KOs Ezzard In 7th At Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH, July 18 (AP) — Jersey Joe Walcott, incredible 37-year-old Camden, N. J., pappy guy, climaxed an amazing rags to riches saga tonight to win the world heavyweight championship. He is the oldest man ever to win the title.

A smashing left hook that landed flush on Charles' jaw dropped the 29-year-old Cincinnati negro on his face with a stunning shock. Charles tried to pull himself up and was just about to make it at the count of nine when he tumbled on his back into a neutral corner.

Victory Is Upset

A 5 to 1 underdog making his fifth bid for the crown, he almost won from Joe Louis in 1947, the amazing Walcott scored one of the most stunning upsets in recent ring history — as shocking as Ray Robinson's recent defeat by Britain's Randy Turpin.

Walcott's payoff punch brought a swarm of fans storming into the ring. It was several minutes before the police could clear the invading horde.

This dazzling surprise before a whopping crowd that jammed Forbes Field, knocked out a Joe Louis-Charles match, tentatively scheduled for New York in September. Charles, however, was protected by a return match contract. He probably will meet Walcott again instead of the Louis match, and the Brown Bomber will have to wait another year for a chance.

Making the ninth defense of the crown he won by outpointing Jersey Joe at Chicago in June of 1949, Ezzard ran flush into that zinging left from the "Old Man Of The Ring."

This third match of the "series" between these rivals yanked the big crowd out of its seats with shocking speed. Instead of a champion easily spearing a persistent but over-aged challenger, there was Ezzy on the deck.

It was the first time Charles had been floored since he won the title and the second knockout loss of his career of 79 pro fights dating back to 1940.

Nobody gave Walcott much of a chance except his own followers who claimed he was robbed in his first Louis fight and both previous scraps with Charles.

You couldn't even find a solid betting price on the match, so lopsided it seemed to be. Some said it was up as high as 6½ to 1 last night.

Ending Is Sudden

Old Jersey Joe, making a career of being a challenger after 21 years in the pro ring, was spearing Charles with those head punches all night. He drew blood from the champion's mouth as early as the fourth and raised a lump under his right eye in the sixth. But there was no warning of the sudden ending. Neither fighter had been on the deck or close to it.

Older men have fought in the prize ring but none ever had won the most coveted prize of all—the heavyweight crown. Bob Fitzsimmons whipped Jim Corbett at the age of 35. Both Fitz and Jack Johnson defended at 37 but Walcott became the oldest ever to win it.

Back in the dressing room under the stands, a bewildered Charles looked at reporters with wonder in his face.

"Did they really count me out?" he said. "I kinda remember trying to get up but at the count of five or six that's all I remember.

Ez Can't Believe It

"Walcott was really in there trying, wasn't he? Gee, I can't believe it."

But believe it or not, it's as true as the Star Spangled Banner. Mr. Charles, the mustachioed gent from Cincinnati, no longer is champion. And this old "Cinderella Man" with six kids back home in Jersey follows in the line where Jack Dempsey, John L. Sullivan, Gene Tunney, and other greats trod before him.

Tonight's third of the series before an estimated 25,000 fans was the first official heavyweight title fight ever held in Pittsburgh.

A slope shouldered man with scraggly hair and a strong bony face, Walcott is supposed to give Charles a return bout within 90 days. The site and date will be talked over next week in a New York conference.

Mintz Is Suspended

As the big crowd filed out of the Pirates Ball Park, it was announced that Mintz was suspended "for action detrimental to boxing" pending an Aug. 7 hearing in Philadelphia. Commissioner John Da Grosa of Philadelphia made the announcement.

36,713 See Yanks Beat Pale Hose

Raschi, Mize Star In 5 To 1 Triumph

CHICAGO, July 18 (AP)—Before the largest Comiskey Park weekday crowd in history, 36,713, the New York Yankees today moved into a virtual tie for second-place in the American League by uncorking a late-inning rally to trim the Chicago White Sox, 5-1.

The Yankees rapped six hits in the seventh and eighth innings, including a two-run homer by Johnny Mize, to move within .0002 of a point behind the second-spot White Sox. On a game basis, however, the White Sox head the Yanks by a half-game.

Vic Raschi won his 13th game of the year although he had to quit after hurling six innings in the humid, 90-degree weather.

Chicago's only marker came on Minnie Minoso's third-inning homer, his sixth of the season.

Kiner Belts Three Homers, Pirates Top Dodgers, 13-12

Ralph Boosts Total To 23 In Wild Tilt

Ralph Kiner

The first came off Phil Haugstad with the bases full in the first inning. It was Kiner's tenth grand - slam of his career and left him just two short of Roger Hornsby's National League record. In the fourth Ralph hit another, with one on off Dan Bankhead to start a six-run Pirate outburst.

The third Kiner wallop, this one with bases empty and Erv Palica on the mound, tied the score at 12-12 after the Pirates blew an eight-run lead. It was his 23rd homer of the season.

A moment later Erv Dusak doubled and Pete Reiser came through with a pinch single to drive in the winning run.

The victory was the eighth for the last-place Pirates over the league leaders in 13 encounters and their sixth in seven games at Ebbets Field.

In addition to Kiner's three blasts, Joe Garagiola and Gus Bell hit homers for Pittsburgh and Roy Campanella and Jackie Robinson provided a pair for Brooklyn. Box:

Cubs Trip Giants

NEW YORK, July 18 (AP) — The Chicago Cubs backed up Frank Hiller's tidy four-hit pitching job with a brace of home runs today to hand the Giants their second straight setback 6-3, and endanger New York's hold on second place in the National League.

Hank Sauer clubbed one circuit blow with a man on base in the first inning and Chuck Connors repeated the feat in the seventh.

Willie Mays contributed his 13th homer of the season to the Giant cause, giving them a short-lived 3-2 lead in the seventh. Box:

Babe Ruth Left $360,000 Estate

Made Million In 24 Years Of Baseball

NEW YORK, July 18 (AP)—Babe Ruth, highest paid baseball star of his era—and a big spender, too—left a net estate of $360,000.

Estate Tax Appraiser Samuel E. Lepler approved the figure today.

Baseball's immortal home run king made an estimated $1,425,000 during 24 years in baseball.

He died of cancer three years ago at the age of 53.

He left his widow, Mrs. Clara Mae Ruth, $5,000, plus a life interest in a $179,611 trust fund and in the estate after all bequests were taken out.

When she dies, 10 per cent goes to the foundation the Babe dedicated to "the kids of America."

He left $5,000 each to two adopted daughters, Julia Ruth Landers of Kearsbarge, N. H., and Dorothy Sullivan Ruth Tirone of New York.

To a sister, Mary H. Moberly of Baltimore, Ruth left $10,000.

He left $1,175 worth of baseball mementos and trophies to the Baseball Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N. Y.

Princess Lygia Cops Rich Race

Lassie Stakes Win Is Worth $45,580

CHICAGO, July 18 (AP) — Princess Lygia, undefeated 2-year-old daughter of Roman, today registered her fifth consecutive triumph in winning the $56,715 Arlington Lassie Stakes, a race for juvenile fillies, by four and a half lengths.

The victory netted the youngster's owner, Mrs. Harry Tritsek, Louisville, Ky., $45,580. Second place and $6,000 went to the Brown Hotel Stable's Hadn't Orter, which finished two and a half lengths ahead of Aesthette, owned by Hal Price Headley, Lexington, Ky. The Dixiana Stable's Fabiola was fourth in a field of ten.

Princess Lygia, a $3,600 yearling purchase, now has won $80,785 — more than any other twolyear-old in the nation. Her victory definitely established her claim to the 2-year-old filly championship of 1951.

Princess Lygia, coupled with Cat Key, owned by P. A. B. Widener, III, went to the post a 2-5 favorite with the crowd of 15,895 and returned $2.80, $2.20 and $2.20. Hadn't Orter paid $5.80 to place and $3.20 to show, while Aaesthette returned $2.80 to show.

Princess Lygia was clocked in 1:11 1-5 for the six furlongs. After winning her maiden effort by eight lengths during the Lincoln Fields meeting, she captured the Miss America Stakes and moved to Arlington Park to take one division of the Hyde Park Stakes and then the Pollyanna Stakes.

TO DEFEND STATE TITLES AT RIDGELEY—J. Calvin Collins, left, of Bunker Hill, Berkeley County, and Edgar H. McDonald of Headsville, Mineral County, will be the defending champions at the West Virginia state championship trapshooting tournament which opens tomorrow at the Ridgeley Rod and Gun Club. Collins was the handicap champion last year. He hit 96 out of 100 from 19 yards McDonald won the triple crown—singles, doubles and all-around events. Ed took the doubles with a score of 93 out of 50 pairs and defeated Dr. R. B. Kinter, Bluefield, and Collins in shoot-offs for singles and all-around honors.

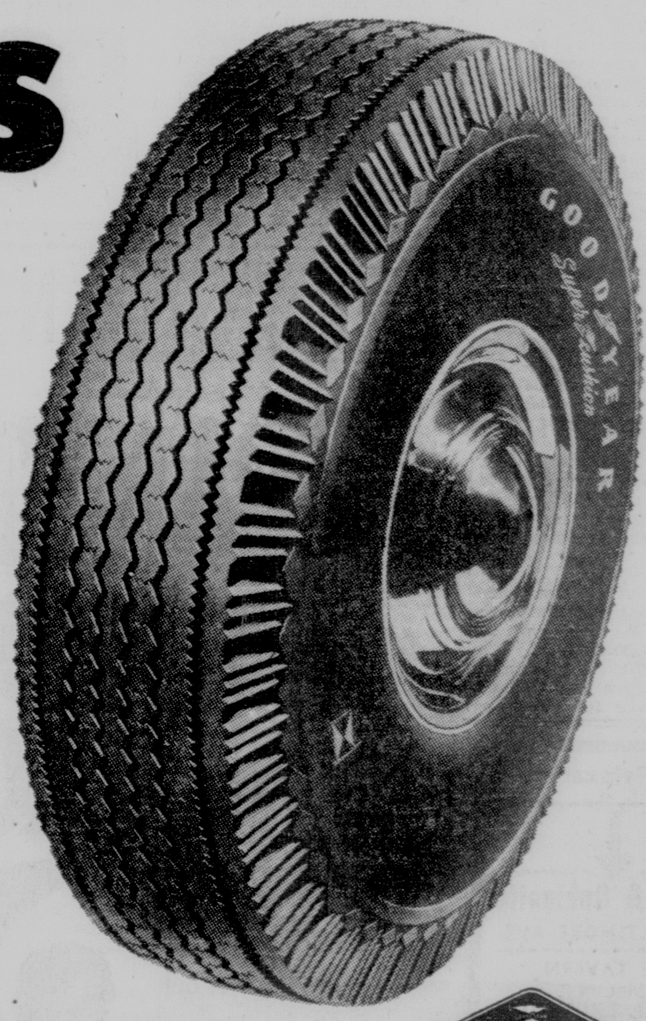
WE'LL PAY BIG MONEY for your tires ..when traded in on new GOODYEAR TIRES

We're paying top prices for trade-ins on new Super-Cushions, too. Equip your car with these bigger, safer, softer Super-Cushion tires.



We'll trade safe, trouble-free new Goodyear miles for the dangerous, unsafe miles in your present tires. Come in today!

WHY take chances with thin worn tires?

Thin tires cut, bruise, puncture easily — causing needless repair bills, delays, and inconveniences.

Weakened cord bodies of old tires invite blowouts. And blowouts all too often cause serious accidents — frequently fatal accidents.

Smooth tires make driving hazardous — for skids endanger your own life as well as the lives of others. Get out of the "Danger Zone" now — buy new Goodyear tires now.

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Will psychology cure "morning sickness"?

Answer: Yes, writes Dr. Lloyd F. Smith in the Arizona Medical Journal. Nausea and vomiting in pregnancy frequently grow out of an unconscious rebellion against that condition, due to feelings of fear, shame or guilt, and this may be true even though a woman consciously welcomes the prospects of motherhood. For example, she may never have outgrown having been scolded for asking where babies come from. The sickness is usually fairly easy to cure by psychological treatment, in which the physician helps the mother to understand the reason for her symptoms and at the same time gives her a chance to express her pent-up emotional reactions.

Should you study with the radio turned on?

Answer: In principle, no. However effectively you can shut off "distracting stimuli," some amount of mental energy is used up in doing so, and this would be better spent upon the work that you are doing. Again, the more interesting the program would be if you let yourself listen to it, the more effort will be needed to ignore it. On the other hand, there seem to be people who get a sense of companionship from "having something going on around them," and feel ill at ease in silence and solitude. With such people the reassuring aspects of the radio may outweigh its distracting effect.

Should you be ashamed not to like children?

Answer: It is a sign of emotional defect to have no interest in your own children or not to want to have any. But to prefer the society of children to that of adults is a characteristic that may be neurotic, since it often means that you feel at ease only with people who are weaker or less clever than you are. To a normal, mature person adjusting to children is an effort, and while this is well worth making if they are your children, or if you have made child care your life work, I see no ground for undertaking it under other circumstances. The idea that being fond of children proves you to be a "nice person" has no basis of fact.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, July 18—(INS)—Talked with Dory Schary, who is back from Chicago where he attended a meeting which made him production chief in charge of all studio operations of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and gave Eddie Mannix, Bennie Thau and Louis K. Sidney places on the executive board, with Eddie as general manager.

Dore told me something about "A Letter From The President," which will star Lana Turner after she finishes "The Merry Widow." It's an original, and the story is about a letter received by a poor Mexican—a form letter from the President announcing his American citizenship.

The letter from the President gives the Mexican a new and strange dignity and through it he becomes a really good citizen, as does Lana, the girl in the case. Ricardo Montalban will be co-starred with the Turner gal.

On her way back from Australia, Marjorie Lawrence, the brave and gallant opera star, met Greer Garson in Honolulu and discussed "Interrupted Melody." That's Marjorie's life story, which MGM is making with Greer in the Lawrence role.

Marjorie, a polio victim, has never let the fact that she is in a wheelchair deter her singing career. She has gone ahead with her career and had added successes. While here Marjorie will make voice tests for Jack Cummings, the producer at MGM.

The plan is to film her life very much as Al Jolson's story was told. Marjorie will do the singing and Greer the acting. Greer is vacationing in Honolulu with Buddy Fogelson.

From Hongchong, Korea, comes a most interesting letter from Benay Venuta, who has been appearing with the Jack Benny show.

She says, "We did a show for 15,000 Marines one mile from the front today, with firing going on while we were on the stage.

"Jack said, 'I guess the Communists don't like my violin.' He keeps us all laughing all the time. We're the only show to come this far, and the second one to be in Korea in a year. We're the first girls these men have seen in a year.

'Oh Louella, we must get shows to these men. Please say something to shake up the actors. Seeing Jack Benny is like home folks to these boys."

I never expected to be the peacemaker in the Kathryn Grayson-Johnny Johnston dispute, which has gone on for two years. But I was drawn into it when Johnny called me up to say that Kathryn could have custody of little Patty Kate, but he wanted permission to see her—and that seems to me fair enough.

Kathryn agrees it's fair, so it looks now as if the papers will be signed.

The car Johnny asked for he says Kathryn can keep, but I have a hunch she'll send it on to him. I don't wonder he wants to see Patty Kate—she is a darling.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Peter Howard telephoned to say au revoir—he's off for Europe. He says he hopes Betsy Von Furstenberg will wait for him until he gets back from abroad. He says they're engaged again.

He also told me that Sylvia Gable is still on his stepfather George Vanderbilt's yacht and will return here July 23.

Last night at the vagabond restaurant Richard Garland, young actor who was in "Son Of Ali Baba" and 'Cimarron Kid," confided that he is marrying Beatrice Campbell, young actress, very soon.

Doris Koenig and Irving Brin are getting married Friday. They'll honeymoon at Lake Tahoe. Doris is the widow of the late William Koenig, studio executive.

Ben Lyon, who with Bebe Daniels is so very popular in London, has just been made producer of this year's royal film show. It will be held at the Odeon Cinema, Leicester Square, November 5.

Gilbert Roland and Doris Duke a dinner duo at Jack's at the beach.

Jimmy Durante is giving a birthday party for Jackie Barnett who writes his special material. Jimmy's gift to his writer is a gold watch.

Natalie Schaefer, the ex-Mrs. Louis Calhern, has arrived in town and expects to live here. She has rented a house in Beverly Hills.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Piedmont Playground To Hold Opening

PIEDMONT, W. Va.—The official opening of the Piedmont Playground on the Piedmont High School grounds sponsored by the Tri-Towns Recreation Association will be held this evening at 7:30.

The program will include a band concert by the Junior Band, directed by Charles Ducas, sponsored by the Potomac Fire Company of Westernport. Group singing will be led by Edward Seaman, a member of the Piedmont High School faculty. The entertainment will also include vocal and instrumental selections. Refreshments will be on sale.

The movies which were planned to be shown this Thursday evening have been postponed to next Thursday evening as it would make the program this week too long.

The organizing of a Playground Council is being planned and the election of officers is expected to take place soon.

Senior 4-H Meeting

LONACONING—A special meeting of the Senior 4-H Club will be held at 7 o'clock tonight at the home of Mrs. James Crable, Church Hill. A picnic supper will be held.

Many Americans took Geiger counters with them on their vacations in the country last year, it is said, with the object of prospecting for uranium as a side-line vacation activity.

Bow-tie devotee

New Shape Bow Tie

FASHION: Phil Baker, star of the TV show "Who's Whose," is a devotee of bow ties and is shown here in the new longer-and-narrower shape which is receiving wide acceptance.

Food and Drink: Beat one egg lightly, add four ounces of orange juice and beat lightly again. It's a "meal-in-a-drink." . . . For plenty of vitamins, stir a small envelope of gelatin in a large glass of orange juice. It will make you feel like Tarzan!

Foot Notes: Going to do some painting? Pull an old pair of socks over your shoes to protect them from paint smears. Don't just try painting in your socks; you need the shoes for proper support. . . . For the same reason, keep golf shoes in repair. Run-down soles and heels are bad for the feet when you do so much walking.

Helpful Hints: An empty egg container can be used to segregate various size nails. . . . If you need a dash of lemon juice, in your bartending duties, cut a small wedge in one end of the lemon and squeeze—keeps lemon fresher.

Feminine Advice: Authoress Doris Lilly says: "Don't be surprised if your date, who has spent hours getting dressed in her best, looks askance when you show up in baggy tweeds. . . . Don't talk incessantly of your business when in a night club with your gal. And be doubly sure not to do it when you are walking in the moonlight with her!"

New Apparel: Bud Collyer (right) is wearing a new sport shirt that is fast growing in popularity—made of jersey, it has contrasting placket and collar, that gives an informal yet dressed-up look.

Note the collar

Odd Items: There are still eight states which do not permit women jurors. . . . Alan Ladd likes to play his roles, no matter how rigorous, without a double. In "Appointment With Danger," he suffered a black eye, wrenched knee and innumerable bruises. . . . This week's "Pass the Cigars" to—the White Sox manager, Paul Richards, who welded a squad of "misfits" into a pennant-contender. They may not win—but they'll keep fighting!

Lonaconing Club Holds Picnic Lunch

LONACONING — The Daughters of America Girls Club held a picnic lunch at its meeting Tuesday afternoon in the Odd Fellows hall, Front Street.

Seventeen members of the club attended. An outing at the recreational area on July 31 is planned.

Visit Cumberland

PIEDMONT, W. Va.—Joseph Sullivan, Westernport, and John Kelly, of here, were visitors in Cumberland Tuesday.

Suspected of Arson!

Dr. Jim Brent's home was partly destroyed by fire. His own daughter was injured in the blaze which burned important records rumored to incriminate the doctor in a hospital swindle. The leading citizen is moving against him with charges of fraud and arson. How can he defend himself? And what will be the outcome of the Marshal's meeting today?

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

N P W L D J V M S I W M C D, N P M H K M V R-
M W U M Z R C M, S M L G D S P N P D M E K M V-
L W U M, L W F N P M H M V U R C M — K I K M.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: TO DANCE ATTENDANCE ON THEIR LORDSHIPS' PLEASURES—SHAKESPEARE.

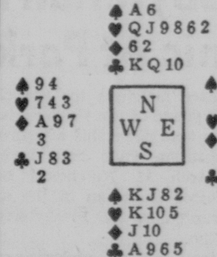
"The Authority on Authorities"

BLAME YOUR OPPONENT

IT IS NOT always your fault, or even your partner's, when your side gets a bad result on some deal. Arguments in which each member of your pair takes his turn at castigating the man opposite him can be completely out of bounds. Maybe each would have done exactly the same as his partner did, if he had sat in the same seat and held the same cards. Or maybe the choice between that action and some other was such a close question that either alternative would not carry too much just censure. Isn't it possible, in some of these cases, that your opponent should be blamed for your trouble? If he isn't there to give you every bad result he can, what reason is there for having an opponent at all?



(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♥	1 ♠
Dbl	Pass	Pass	2 ♦
Pass	Pass	Pass

South almost blew the roof off when East made the 2-Diamonds after North's pass.

"Didn't you realize that, after I had doubled East's first bid for business, at the low level of one, my pass of his next bid was an absolute forcing pass?" he indignated. "If you couldn't double his diamonds, you should have bid again, regardless of what you held."

North admitted that maybe he should have rebid his hearts, but pleaded that his opening bid had been so shaded that he had a close question. Furthermore, he insisted, South's pass following the earlier double was not a clear-cut forcing pass.

"Remember," North pointed out, "you had passed on your first turn instead of opening the bidding. You might have had a very weak hand, good for nothing except at spades, with a few tenace honors sitting over East and pretty good length in the suit. I had no idea your hand was so near to an original bid in general strength."

It happened that a heart game was there for North and South. But maybe the man most to blame was not North, not South, but East, who interfered with them.

Phone Workers Sign Contract With Company

Pay Increases Up To $10 Awarded

BALTIMORE, July 18 (AP)—The Chesapeake and Potoma Telephone Co. and its plant and commercial employes tonight signed a new one-year contract calling for pay increases ranging from $3 to $10 a week.

The negotiations, going on almost continuously for the past several days, were conducted by the company and the CIO Communication Workers of America, representing the plant, commercial, accounting and treasury non-supervisory workers.

In announcing the settlement, W. Griffin Morrel, vice president and general manager of the company, said the company would need more income to meet "record high labor costs and other rising costs."

The utility has applied to the Maryland Public Service Commission for an increase in telephone rates. The request has not as yet come before the commission for action.

Traffic, commercial and accounting employes in the Maryland area next to the District of Columbia, represented by CIO-CWA locals 2300 and 2336 also received wage increases.

The possibility of an agreement in the contract talks was expressed here early last night as the negotiators went back into session.

An informed union source said definite progress was being made and that only a few minor details remained to be ironed out.

Telephone service in Cumberland returned to normal early this morning after plant workers represented by the CWA-CIO withdrew picket lines.

Tuesday's surprise walkout, called to prod the contract negotiators, kept service in Cumberland on an emergency basis for some 17 hours as supervisory personnel manned the switchboards.

The stoppage was called simultaneously in this city, Frederick, Hagerstown, Oakland and Frostburg.

Hardest hit was Cumberland where all but a few operators refused to cross the picket lines of Local 2105, CWA-CIO.

Less effective were walkouts staged at the other communities.

No picketing was reported throughout the state yesterday as negotiators continued working toward a contract to replace a pact which expired June 30.

Frostburg Cited For 1950 Safety

The City of Frostburg will be honored in Baltimore on July 23 at a luncheon sponsored by the Automobile Club of Maryland for not having any pedestrian fatalities during 1950.

In an Associated Press dispatch yesterday the "Mountain City" was among 11 Maryland cities cited for the record.

The club said Governor McKeldin will present Automobile Club certificates of commendation to mayors of each of the cities.

The cities are Annapolis, Cambridge, Elkton, Frostburg, Greenbelt, Hyattsville, Havre De Grace, Mt. Rainier, Rockville, Tacoma Park and Westminster, the club said.

The Governor also will present a certificate to Major Ruxton M. Ridgely, executive officer of the Maryland State Police, for his work as state representative in the AAA's national pedestrian protection contest.

Two Youths Held In County Jail

Two youths, who said they were from Alexandria, Va., are being lodged in the Allegany County Jail while State Police investigate to determine how they obtained an automobile bearing New York license plates.

State Trooper Donald Wade picked up the boys about noon yesterday as they were driving along Route 40, between Frostburg and Cumberland. They had an Eckhart boy, who had hitch-hiked a ride, in the car with them. Trooper Wade still was questioning the boys at the sheriff's office here last night.

The youths identified themselves as Preston S. German, 20, and Charles P. Spilman, 18, according to records at the sheriff's office.

Resident Is Appointed To Virginia College

Miss Ruth Leonard, daughter of Mrs. Carl L. Leonard, 6 Decatur Street, has been appointed as head of the health, physical education and recreation department of Mary Washington College of the University of Virginia.

The announcement of the appointment was made recently by Dr. Morgan L. Combs, president of the college in Fredericksburg, Va. Miss Leonard taught there before going to Pennsylvania State College three years ago. She is a graduate of the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina and received her master's degree in physical education at Chapel Hill.

West Virginia's Oldest Man Dies At His Mountain Home

Death came to James Harvey Riggleman, believed to have been the oldest man in West Virginia, Tuesday night at his two-room tar paper covered home in the mountainous area of Mineral County.

He was born in Grant County, a son of the late John and Phoebe Riggleman. Mineral County records list his age as 105, but the family Bible entry lists his age as 108.

Married three times, his first wife was Elizabeth Harnick Riggleman, his second, the former Elizabeth Blizzard, and the third, by whom he is survived, is Cora Baldwin Riggleman.

According to the Mineral County poll registeration books, Riggleman was born in 1845, but the old Riggleman family Bible, in possession of Simon Riggleman, Romney, W. Va., a son of the centenarian, has his birthdate as 1843, making his age 108.

Simon Riggleman, 72, is the oldest of 11 children, being the only child born to James Riggleman's first wife. His second marriage produced ten children. The senior Riggleman is said to have advertised in the newspapers for his third wife, and they were married soon after their first meeting.

Another son, Charles W. Riggleman lives in a cabin, within a few hundred feet of his father's house and was a frequent visitor. He lives about a mile and a half from Route 18, near Mt. Zion Road. All of the children reside in West Virginia.

James Riggleman, who had resided at his present location 35 to 40 years, was an enthusiatic hunter and was considered somewhat of an expert with firearms. He had given up the sport recently because of weakening eyes.

Friends say they have heard of him talking about the Civil War but do not know if he had fought in the war. In his younger days, Riggleman resided in Pendleton County. He came to Mineral County a number of years ago to work.

Surviving are his children, Charles Riggleman, at home; Ernest and John Riggleman, both of Route 1, Keyser, W. Va.; Jesse Riggleman, Armstrong Street Extended, Keyser, W. Va., and Mrs. Loy Miller, Keyser, W. Va.

Services will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the Fountain Church with interment in Cabin Run Cemetery.

WILL RETIRE — Fire Chief Jeremiah T. Defibaugh, 58, will retire July 26 after serving on the Cumberland Fire Department for almost 30 years. He began work as a fire fighter at Central Fire Company September 7, 1921.

Governor's Veto Of Pay Raise Causes Furor

Special Session Asked To Help Teachers

SALISBURY, Md., July 18 (AP) — Governor McKeldin was charged today with flouting Maryland's money-spending program for public schools when he vetoed a pay raise for teachers.

Two Eastern Shore demoncrats insisted he call a special session promptly to help low-paid teachers or face an organized move to override his veto when the General Assembly convenes next February.

More than 100 school and government officials from the Shore's nine counties heard the Governor upbraided at the first of a series of regional meetings called by a Legislative Council committee.

At one point, criticism of the veto grew so bitter that Senate Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany) announced he would listen to no more "denunciations of the governor for exercising his governmental right."

Kimble is one of the committee's three members all of which actually voted for the $300 across-the-board pay boosts that fell before McKeldin's veto last spring.

Special Session Demanded

Delegate Logan (D-Caroline) demanded a special session. He maintained the state treasury has enough surplus over money anticipated during the winter to finance an increase. He didn't estimate the amount but thought all teachers ought to be started at no less than $50 a week.

Maximum beginning pay under the state supported scale is now $2,200 a year for college graduates. Some of the larger counties offer more.

The Governor has attributed his veto to a belief that school problems are primarily a concern of county governments. He also has objected to any hike in state taxes.

Logan contended the Governor had "vetoed equalization." With its equalization fund, the state contributes to county school budgets to support minimum standards of pay and facilities.

Kimble's retort to Logan was interpreted by Delegate Riggin (D-Somerset) as an attempt to "suppress opposition opinion." And Logan said he would continue to protest gubernatorial actionus he did not approve "regardless of Bob Kimble."

Malkus Gives Opinion

Senator Malkus (D-Dorchester) predicted that by the time the legislature meets again next winter "dissatisfaction will be so great that the veto will be overridden."

Either that, he said, "or new legislation will be enacted to take us out of the dilemma we are now in."

"A radical veto," Delegate North (D-Talbot) called it.

'I charge the Governor with having knowledge of the public's demand and necessity for an increase in teachers' salaries on the state level by the equalization plan. And I also charge that the Governor has defaulted in that respect," North said.

The legislature established its share-the-wealth school plan to assist poor counties in 1922. Under current law, a county must set aside at least 65 cents of its tax rate for schools every year.

"If the idea of sharing the load was good for three decades, what

Porter, in explaining the purpose of "voc-rehab" work, pointed out that it is not a welfare agency.

Chief Defibaugh To End Service As Fire Fighter

Applies For Pension Effective July 26

Fire Chief Jeremiah T. Defibaugh will end almost 30 years of service as a fire fighter in this city late this month.

Chief Defibaugh, who is 58, early this week submitted a request to be placed on the pension rolls as of July 26 to Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long, who is president of the Firemen's Pension Board.

Commenting that he had put his time in as an active fireman, Chief Defibaugh said he will concentrate on the fire extinguisher and supply business.

Chief Defibaugh, who has held every position in the department during his 29 years and 10 months of service, began work as a professional fireman on September 7, 1921, at Central Fire Station.

He served as a chauffeur at Central until 1925, when he was promoted to lieutenant and transferred to West Side Fire Company.

Served At South End

In March, 1938, he was transferred to South End Fire Company and on March 15, 1940, was promoted to captain at South End succeeding the late Capt. Robert R. Kelly.

Three years ago yesterday, Chief Defibaugh was appointed drillmaster of the department with the rank of assistant chief.

Following the retirement of Fire Chief William L. Lindner on March 1, 1951, he was appointed acting fire chief and on May 14 was confirmed as chief of the department.

Chief Defibaugh early this year inaugurated a training program which has become a permanent feature of the department.

Is AFL Official

Active in labor circles, he has served as secretary of Allegany Trades Council, central AFL body of Allegany County, since 1943.

He resides at 200 Glenn Street with his wife, Clara V. Defibaugh. They have two sons, J. T. Defibaugh Jr., this city, a B. and O. engineer, and Sgt. Joseph Defibaugh, with the Army Medical Corps in San Francisco, Cal.

His successor will be the fourth to serve as fire chief since Reid C. Hoenicka retired July 15, 1948, when he reached the age of 60 after serving in the department for 32 years.

He was succeeded by the late John E. Brennan, who headed the department until his death on December 10, 1950.

William L. Lindner, who had been serving as acting chief during Chief Brennan's illness, served as chief until February 24, when he retired due to ill health.

Safety Program Inaugurated For Street Workers

Joint Conference Is Planned Soon

A safety committee will be set up in the Department of Streets and Public Property to coordinate all accident prevention activities Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of the department, announced yesterday.

All 10 of the sub-departments will be represented on the safety committee, she added.

Recommendations for setting up the safety committee have been received from Lynn Walker, state safety official.

All department heads, she added, will receive copies of the recommendations in the near future in preparation for a joint conference of the street superintendent, all foremen, Mrs. Roeder and Walker.

Plans are being made to set up a safety program which can be correlated to the specific duties of each unit of the department.

Orders Extinguishers

Definite progress was reported on plans for fire safety in the Street Department.

Mrs. Roeder said the department has ordered the list of fire fighting equipment recommended by Fire Chief J. T. Defibaugh.

The recommendations included calcium chloride solution type extinguishers for the unheated casino at Constitution Park pool and several other unheated areas, carbon dioxide extinguishers for locations where oil and gas is dispensed at the City Warehouse, with soda and acid extinguishers in other locations.

The Fire Department, Mrs. Roeder said, has promised to service the fire fighting equipment.

Will Test Material

Material has also been ordered by the department to test the efficiency of "Safety-Walk", a new material designed to cut down the hazards of falls.

Slated for the tests are the steps of the Public Safety Building, the entrance to the office at Consitution Park pool and the running boards of department vehicles.

Strips of the material, which resembles coarse emery cloth, will be applied to the steps with a special adhesive to form a non-slip surface.

The resurfacing has found wide uses in factories, on battleships and in public buildings where non-slippery surfacing is vital. Cost of the materials for the tests will be about $40.

Road Lettering Is Explained

The rash of "B" and "E" letters painted on Maryland highways are markers for the center line paint crews of the State Roads Commission.

"B" stands for "beginning" and "E" stands for "end." The driver of the commission's centerline truck operates his paint mechanism at "B" and turns it off at "E."

The reason for the rash of letters this year is that the commission last winter decided to raise Maryland standards to conform to the rest of the nation. Instead of only 500-foot or less sight distances designated by a white centerline, Maryland now paints a centerline where the motorist cannot see at least 900 feet ahead of him.

Weather

Yesterday was another warm summer day with showers in the afternoon. Rain fell at noon and about 4 p. m., a downpour, accompanied by lightning and thunder, cooled the air. Humidity was high. Constitution Park's weather station recorded the high temperature as 84 degrees, the low as 64, and at 8:45 p. m., the mercury stood at 74. Rain was reported as half an inch, with humidity at 82 per cent. The weatherman promised no change in temperature for today.

Work Will Begin On Henry Street Conduit Project

Valley Street Dam Work Progressing

Flood control workers will begin the construction of the Henry Street pressure conduit this week.

Work will be done by the Thomas Earle and Sons firm, which is building the Frederick Street pressure conduit under a sub-contract.

The three by three foot conduit will tie into the Frederick Street pressure line at the intersection of the alley connecting Frederick and Henry Streets.

The comparatively small pressure duct will start at the alley, go to Henry Street and then be carried to a tunnel which has been constructed beneath the rear of the Stein Funeral Home.

From that point, the conduit will then proceed to in front of the B. and O. freight station where it will be tied into a 36-inch brick sewer.

Additional crews will be placed on the Henry Street work so that the present phase of the flood control work will be completed on time.

George and Lynch, contractor for the work, is slated to complete its construction, on or before December 10.

Finishing touches are being placed on the Valley Street detention dam. Some of the work on the big structure could not be undertaken until the outlet structure was open-

Price Of Milk May Jump One Cent In Cumberland

Cumberlanders face the prospect of paying an additional cent for their quart of milk in the near future.

The Pennsylvania Milk Control Commission has approved a half-cent increase in the price of milk for the Johnstown-Altoona area.

This will directly affect the cost here as practically all of the raw milk used here is purchased in Bedford and Somerset counties.

John D. Liebau, president of the Dairy Service Corporation, the local dairymen's organization, said his group will see what effect the increase has on their source of supply.

He pointed out that dairies in that section of Pennsylvania are getting a cent more for their quart of milk than here.

In Cumberland homogenized milk costs 22 cents a quart and regular milk, 21. In Johnstown, the price is 23 cents for homogenized and 22 cents for regular.

Liebau noted that several months ago the same section was given a half-cent increase by the Milk Control Commission, but the local dairies did not raise prices.

As the dairies here are buying in direct competition with the Pennsylvania dairies, Liebau said a one-cent increase is inevitable.

Even in Garrett County where a quantity of milk is purchased, the companies compete with the Pittsburgh and Uniontown firms.

The Dairy Service Corporation does not hike the prices, Liebau said, but each dairy will set its costs individually.

He added that the increase will probably have to go through Office of Price Stabilization channels.

Pfc. Gordon Drowns In Alaskan Waters

Mt. Savage Youth Dies After Boat Capsizes

A 20-year-old Mt. Savage veteran of three years service in the U. S. Army was a victim of drowning in Alaskan waters last Friday. Pfc. David J. Gordon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hayes Gordon, Sunnyside, drowned when the boat in which he was riding capsized, according to military authorities.

The family of the youth received notification that he was missing on Friday and another telegram informed them his body was later recovered. No details of the mishap had been received by the family up to last night.

Gordon was a member of Battery D, 502 Gun Battalion, and had been serving in Alaska for the past 17 months. He was formerly a member of the Army Reserve in Cumberland and at the age of 17 enlisted in the Regular Army and received basic training at Camp Pickett, Va. Later military training in the United States was received by Gordon at Fort Bliss, Texas, and Fort Ord, Calif.

Born February 14, 1931, he attended LaVale School and later worked for some time with a contracting company on the Western Maryland Railway, according to his family.

He was a member of the LaVale Methodist Church and had resided prior to enlisting at the home of a sister, Mrs. Leo Lowery, Homewood Addition. A brother, Hayes R. Gordon Jr., is now stationed with the Army at Fort Campbell, Ky.

Survivors other than his parents are three brothers, Hayes, Fort Campbell, Ky.; Wilbur, Chester Gordon, at home; five sisters, Mrs. Leo Lowery, Mrs. Elmer Garlitz, Mrs. George Garlitz, Homewood Addition, Mildred Gordon, Evelyn Gordon, at home.

The body will be brought to the Zeigler Funeral Home, Hyndman, Pa.

Governor Seeks Zeller's Report In Truck Case

Grantsville Man's Decision Appealed

BALTIMORE, July 18. (AP)—Governor McKeldin today asked Magistrate Charles S. Zeller of Grantsville for a "complete report" on the recent dismissal of truck overweight charges against John O. Riley of Accident.

Zeller, in dismissing the case July 9, called Maryland's new Truck Overweight Law "confusing, poorly written and a hardship." The state charged Riley with driving a truck overweighted 7,100 pounds.

Other Developments

McKeldin's letter to Zeller was released as (1) an improvement association in Baltimore urged Zeller's dismissal for committing a "rebellious act," and (2) the State Roads Commission appealed—for the first time in its history—Zeller's verdict on the Riley case and another the same day.

McKeldin specifically asked the magistrate for "the detailed reasons" for his saying the law is so confusing as to be unenforceable—if Zeller was quoted correctly as saying that.

Tonight, Zeller said he did not call the law unenforceable, but he did say "the law is subject to several interpretations. It really is working a hardship in this section x x x and it is poorly written."

Zeller said he hadn't received the governor's letter. After hearing a copy read by telephone, he said:

"I would recommend to any fair-minded person to read the law and see if it is confusing."

He said Riley's attorneys objected to the way the state figured the amount of overweight.

Axleload Cited

He said they pointed out that the law specifies "axleload," but the state measures the weight by sticking scales under the wheel, whereby weighing the wheel and axle as well.

He said he agreed with that point and dismissed the charge.

The other case the Roads Commission is appealing is the amount of fine levied on Emmett Hall, a driver for the Hopwood Lumber Co. of Hopwood, Pa.

He was found guilty of driving a truck overloaded by 11,600 pounds. Zeller fined him $496 plus costs. The State contends the fine should have been $696 because, the Commission said, the law calls for a fine of two cents a pound for overweights less than 5,000 pounds, and six cents a pound for overweights exceeding 5,000.

Zeller fined him on the basis of two cents a pound for the first 5,000 pounds and six cents for the remaining 6,600 pounds.

The appeals to Circuit Court were handled by Garrett County State's Attorney Dwight Stover for the Commission. It is the first time the Commission ever has filed an appeal in a court case such as this, although it has been the defendant in many appeals.

Zeller was named to the post by McKeldin, but the governor lacks the power to remove him without bringing formal charges.

Governor's Letter

The governor's letter to Zeller:

"My attention has been called to newspaper accounts of the case of John O. Riley of Accident, Maryland, which was adjudicated by you several days ago. As you know, criticism of your decision has been voiced on the ground that you took occasion, not only to comment unfavorably on the policy of the law, but even to refuse to obey its mandate. I have no precise information on this point and am not in a position to form any opinion; but, I should thank you to let me have at your earliest convenience a complete report of the case.

"As governor I have no right or disposition to interfere with the conduct of judicial proceedings. On the other hand, courts both high and low are bound by the laws enacted by the Legislative, and judges have the duty of enforcing those laws even when they disagree with their policy. You will, I am sure, agree that just as the executive authorities may not interfere to influence judicial decisions, members of the judiciary may not supersede acts of the Legislative.

"It may be that your action has been misunderstood or poorly reported. If you are correctly quoted as having said that the law is so confusing as to be unenforceable I should like particularly to have the detailed reasons for your statement."

Ohio Couple Hurt In Car Collision

An elderly Ohio couple were injured, one critically, yesterday afternoon following a headon collision on Route 50 near Capon Bridge, W. Va. on Cooper Mountain.

Mr. and Mrs. Price L. Stewart, Tippecanoe, Ohio, taken to Memorial Hospital, Winchester, Va., were reported last night as "resting comfortably." Mrs. Stewart was in critical condition, suffering from multiple fractures and shock. Her husband suffered possible head injuries and shock, the hospital added.

The Stewarts, enroute to Langley Field, Va., to see their son, were involved in the collision with a tractor-trailer driven by Park E. Beeghly of Cumberland. Beeghly was uninjured, police said.

West Virginia State Police investigated.
